ANCIENT ANNALS OF NORTHAMPTONSHIRE

THE ancestors of Thomas ffrench, progenitor, who located in Burlington, N. J., in 1680, as one of the Proprietors, and the genealogy of whose descendants is related in this work, lived for many generations in one of the most interesting and picturesque sections of England. For a thousand years the hills and dales, the beautiful streams and notable memorials of Northamptonshire have been celebrated in song and story. The fascinating annals of folk lore deal with its quaint people and their curious ways. In Volume I some account has been given of the ancient parish of Nether Heyford and its notable church, S. S. Peter and Paul, a landmark of Norman civilization. Therein, as recorded, appears the register of Thomas ffrench and his sires, running back for many years. The entire region is full of historic interest. Many travellers journeyed through Northamptonshire, frequently leaving accounts of their observations. One of the most curious of these ancient records, telling of the wanderings of a primitive official—a county surveyor—in 1610, remained unpublished until more than one hundred years later, in 1722, and is now regarded as a rare literary and historic treasure. From this narrative entitled: "Delineation of Northamptonshire; Being a brief Historicall and Chorographi call Description of that County. The Names of Cyties, Townes, Parishes, Hamlets, Howies of Note, and other Remarkables. By the Travayle of John Norden, in the Year M. D. C. X;" we quote as follows:

This Northamptonshire is a most pleasant Shire, adorned both with salutary and profitable Seates, manie and notable Sheepe Pastures, rich feedings for Cattle, fertile Corne Groundes and lardge Feilds greatly enrichinge the industrious Husbandman. No Shire within this Land hath so little waste Grounds, for there is not in a manner anie part thereof, but is turned to some profitable Use. It is very populous, and the Townes, Parishes, yea every Hamlett for the most parte, but most especially the Houses of the Nobilltie most healthfully Scituate in a most pure and pleasant Ayre. The Countrie most comfortable for Travaylers not only in regard of the open perfects which are delightfull to wayfaring Men; But also in regarde of plentie of Townes, Parishes and Villages, which are so univerfallie disperfed, that in every two or three Myles, at the moft, is found a Place of ease to the wearifome Travylour. It lyeth in a plain forme, not Craggie by reafon of extraordinarie high Hills, fells, or Mountaines, though fome afcendings and defcendings theare are, which are no waye to be compared to Mountains, which are common in fome other Partes of this Lande, as Somerfett, Dorfett, Devon, and Cornwall. In this Shire a Travyller maye, in the highwaies as he commonly Travelleth, number in fome Places twenty, at fome Stations thirty, or more Parifhe Churches. And fo much the rather, for that the moft parte of the Steeples in all that Countie are carried very high with a kinde of Spire like unto a Pyramys. The fertilitie, falutarie ayre, pleafant perfpects and conveniencie of this Shire in all things to a generous and noble mynde have fo allured Nobilitie to plante themselves within the fame, that no Shire within this Realme can anfwere the like Number of Noblemen, as are Seated in thofe Partes. Befides thefe her Majeftie hath three ftately Seates within the fame Shire, as, The Honore of Grafton, Collewefton, and Ffotheringhay Caffe.

Theare are alfo Seated within this Shire divers Knights. Befides thefe Barons and Knights, are very many Efquires, the moft of them alfo very pleafingly seated within this Shire. Many other Gentlemen theare are within this Shire, the recytall of whole Names and dwellings, I will omit. No Shire within this Lande is fo plentifullye ftored with Gentry in regarde whearof this Shire may feeme worthy to be termed the Herralds Garden, whearin they may gather fuch varieties of Coates as in fome degree or other match all their Coates in Englande. Manie other Things may be faid, and that not unnecelfarilye touching the further comodious Scituation of this Shire not only in regarde of Profitt but alfo of pleafure. Ffor Hawkinge both on Land and River it will hardly be matched, fuch pleafant Fields and lardge perfpects at will, to view the foaringe Ffawkon, and golden ftreames fo interlaceinge the cheareful Hills and Dales replenifhed with Game of all fortes to delighte the noble Mynde. Deare, Red and Fallowe, both in Parks, Fforefts, and Chafes are fo plentiful as noe one Shire yeeldeth lyke. Theare are three Fforefts within this Shire, as Rockingham Fforeft, White-woode and Sawfy Fforefts whearof your Honor is Custos Ferarum. The Lord Compton hath alfo a Chafe called Yardly Chafe. Theare are Parks greate Store. Her Majeftie hath Grafton, Potteripery, Hartwell, Stoke Bruerne, Moulton, Rockingham, Bridgetoke two Parkes, great and litle, Cliffe Parke, Ffotheringhay Parke, Higham Parke not walled but hedged. Parkes of Noblemen IV. Parkes of Knights V. Parkes of Efquires V. Thus is Northamptonfhire furnifhed with Parkes, Fforefts, and Chaces yealdinge often recreation to the Mynde exercife to the Bodie, and relief to the Table.

Now to call to Mynde fomethinge touchinge the Husbandmans delight, I cannot but wonder to call to Mynde the greate heards of Cattle longinge to every Small Parishe, Village, and Hamlett, which when in my Small Travayle I did behold by such generall multitudes I perfwaded my felfe of an impossibilitie, that so Small Parishes and Places of so slender Accompt could yeeld so great a Number of Kyne and other Cattle such mayne Fflocks of Sheepe and which made me most to marvayle were the greates heards of Swyne, a Beast altogether unprofitable, till he come to the Slaughter. Then his rustie Ribbs in a Frostye Morninge will please the Ploughman, and will so supple his Weatherbeaten Lipps, that his Whipp and his Whistle will hamer out such harmony as will make a Dogge daunce that delights it. But howsoever they be fed, the baser sorte of Men prove wealthie, and wade through the World with good countenance in their calling, least beholden generally to the monied Men of any other Shire whatsoever that I knowe.

Now touchinge the generall ease of the Countrie in regarde of Markett Townes and the apte Scituation of them I thincke it cannot be wished in better sorte then it is, so fittly marshialed and disposed as no Village, Parishe, or Place in the whole Shire is scarcely distant 4 Myles from some one Markett Towne, either in the same Shire, or the next adjoyninge, for the Shire at the broadest Place is not 16 Myles and the Markett Townes are so scattered heare and there to the Number of 12, that fewe Places are above 3 Myles distant from some Markett Towne.

This Shire standeth environed with VIII other Shires, namely Rutlandshire on the North, Lyncolneshire on the North, Northeast. Huntingdonshire East, North-East. Bedfordshire East, South-East. Buckinghamshire South. Oxfordshire South, South-West, Warwickehire West. Leiceisterhire North-West. It is divided into 20 Hundreds, namely. The Hundred of Naffaborowgh, The Hundred of Navesford, Polbroke Hundred, Huckflowe Hundred, Sutton Hundred, Norton Hundred, Towcester Hundred, Warden Hundred, Hanfordhoo Hundred, Newbottle Hundred, Rothwell Hundred, Gylesborough Hundred, Ffalwesley Hundred, Corby Hundred, Willowbrooke Hundred, Orlingbury Hundred, Higham-Ferrers Hundred, Spellowe Hundred, Wymerley Hundred, and Cleyley Hundred. Now it is necessary something to confyder of this Worde Hundred, whence it is derived, and why it is so called. It is called in Latin Centuria, of the number of an Hundred, which of the Saxons was called Hundred. King Alured, when he concluded a Peace with Guthrune a Dane, he seeminge to followe the Councell which Jethro gave to Moyfes, for the more easye Government of the People of Israel, to devyde his Companie into manie Regiments. So did he devyde England into quafdam Satrapias into certaine Provinces, which we call a Shire, cominge of the Word (—) which signifieth to devyde. And therefore the Shire beinge devyded into Centurias, or after the Saxons hundredr as also into Decurias Companies, often Men and the cheife of them was amongst the Romanes Decurio. And the Saxons called such a Company of 10 Men tien man tale. And he that is now called in Northamptonshire a Therdbarow, was of the Saxons called Teohungmon (?) called in the Weft Partes at this Daye a Tythingman. And the Place wheare he ruleth is called a Tythinge, in tyme paft confistinge of 10 Howholders, but nowe more or lesse, and every 10 Tythings made an Hundred whereas nowe tyme hath Altered it. But I thincke the Worde Therdbarowe among the Northamptonshire Men groweth of the Saxon (—) which signifieth a cheefe Pledge or Surety, one that standeth to answere for all such as are within his Tythinge or Barowe. And in tyme paft theife petite and subofficers ended divers and fundrie inferriour Offences comytted within his chardge, being lefte as a Pledge insteede of the Centurio, or Overfeer of the Hundred to redresse the lesser, and to enforce of the Greater Offences. And in theife Daies the Governours of Hundreds are called Conftables, of the Worde Conftabilire, to make fure and Stable whether in prefervation of the Peace, endinge and determininge of Quarrells, or to stoppe effectually whatfoever seemeth to tend to the prejudice of the Comonwealth of his hundred.

This Shire is very well ftored with faire Rivers, Brookes, and Springs, a moft profitable and pleafant Ornament, and wifhed Neighbours to all Inhabitants, amonge which theare are IV principall and cheefe Rivers, the first is diverslye Named, which paffeth through the whole Shire from Davonter in the Weft and South, to Peterborowgh in the North Eafte, and this River is of Mr. Cambden called Avon, but of Pollydore Virgyll, Nyne, and of the Countrymen Nen. It rifeth in 6 or 7 Heads neare unto Davonter, and at Flowre taketh in another braunche which rifeth nere Anderbury Hill; and fo continually meetinge with other Rivers it becometh a greate River.

Theare is another River which is called Weland, which taketh Name of the Parifhe of Weland in Leiceftershire, nere which it rifeth, and this River devydeth Northamptonshire from Leiceftershire and Rutlandshire, as also from Lyncolnefhire.

The third River is Charwell, which devydeth Northamptonshire, and Oxfordefhire, and it taketh Name of Charwelton, wheare it rifeth.

The 4 mayne River is Oufe which runneth by Brackley, and fo environeth a Parte of Northamptonshire at Stoni-Stratford and then runeth through Buckinghamshire, Bedfordshire, and fo into the Ifle of Elye.

To fpeake now fomethinge of the Places of Woode with this Shire, which indeed by the Scarcetie thereof seemeth moft of all to blemishe the Shire, yet many Places are well ftored, as aboute Rockingham, almoft as far as Oundell, and reafonably about Peterborowgh, and heare and theare through the whole Country, but efpecially about Grafton, Whittlewoode, and Saucye Forests.

Nowe for Meadowes and deepe feedings, they are every wheare fo difperft as they seeme to rejoyce the poore Countrieman, nay every Travaylor may rejoyce to fee the Feelds on the Hills above, and the Vallies below, with fuch comly Garments of Corne and Graffe every wheare as David fayth, to rejoyce and finge in regarde of the plentie it Yearly yeeldeth.

Syth then that Northamptonshire yeeldeth fuch varietie from our God, who will not give praife unto our God, that he may give yet more encrease an Hundred Folde? He is able and willinge, oh that we would endeavour, and he would bleffe our labours, our Stocke and Store, and would not suffer any leadinge into Captivitye, nor any complayninge in Northamptonshire.

The cheife Towne in this Shire is Northampton, Northanton, by which Titles it hath bene heartofore knowne, but now only knowne by the Name of Northampton, whence it taketh its Name is sufficiently set downe in the discourse of the Shire. Polidore Virgill fol 37. affirmeth, that Northampton was a Cytie, and called Trinobantum Urbem, the Cytie of Trinobant, but Urbs signifieth not only a Cittie, but also a walled Towne, and although it be noe Cittie it is a walled Towne. And as the said Polidore sayeth, the Countrie People by corruption of Speache, instead of Trinobante, called it Tranton. But I am perswaded, that they that so tooke that, weare greatly deceived, for Trinobantes (as Ptolomey the Egyptian sayeth, with whome agree in that pointe all latter Writers are the Essex and Myddlesex Men. At this Towne of Northampton have bene many memorable Things don, which to declare with brevitye I hope shall not seeme superfluous unto your Honor.

There is a very auncient and memorable Monoument within $\frac{1}{2}$ a Myle of the Towne made in forme of Charinge-Croise, but not so high, whereof some have dreamed, that it should be there erected to demonstrate the Center of England; but I doe not perswade my self that it was the cause of the erection thereof, for that indeed it is not the middle of the Land, it standeth too far towards the South and East, yet might it carry some kynde of culler if England passed not beyond Humber Northward as did Loegrea. But it appeare by auncient Cronicles that the same Monoument with others in divers Places in the Highwaye thence to London were erected by Edward the I. in the 19 Yeare of his Raigne, and in the Yeare of Christ 1290. in memoryall of Elionor his Queene, who died at Hardly neare Lyncolne, from whence she was brought to Northampton, and there rested, in remembrance whereof he caused this Monoument to be erected in that Place from thence the Corpes of the Queene weare carried to Westminster and there interred.

This Towne is a fayre Towne with many fayre old Buildings lardge Streets and a very ample and fayre Markett Place. It is walled aboute with a Wall of Stone but meane of Strength, neare unto the Towne there standeth an auncient Cattle Ruynous. Mathew Parys reporteth that Queene Elionor Mother to Kinge John, being ayded by Huberte Arch-Bishope of Canterbury and the Nobles of the Realme, called a meetinge of all Estates of the Land, and there raied them to take Oth of obedience unto Kinge John her Sonne after the Deathe of Kinge Richard the first, in the Yeare of Christe 1199. but to form a clearer Idea, see the representation of this Towne, hereunto annexed.

Kinge Henry 3. (as reporteth Polidore Virgill) for certaine Riotuous Actions commytted by some of his Barons came to Northampton accompanied with his Lords, Nobles, and Marshall Men and undermined the Wall, made a Breach and entered the Towne and flew divers Men, that had affifted his Rebellious Barons, he tooke Prisoners 15 Barons and 60 Knights (as reporteth Mathew of Weftminster) befids many others of Accompt Anno Chrifti 1264. but other Writers differ from him about the Number.

Theare is neare this Towne in the South-Syde thearof called the new Feilde, betweene Hardingfton and a Place called Samdisford, a fhowe of a Forte or Trench caft up with Diches by Henrie the 6. when he came to Northampton in the Yeare of Chrift 1466. againfte the Earle of Marche and other Rebels, betweene whome was fought a moft cruell Battle, wheare the Kinge was difcomfited and 10000. of his Men flaine and drowned in the River Nen, or as fome call it, Avon.

In the tyme of Kinge Henrie the 2 was a Parliament holden at this Towne, to which came the Kinge of Scottes to conclude a Peace betweene him and the Kinge of England fo Fabian 321.

Alfo theare was a Battle fought neare Northampton betweene the Earle of Pembroke and the Yorkshire Men in the tyme of Edw. IV. where the Earle was difcomfited. Pol. Virgill.

The Schollers of Cambridge in the tyme of Hen. III came to Northampton, entendinge theare to buyld an Univerfitie by confent of the Kinge, but they foon retourned to Cambridge.

Wellingborrow called of fome Wedlingborow, of others, Wenlingborowe ftandeth neare the River Nen or Avon, and is now called Wellingborowe-Forum of the Markett theare, as in the Countrie of Dorfett theare is Blandford-Forum. It may be thought that the Name of that fhould be Wellingborowe fo given in regarde of the Springs that rife in many Places in, and neare the Towne. It is faid that fome Part thearof fometimes belonged to the Duchy of Lancaster. But now the whole Towne, as I am enformed, belongeth unto your Honor.

Thus my Right Honorable Good Lord havinge breiefely runn over Northamptonshire, which for wante of Tyme and fitt Opportunitie is not fo thoroughly Performed, as I perhaps may hereafter doe, I befecche you accepte hearof, untill better Oppertunetie be offered to Accomplishe the Rest.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN TAYLOR FRENCH

The Trenton, N. J., "Emporium" of November 26th, 1831, contained the following:

"Departed this life on the 21st inst., in the 48th year of his age, Mr. John French. On the day following his remains were interred in the Burying Ground of the Baptist Church at Bloomsbury (N. J.), attended by a large and respectable number of friends. His approved integrity, amiable and upright deportment, kind and affectionate heart, manifested especially toward an aged and infirm mother, a sister and orphan children of a deceased brother, whose dependence was entirely upon him for support, with engaging and pleasing manners, in general won the esteem of all who knew him. He fulfilled, with correctness and fidelity, the responsible office of first clerk of the State Prison for upwards of four and twenty years with great acceptability and satisfaction to the State. He has left an affectionate consort and three small children."

The accompanying picture of the French homestead at Lamberton, N. J., now a part of Trenton, is reproduced from a pen and ink drawing, from memory, by John Taylor French, Jr. [477b], who was born and lived there until the death of his father in 1831, when he came with his mother to Philadelphia. Rachel Rickey French [264] sister of John Taylor French [260] conducted a school in this house for many years. There is every reason to believe that it had also been the home of William [111] and Rachel (Rickey) French, father and mother of John Taylor French.

CHRIST CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA

Hallowed by sacred and national associations covering two centuries, this historic place appeals to the hearts of passing generations of American citizens. Coexistent with the first Friends' societies in Pennsylvania, its beneficent influence extended throughout the colony. During critical periods in colonial and national life it has been a center of abiding interest. Hither have reverently come sober-minded leaders of public thought, bearing the burdens of responsibility and earnestly seeking divine guidance and help. Men of wonderful gifts and power, personal exemplars of the higher life, of supreme devotion to duty, exalted purpose and lofty patriotism, have led deeply moved multitudes in prayer and praise and meditation and fulfilled their great mission with unwearied and unselfish zeal.

Here attended the Continental Congress, shortly after the battle of Lexington, in 1775. Again many members came at the close of the great struggle for national liberty, to give heartfelt thanks. Here the wisest and best of those delegated to frame a federal constitution sought wisdom and strength. The first president, after the removal of the federal government from New York, for seven years was a regular worshipper, and his successor likewise, until the capital was located in Washington. The first general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America met here, few in numbers but strong in faith and spirit, laying broad the foundations and sending forth the revised book of prayer and service. For over sixty years Rev. William White faithfully served here, first as a youthful assistant minister, then the watchful father of his always loving flock and for half a century as the revered counsellor and bishop, active and zealous until almost the last hour of a life reaching within sight of four score and ten.

Christ Church parish was organized and the first building erected in 1695. Passing years brought increased membership and imperative need of enlargement. With prophetic vision the future was provided for, the result being the solid and handsome structure which has met every requirement since 1744. The tower was completed about ten years later, with its sweet chime of bells bought in England at a relative cost today of about $15,000, and which have sent forth their inspiring notes without interruption, save during the British occupancy of Philadelphia, 1777-78, when they were removed to prevent possible destruction. For many years the rich tones of the bells were heard every Tuesday and Friday evening preceding market days, and were beloved by the residents of Philadelphia and the adjacent districts. It became the habit of many of the farmers to come to the city early the evenings before market days to hear the sweet music of the chimes. This custom, unfortunately, ceased with the passing away of old Philadelphia. For more than a century the bells were rung upon almost every special occasion of public rejoicing, and the great bell tolled when leading citizens were buried. Thus many notable events in American history were observed, from the Declaration of Independence to the memorable obsequies of Abraham Lincoln. The bricks used in the construction of the church were brought from England; the splendid columns were made from giant trees of the American forest. The beautiful brass candelabra was purchased in London in 1744. The pulpit dates from 1770. Sacred vessels have been constantly in use for fully two hundred years, those presented by Queen Anne, in 1708, during late years being used only on Easter Sunday. Many impressive and artistic memorials are in place, the window in the east end being a tribute of the generation just passed to Bishop White, whose remains rest beneath the chancel. The coat of arms of Great Britain, which was placed above the pew occupied by the colonial governors, is preserved in the rector's room. The unique ancient baptismal font contains a silver bowl presented in 1712.

The parish records, written with great care, are safely kept in a fire-proof vault beneath the tower. Within the church, in the adjoining yard and the larger sacred reservation a short distance away, lie representatives of nearly all the noted colonial families. This part of "God's acre" has thus far not been trespassed upon by the iconoclastic spirit of the time. As a shrine for reverent-minded pilgrims Christ Church possesses an abiding interest. Through its open doors daily pass many people, and numberless prayers have silently ascended from lone worshippers and little companies of religious visitors, regardless of sect, creed or race. All are welcome, questions are courteously answered and places of special interest, like the Washington and Franklin pews, pointed out. Over all pervades the spirit of peace, calmness and faith. The original of accompanying picture was made in 1789.

CHRISTIANA — “AUNT KITTY” — FRENCH

Christiana (Slim) French attained celebrity as the oldest person recorded in the history of Moorestown, New Jersey, having reached the age of 103 years at the time of her death, in 1897. Her centennial birthday, August 1, 1894 was an occasion of great public interest, all classes of the community uniting in the celebration. Church and fire bells were rung, the local brass band furnished music and a great number of persons, many from a distance, extended hearty congratulations; “Aunt Kitty,” as she was long known, cordially greeting every one, displaying wonderful endurance and manifesting great enjoyment. The life-like picture herewith given was taken during the day, and that of her long-time home at about the same time. Throughout her long life she possessed remarkable health, and looked closely after her affairs. For more than forty years she never took medicine and during her last illness, which was a general decline of vital powers, it was needful to resort to strategem to secure the kindly administration of stimulants. In her will, which was made in her 92nd year, she divided her estate between the two children then living, after the payment of a legacy of $50 each to nine grandchildren.

Joseph French [273] after his marriage to Christiana Slim, in 1815, engaged in the then infant industry of raising shade and fruit trees, establishing what became known as Fairview Nurseries, in West Moorestown. He prospered greatly, and a short time before his death, in 1825, built the house in which his widow lived for over seventy years. He died intestate and his estate was administered by his father-in-law, Samuel Slim. An inventory of personal property taken, February 10, 1825, by Peter Slim and Wm. Stiles, appraisers, showed a valuation of $2,206.54. His surviving associate, John Perkins, formed a partnership with Edward French [559] and they bought the nurseries and conducted the business for many years. John Perkins married Anna Evans [554], granddaughter of Edward French [121].

Jacob R. French [530] when quite a young man left his home in Gloucester county, New Jersey, and journeyed to the West, settling in California in 1848. From there he went to Oregon and took up a government claim of some 300 acres, establishing his home near Bethany, Oregon, about eight miles from Portland. He had two daughters who married and resided in the same vicinity. In 1894, some years after the decease of his wife, he came east for the purpose of visiting his relatives, few of whom he found living, and these few failed to recognize him. Grieved and disappointed he returned to Oregon, and soon thereafter failing health prompted him to take a sea voyage to the Sandwich Islands. He died, however, on the return trip and was buried in the Pacific Ocean.

ANCESTRY OF SAMUEL HILLMAN.

John Hillman came from England to America as one of the pioneers of West Jersey. In 1697 he bought of Francis Collins 170 acres of land in Gloucester (now Camden) county, near the future site of Haddonfield, and settled there, this property having been originally "the surveyed fourth of ye share or proportion of land appertaining to 4/7 of the propriety of ye said Francis Collins purchased of Edward Bylling and dated 2nd of June 1677." The log house of John Hillman was for a time a wayside inn, on the road to Egg Harbor. He died in 1729 and by will dated July 5th, 1707, and proved May 5th, 1729, he made the following bequests:

"To my trusty and well beloved wife, Margaret, all my estate, both real and personal, untill my children shall attain to ye age of one and twenty years and afterwards as I shall how appoint.

To son Daniel 100 acres of land which I purchased of William Sharp, with all improvements thereon, to enter thereon when he shall attain ye age of one and twenty years, excepting one third thereof unto his mother during her life.

To son John this plantation on which I now live which I purchased of Francis Collins, containing 170 acres of land, with all improvements thereon, he to enter thereon immediately after ye decease of his mother, it to remain hers during life.

To daughter Ann a two year old heiffer, when she shall attain ye age of one and twenty years.

To daughter Abigail one yearling heiffer when she shall attain ye age of one and twenty years.

To my wife Margaret all ye remainder of my personal estate, household stuff, goods, chattels whatsoever unto her disposing forever."

In 1745 John Hillman, Jr., purchased from Thomas Atkinson, 500 acres of land near White Horse tavern, and extending from the south branch of Cooper's Creek to the north branch of Timber Creek. He built thereon a house in which he lived during the remainder of his life. There was a saw mill on this tract, and for many years John Hillman, Jr., and his sons worked at clearing up the forest. In 1751, he purchased 100 acres adjoining. He died in 1764, and by will dated June 29th, 1764, proved July 18th, 1764, he devised his holdings as follows:

"To my beloved wife Elizabeth one third part of my personal estate and one third part of the saw mill and homestead place.

To my son Joab all that tract of land lying on the south branch of Coopers Creek where Solomon Eldridge now lives and one third part of saw mill.

To my son Josiah all that plantation and tract of land the homestead, with the grist mill and one third part of saw mill.

To my son Daniel 100 acres of land bought of John Mickle, Sheriff, of the property of Mahlon Southwick.

To my two grandsons, James and Joseph Hillman, all that tract of land which I bought of Henry Woodrow, 194 acres, to be equally divided between them.

To my son Josiah one third part of my personal estate, the other one third not yet disposed of to be equally divided between my three sons, Joab, Joseph and Daniel."

In 1782 John Hillman, a descendant of the pioneer John Hillman, presumably through his son Daniel, was in possession of a tract of land near Almonesson, N. J., on Timber Creek, and in 1798 this property became the homestead of Francis French [116].

Joab Hillman, son of John, Jr., and Elizabeth Hillman, was born October 23rd, 1725. He married, first, "Litisha" Cheeseman, license dated March 7th, 1748. She was born August 29th, 1728. They had three children, Sarah, born April 15th, 1750; James, born March 22nd, 1755; Joseph, born June 8th, 1757. Joab Hillman married, second, Mary Matlack, daughter of John and Mary Matlack and granddaughter of the pioneer William Matlack, license dated April 18th, 1761. They had children, Elizabeth, born July 5th, 1762; Sarah, born August 18th, 1764; Mary, born November 14th, 1766; John, born February 15th, 1768; William, born November 14th, 1771; Ephraim, born July 1st, 1773, died July 14th, 1845; Joab, Jr., born December 2nd, 1775. Joab Hillman died intestate in 1776, and his estate was administered by Josiah Hillman; Isaac and Ephraim Tomlinson, appraisers; inventory £149, 11s, 3d. The following advertisement appeared in a newspaper of July 29th, 1766:

"Run away from Joab Hillman, the 4th inst. July, an Irish Servant Lad, named Bryan Maquod, about 20 Years of Age, about 5 Feet 2 Inches high, has a Defect in his Left Eye, and black curled Hair; had on when he went away, Ozenbrigs Shirt and Trowsers, Brass Buckles in his Shoes, an old Felt Hat, and an old green Jacket. Whoever takes up and secures said Lad in any Goal, so that the Owner may have him again, shall receive Forty Shillings Reward, and all reasonable Charges, paid by Joab Hilman, living in Newtown, Gloucester County, New Jersey, about 7 Miles from Cooper's Ferry."

Ephraim Hillman, sixth child and third son of Joab and Mary (Matlack) Hillman, married in 1776 Elizabeth Crawford, born October 9th, 1777, died October 2nd, 1868. They were the parents of Samuel Hillman, who in 1822, married Keziah French [281].

Joseph French [285] second son of Edward [121], upon reaching his majority was apparently placed in charge of a farm of 105 acres which he conducted for some years and which was afterward conveyed to him by his father, in 1821, as his share of the paternal estate. This land, located on the north side of the Camden and Moorestown road, west Moorestown, comprised part of the "deed of gift" of Thomas French, progenitor, to his son Thomas, in 1694. Joseph French, like his father and other members of the family, took an interest in public affairs of Chester township. He served as overseer of highways in 1811-13-18. Dying intestate, in 1822, his estate was administered by his widow, Elizabeth French, and Stokes Haines. The farm was sold by the administrators and some 60 acres, including the dwelling, became the property of his son Edward [559]. An inventory of personal property, taken 2d mo. 5th, 1822, showed a valuation of $1,125.12.

CHARLES HAINES FRENCH

Charles Haines French, youngest son of Edward [121], was a man of ability and influence. With his brother-in-law, Jacob Borton, he was made an executor of his father's will, under which he inherited the homestead farm, near West Moorestown, of over 200 acres, subject to numerous legacies. He discharged this trust with intelligence and fidelity, being called upon to sacrifice practically all of his patrimony, in order to meet requirements of the will and other unexpected obligations. Edward French was a liberal-minded man and often served others in a most generous way. Sometime after his death there was grievous default on the part of certain persons for whom he had become bondsman. These unpaid obligations were presented to Charles as executor and he manfully shouldered the burden, although it stripped him of all that had come to him from his father's estate. Meanwhile he had bought a farm, near Marlton, but soon disposed of it and entered upon other lines of business. He removed to Berlin, then Gloucester county, and became a practical surveyor. He took an active and efficient interest in public affairs. He was made justice of the peace and became lay Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1833, 1838 and 1843, and also served as a member of the Legislature in 1842. When the county was divided he served as lay Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Camden county during part of 1848, the year of his death.

Charles Haines French was noted for his hospitality and generosity. He was always ready to help others and the settlement of his affairs by his sons brought to light some curious facts. In the inventory of his small estate the item "book accounts," i. e., monies due, exceeded the value of all his other resources. He gave his services freely as surveyor and thus aided land owners who did not always remember their obligations to him. His work in this connection was regarded as particularly reliable and included many large estates. He took great interest and pride in the early history of the descendants of Thomas French, progenitor, collecting and preserving many valuable papers and threads of family history, including the 300 acre "deed of gift" from Thomas [1] to Thomas French, Jr., in 1694. Had his resources in later life been equal to his zealous desires, he would doubtless have contributed still further to the solution of genealogical problems which may now never be solved. Charles Haines French played well and honorably his part in the battle of life.

MOUNT HOLLY MONTHLY MEETING.

The colonial settlement on the Northampton, or Rancocas, river, which was first called Bridgetown and later Mount Holly, was founded in 1681, by John Cripps, who came to Burlington in the ship Kent, in 1677. Daniel Leeds surveyed for him 300 acres and later 200 acres additional, which comprised the site of the future county seat of Burlington. The line of this survey is quaintly described as running "through a swamp, wherein grows store of Holley and within said Tract is a mountaine to which the Province East, South and West and North send a beautiful aspect named by the owner thereof Mount Holley." Cripps was greatly pleased with his purchase and the colonial prospect in general, as is shown by his letters to friends in "old England." He died in 1687, but his descendants worthily carried out his plans as a pioneer. His son Nathaniel, about 1700, gave ground for the first Friends' Meeting House, and his grandson, Samuel, in 1784, gave land for a Friends' burial ground. The location, in both instances, was on Wood lane near the mount. The first meeting house was a small frame structure, but it stood for three quarters of a century. In the beginning meetings were held at private houses. In 1775 a two-acre lot, at what is now the corner of High and Garden Streets, was bought of Rev. John Brainerd. A new graveyard was set apart and the first story of the present brick meeting house built. During the Revolutionary struggle this building became historic. It was alternately occupied by the contending armies and evidence of rough usage is shown by marks made by cleavers and guns on benches and floors, visible to this day. Friends, however, continued to hold stated meetings without interference.

During the yellow fever epidemic in Philadelphia, in 1793, the peaceful quiet of the village was again disturbed by the invasion of many terror stricken refugees, the most reckless being the French-American contingent. Stephen Girard at one time kept a little store on Mill Street. What is believed to have been the first free school in New Jersey was established in Mount Holly by Friends about 1759. The school house then erected is still standing. The Relief Fire Company, one of the oldest in the country, was organized in 1752. In 1850 the meeting house was remodelled and enlarged, the second story being added. The Monthly Meeting is the custodian of complete and valuable records from 1676 to the present time. An interesting relic, still carefully preserved, is the marriage certificate of William Boen and his wife "Dido," bearing date 1763, and containing the names of many Friends as witnesses. Both were slaves, but were given freedom upon marriage and received as members of the Society of Friends. Their future conduct was so exemplary that upon the death of William, in 1829, in his 90th year, the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting adopted a memorial concerning him. Mount Holly Monthly Meeting has always had a large membership. For seven generations this community has been noted as a center of activity and influence in the Society of Friends. Orthodox Friends' Meeting House, built in 1832, is on Buttonwood Street.

JOSIAH ROBERTS

Josiah Roberts, who married Mary French, only child of Robert [131] and Hannah (Warrington) French, was the sixth child and fourth son of Joseph and Susannah (Coles) Roberts, who were married in 1771. Susannah Coles was the daughter of Kendal and Ann (Budd) Coles. She was born 10th mo. 3rd, 1751, and died 9th mo. 29th, 1828. Joseph Roberts, born 7th mo. 8th, 1742, died 2nd mo. 22nd, 1826, was the son of Joshua and Rebecca (Stokes) Roberts, who were married 10th mo. 3rd, 1741. Rebecca Stokes was the daughter of Joseph and Judith (Lippincott) Stokes, and was born 1st mo. 28th, 1720. Joshua Roberts was the son of John and Mary (Elkinton) Roberts, who were married 1st mo. 27th, 1712. Mary Elkinton was the daughter of George and Mary Elkinton, and died 2nd mo. 11th, 1759. John Roberts, born 1st mo. 4th, 1694, died 9th mo. 9th, 1747, was the son of John and Sarah Roberts, the progenitors of that family in Burlington county. Thomas Ollive, representing the proprietors, deeded to John Roberts of Overstone, Northamptonshire, England, February 26, 1676-7, one sixteenth of a share of West Jersey, and John and Sarah Roberts first located on the north side of Rancocas creek, their pioneer home tract adjoining that of Thomas French [1]. Five years later, in 1682, John Roberts joined with Timothy Hancock and William Matlack in purchasing a large tract of land on the Pensaukin creek, the Roberts' survey calling for 267 acres. And in 1684, the purchasers entered into a covenant with the neighboring Indians, whereby through their chief, Tallaca, they released all claim to "those plantations at Pensaukin, promising forever to defend the said John Roberts, &c, from all other Indians laying any claim thereto." These plantations became the center of a thriving community, being about one and a half miles from the future village of Moorestown. In 1898 the descendants of John and Sarah Roberts erected near the site of their colonial home a stone memorial, fittingly inscribed, which stands on the south side of the Camden and Moorestown pike, at the crossing of the Pensaukin.

Sarah Roberts was the first woman to assume responsibility as a taxpayer in Chester township, she signing the corporation agreement, in 1696. In 1700 she became a trustee for the purchase of ground for the first Friends' meeting house and burial ground in Moorestown. From such a vigorous ancestral line Josiah Roberts inherited superior mental and personal qualities. His educational opportunities were limited by the meager facilities of the time, but through self-culture and the development of his gifts of thought and composition, he came to occupy a useful and enviable place in the community. He was much interested in educational and literary matters, in which he was heartily seconded by his wife. A reliable friend, a thorough business man, an influential citizen of enlarged and benevolent views, he was respected and beloved wherever known. The late Elisha Roberts, of Moorestown, his nephew, had a vivid recollection of his many attractive characteristics. Isaac T. Hopper, an esteemed friend, regarded him as one of the most gifted men he ever knew.

Josiah Roberts lived in Evesham Township, Burlington Co., at the time of his death in 1841. His will, dated 10th mo. 4th, and proved 11th mo. 17th, 1841, gave to his wife Mary, $1,500, $400 yearly, and a home in the house he occupied during her life or widowhood. Sufficient lands were to be sold to pay outstanding debts, remainder of real estate to be divided equally among his children, viz.: Hannah, wife of Reuben Roberts, Robert F. Roberts, George Roberts and Josiah Roberts. Executors, wife, Mary Roberts, and son, Robert F. Roberts. An inventory, taken 11th mo. 15th, 1841, by Elisha Hunt and Richard M. Hugg, appraisers, showed personal property to the amount of $4,498. Josiah and Mary (French) Roberts were active members of Moorestown Monthly Meeting, and likewise took much interest in the establishment and maintenance of the school founded by the Hicksite branch of Friends after the separation, in 1828. They were appointed on committees of visitation and superintendence. Both are buried in Friends' Burying Ground, Moorestown, N. J.

JOSEPH FRENCH

Joseph French [322], son of James and Sarah (Ferguson) French, while a young man and living in Burlington County, N. J., learned the trade of shoemaking. Shortly after his marriage to Martha Newton, in 1804, he journeyed to western Pennsylvania and located in Beaver County, at what is now Beaver Falls. Here he established himself in the manufacture of shoes, giving employment to a number of persons. Eight years later he removed to Beaver and extended his operations in the same line, continuing this industry successfully throughout the remainder of his life. Soon after locating in Beaver, he purchased an attractive residence at the southeast corner of Elk and Second Streets, where he and his wife lived until their death. He was for many years one of the leading citizens of that section, being actively interested in religious and charitable work. He also gave much profitable attention to agriculture, conducting several farms. He was regarded as an energetic and progressive man, and accumulated a considerable estate. A numerous family grew up around him, and he had a large circle of acquaintances and friends among all classes, by whom he was greatly beloved. His death, April 2nd, 1847, caused extended sorrow; and eleven years later, June 17th, 1858, his wife, likewise highly esteemed, passed peacefully away. Family records state: "Grandfather and grandmother [Joseph and Martha French] were noted for their honesty, kindness and upright dealings with all mankind. Grandmother came of Quaker parents, and was much loved and respected by all. Grandfather was a very fine looking man, very tall and straight. They were great workers in the Methodist Church."

Records in the possession of the descendants of Isaac and Ann (Hollingshead) Wilkins (daughter of Hugh and Eleanor (French) Hollingshead), seem to indicate that the name in this branch of the family was spelled Hollinshead. Other descendants of Hugh and Eleanor (French) Hollingshead have retained the "g." The spelling of the name has been more or less variable since the settlement in this country of the pioneer John Hollinshead—Holinshead, Hollinghead, Hollingshead.

ANCESTRY OF MARY (INSKEEP) BRICK

The Inskeep family were among the early settlers of west New Jersey, although not of the first adventurers. The progenitor, John Inskeep, son of John, with his wife Mary, sons John, James and Joseph, and daughter Mary, came from Staffordshire, England, in 1708, and settled near the present village of Marlton, Camden (formerly Gloucester) county, taking up an extensive tract of land. From the time of his emigration to this country until his death in 1729, the pioneer, John Inskeep, bought and sold large tracts of land in Burlington and Gloucester counties; and he owned for a time the tract along the south branch of Pensaukin creek, a part of which, in 1747, became the plantation homestead of Charles French, Jr. [42], and his son Charles [143]. That John Inskeep was a man of education, superior mental qualities and pronounced strength of character is evidenced by the influence that he soon exerted in the affairs of the colony and the public positions which he held. He was justice of the peace during 1713-1714-1715, and held minor offices for Waterford township from 1716 to 1723 inclusive, excepting 1719—surveyor of roads, one of the freeholders, assessor, foreman of the grand jury, etc.; Judge of the Quarter Sessions and Court of Common Pleas of Gloucester county from 1724 until the time of his death. By his will, dated November 11th, 1729, and proved January 12th, 1729, he devised to his son John 215 acres of land in Evesham township, Burlington county, where John then lived. To Joseph and Abraham (the latter then under age), was left the homestead property—Joseph to receive 300 acres, "one feather-bed and furniture at his mother's discretion, a pair of oxen, 2 cows, all the husbandry utensils, riding mare, and negro boy Ishmael"; Abraham to receive the remaining portion of the homestead property after his brother Joseph's 300 acres were carefully laid out. To James was given 5 shillings, and the mare called "Tib," he having been previously established in Burlington, by his father, in the business of weaving. To the daughter Mary, who married William Heulings, was given a negro girl "Jenny" and £50 to be paid by her brother, Joseph. To the wife, Mary, was left the balance of personal estate, and the negro woman called "Hannah"; and if "son Joseph marry and bring a wife to this plantation he shall pay his mother £5 a year during her life." Wife Mary and son John were appointed executors, and they were authorized to sell several hundred acres of land.

Abraham, youngest child of John and Mary Inskeep, born 4th mo. 18th, 1712, in New Jersey, married 1740, Sarah, daughter of George Ward. They had the following children: Hannah, born 10th mo. 23rd, 1741; Esther, born 7th mo. 17th, 1743, died 1748; Elizabeth, born 6th mo. 15th, 1745, died 9th mo. 9th, 1775, married 1765, Samuel Tonkins; Sarah, born 1st mo. 4th, 1747, married 10th mo. 20th, 1764, Thomas Stokes; Sabilla, born 5th mo. 12th, 1750, married John Tonkins; Abraham, Jr., born 5th mo. 6th, 1752; Priscilla, born 2nd mo. 2nd, 1755, married 1773, Benjamin Pine; John, born 1st mo. 29th, 1757; Joseph, born 10th mo. 4th, 1759, died 10th mo. 15th, 1793, married 10th mo. 14th, 1790, Susanna Bennett; George, born 12th mo. 13th, 1761, died 9th mo. 15th, 1763; Hope, born 8th mo. 14th, 1763.

By will dated April 1st, 1732, proved April 26th, 1732, Joseph Inskeep, third son of John and Mary Inskeep, devised to his "brother Abraham Inskeep my plantation together with all buildings and improvements to him his heirs and assigns forever." This devise placed Abraham in possession and ownership of the homestead property, and he occupied the dwelling in which his father had died. Abraham conducted successfully for a number of years in Waterford township an extensive blacksmith and wheelwright business. He died 1st mo. 16th, 1780; and by will dated January 1st, 1780, and proved January 27th, 1780, made the following bequests: To his wife Sarah, 1 cow; bed and furniture, etc.; "and owing to unsettled and fluctuating state of our currency cannot settle on any particular sum, and leave it to son Abraham and wife to settle it each year, &c. during her widowhood." To Abraham, Jr., was bequeathed the part of the plantation where he then lived; to Joseph, the homestead plantation, 2 working horses, a colt called "Sportsman," 2 cows, etc., and the blacksmithing tools. To these two sons jointly was bequeathed their father's cedar swamp and pine lands lying on a branch of Egg Harbor river called the "4 mile branch." Among sons John, Abraham, Jr., and Joseph, the father's wearing apparel was to be divided equally. And among daughters, Hannah Inskeep, Sarah Stokes, Priscilla Pine, son John, and daughter Sabilla Tonkins' four children, was to be divided in equal parts the proceeds of sale of balance of personal estate. By codicil dated January 13th, 1780, son John was to have "apprentice boy George Sasman to serve him during the rest of his apprenticeship." Sons John and Abraham, Jr., were appointed executors.

Abraham Inskeep, Jr., eldest son and sixth child of Abraham and Sarah (Ward) Inskeep was born 5th mo. 6th, 1752, and married Hannah (Stokes) Hopkins, widow of Haddon Hopkins, and daughter of Joshua and Amy Stokes. They had three children: Sarah, born 9th mo. 5th, 1773, died 1st mo. 22nd, 1855, married 1799, Joseph Powell Rogers; Mary, married William Brick; Joseph, born 3rd mo. 12th, 1788, died 1st mo. 28th, 1847, married 3rd mo. 12th, 1812, Rachel Kay.

On April 23rd, 1785, Joseph Inskeep, the youngest living son of Abraham, Sr., and Sarah (Ward) Inskeep, conveyed to his brother, Abraham Inskeep, Jr., the share of the home plantation which he had inherited from his father, thus placing the second Abraham in possession of the property on which had dwelt his grandfather, John Inskeep, at the time of his death in 1729. This property has now passed entirely out of the family.

Abraham Inskeep, Jr., was a man of strong character, and of marked influence in the community. He served as justice of the peace and later as lay Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, 1796, 1806 and 1812. At the time of his death, which occurred July 17th, 1820, the "Herald and Farmer," a newspaper published in Woodbury, N. J., thus referred to him:

"Died, on the 17th inst. at his residence in this county, after a lingering illness borne with exemplary patience and resignation, Abraham Inskeep, Esq., in the 69th year of his age. The death of this distinguished citizen will long be lamented, and his memory cherished with feelings of no common interest, not only as an upright magistrate, but for his practical virtue and usefulness."

He survived his wife several years. By will dated April 16th, 1820, and proved August 1st, 1820, he devised to his daughters, Sarah Rogers and Mary Brick, in equal shares, his tract of land and cedar swamp on a branch of the Egg Harbor river called "the 4 mile branch." His executors, who were sons-in-law Joseph P. Rogers and William Brick, were directed to sell the home plantation and residue of real and personal estate not otherwise disposed of; and after the payment of all debts and legacies, the residue was to be divided into four equal parts, one fourth to Sarah Rogers, one fourth to Mary Brick, one fourth to son Joseph, one fourth to grandchildren Sarah Ann Rogers, Joseph Brick and John Ray Inskeep. To son-in-law Joseph Rogers was bequeathed $300, "to compensate him for sundry services rendered me." An inventory of personal property, taken July 31st, 1820, showed a valuation of $2,000.

As illustrating one of the usages of the early settlers, noted also in the case of Thomas French, progenitor, the following paragraph in the will of Abraham Inskeep, Jr., is of special interest:

"I hereby order and direct my Executors before the sale of this my plantation to put the fence Round the family burial ground in good Repair and enjoin it on the Purchaser of this my Plantation and his Afsigns in a legal way always to keep the said burial ground in decent Repair and to Sufer and permit a Pafsage to and from the Same at the funerals of persons there admitted to be interred."

This small isolated graveyard, some fifty feet square, is located about one mile west of Marlton, N. J.; and though the graves are now overrun with briars, and a number of stones broken and out of place, it is still surrounded by a substantial fence, and a few stones remain to mark the resting place of the pioneer, John Inskeep, who died December 15th, 1729, and some of his descendants. Through all the mutations of ownership, this family burial ground has been carefully maintained and the places of interment preserved.

John Inskeep, brother of Abraham Inskeep, Jr., and second son of Abraham and Sarah (Ward) Inskeep, was born 1st mo. 29th, 1757, married 1st mo. 22nd, 1778, Sarah Hulings, died 12th mo. 18th, 1834, buried in Christ Church Graveyard, Philadelphia. He served over four years in the Continental battalions of New Jersey during the Revolution, as private, commissary, quartermaster and lieutenant. About 1785 he removed to Philadelphia and became a successful china and glassware merchant. He was chosen Mayor in 1800 and again in 1805, and served as associate Judge of the Common Pleas Court 1802-05. In 1806 he was elected president of the Insurance Company of North America, retaining that place until failing health compelled him to retire, in 1831.

The Inskeep family were active in the membership and work of the Episcopal Church, and for many years they occupied a prominent place in the business community of Gloucester and Burlington counties. They were owners of extensive tracts of timber land, and the preparation of lumber for various requirements seemed to become an hereditary trait.

URIAH FRENCH

Uriah French [353], eldest son and child of Samuel [141] and Sarah (Heulings) French, for some years directed the operations of his father's saw mill property and the farm connected therewith, located a short distance west of the main road leading from Mullica Hill to Ewanville, now Harrison township, Gloucester county, N. J. Though inheriting this property, 115 acres and saw mill, from his father, in 1814, he sold it within the same year to his uncle, Charles French [143]. Uriah owned other property in the neighborhood, which he did not dispose of until 1817, about which time he removed to Swedesboro, to engage in mercantile business. The saw mill estate was sold by the executors of Charles French, in 1835, to his son-in-law, Gilbert Page, of Moorestown. During the next forty years it changed hands many times, the present owner purchasing it in 1877.

This pioneer mill, located in the midst of a great woodland, along Raccoon creek, was one of the first in South Jersey and did service for more than one hundred years, being dismantled about thirty years ago. Its lonely ruins are covered by a thick growth of trees, vines and underbrush. Part of the original forebay, through which the water passed to the big wheel that furnished the power to run the great saw, is still visible. The mill race is clearly outlined in part, the whole comprising a wierd and intensely interesting spot to those familiar with its history, suggestive of the creeping folklore of chimney-corner days. All the great trees that once stood guard over the beautiful valley and hillside are gone, yet the site is picturesque and impressive, as the accompanying picture shows.

A Swedish map published in 1654 shows a settlement near the mouth of Raccoon creek, where Swedesboro afterwards was located. Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, a rude log structure, was built in 1704, close to the landing, being surrounded by a strong stone wall. The ground adjacent was assigned by the Swedish home government to the church, but such simple methods of settlement prevailed, with nominal ground rents, that this patrimony now only yields a revenue of about sixty dollars a year, although the real estate concerned embraces the business and residence heart of a thriving town and is of great value. In 1784 the present fine brick church was built (see illustration), it coming within control of the Protestant Episcopal Church about one hundred years ago. Old records are carefully preserved and there is a silver communion service bearing date 1731. Several beautiful trees of great age adorn the grounds.

Directly opposite the site of the old log church, beside the creek, a large brick house, with commodious wareroom basement, for commercial purposes, was built, about 1784, by David Harker, being owned by him until 1806, and by his son until 1827. This building, as the accompanying illustration shows, is in an excellent state of preservation. Hither came Uriah French, about 1817, establishing himself as a merchant and continuing the business until shortly before his death, in 1825. The main retail store occupied the west end of the first floor, which plainly shows the effects of long usage. A wharf, a few feet from the basement door, afforded needful facilities for the receipt and shipment of goods. This property has changed owners many times within the past one hundred years. It is subject to an irredeemable ground rent of five dollars a year, held by Trinity Church since 1704. After her husband's death Mary (Ivins) French removed to the vicinity of Mullica Hill, where she resided the remainder of her life.

ANCESTRY OF MARY (IVINS) FRENCH

The Ivins family were among the early settlers of Long Island, whence they joined the movement to East Jersey, about 1690. A few years later they located in Burlington county, West Jersey, while subsequent generations were prosperous and influential residents of Salem and Gloucester counties, and also of Bucks county, Pennsylvania. In 1711 Isaac Ivins, of Mansfield township, Burlington county, married Sarah Johnson. A second wife was Lydia Brown, daughter of Preserve Brown, Sr., and upon her death he married Ann ———. His children were, Isaac, Jr., who married, first, 1737, Mary Hopkins; second, 1771, Ann Curtis, widow; Moses, married about 1752, Keziah Shreve [103]; Joseph, married 1741, Hannah Everingham; Ann, born 1732, married, first, 1748, Levi Nutt; second, 1769, Hugh Hutchins; Diademia, born 1734, married 1753, John Thorn, Jr.; Aaron, married 1764, Ann Cheshire; and probably Thomas, Sarah, William, Solomon and Lydia.

Isaac Ivins was for half a century one of the noted residents of his section. He kept a general store and trading post at Georgetown, Burlington Co., which was the resort of the trapper Indians as well as white hunters. Quarrels were frequent and the storekeeper's peace officer was a fierce monkey, which speedily put the rioters to flight. Isaac Ivins lived to a great age and accumulated a considerable estate. He died in 1768, and by will dated July 19th, 1767, and proved July 11th, 1768, he made the following bequests:

"I give and bequeath to Ann my well beloved Wife all the Household Goods of every kind that was hers when I married her, and likewise Fifteen pounds.

Residue of estate unto my well beloved Children that shall be living at the time of my Decease.

My well beloved Son Joseph Ivins, and my Son in Law John Thorn Executors of this my Last Will and Testament."

Only a partial list of the children of Isaac Ivins, Jr., and his wife, Mary Hopkins, seems to be available, namely; Samuel, Mary, Aaron, a daughter who married John Robbins, Barzillai, Isaac (3rd).

Isaac Ivins, Jr., was overseer of roads and surveyor of highways for Chesterfield township in 1744-46, and constable 1749; and the township records contain the following note:

1744 It was ordered at this Towns meeting that Burgas Hall and Isaac Ivins, Jr., overseers of ye highways should each make A Book and keep account of all persons that do work on ye road and such necklects to cum and make A report of ye saim the next towns meeting to the next overseers and then they shall bring in the cost of that Book and shall be paid by the order of ye said town. Early Friends in Salem County, New Jersey, about 1725, organized a society afterwards known as Pilesgrove Meeting, being subject to Salem Monthly Meeting. In 1785 the large brick meeting house herewith reproduced was built in Woodstown. In 1794 a Monthly Meeting was set up. In 1849 the meeting house was enlarged by an addition of 16 feet to its length. The society has always been in a flourishing condition and descendants of pioneer Friends in that locality have been amongst the most influential members of the community for several generations. At the time of the separation, in 1827, the followers of Elias Hicks controlled Pilesgrove Meeting and also Woolwich Preparative Meeting at Mullica Hill, which has always been subject to the former.

MEETING RECORDS

Woodbury Monthly Meeting Minutes:

5th Mo. 29 1826 A Certificate from Pilesgrove Monthly Meeting dated the 25th of last month for Mary French, with her six minor children, Agness Ann, Mary, Samuel H., Charles B., Uriah and Clayton French was read and accepted.

3 mo. 31st. 1829 And the women's meeting informed that Mary French had been treated with for associating with others in holding meetings set up in opposition to Friends, and contrary to Discipline and that they had concluded to disown her: with which this meeting uniting, James Saunders, and Samuel Webster were directed to produce to our next meeting a Testimony of denial adapted to their cases.

4 mo. 28 1829. The Committee appointed produced minutes of disunion against Mary French and David Cooper, which were read and approved as follows.

"Whereas Mary French and David Cooper have had a right of membership in our Religious Society, but have separated themselves from Religious communion with us, by associating with others in holding what they call Quarterly and Monthly meetings Subordinate to a Yearly Meeting set up in opposition to Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, in violation of the regular order established among Friends; and we having endeavored to labor with them for this manifest inconsistency with our principles without the desired effect, this meeting believed that however painful, yet the well being of Society demanded that their conduct should be testified against. And they the said Mary French, and David Cooper are no more to be considered members of the Religious Society of Friends. Nevertheless, we sincerely desire that through the renewed visitations of Divine Grace, they may be brought to a just sense of the nature of their deviations and be enabled to make the necessary satisfaction to this meeting."

A copy was furnished the women's meeting for their concurrence and care, in the case of Mary French.

This record refers to the disownment of Mary (Ivins) French by the Woodbury Monthly Meeting for uniting with Hicksite Friends at the time of the separation of Friends in the year 1827.

FRIENDS' SCHOOL HOUSE, BUILT 1813

WOODBURY MEETING HOUSE, BUILT 1715 and 1793

WOODBURY MEETING.

As early as 1696 Friends residing in the vicinity of Woodbury creek met for worship at the house of John Wood. In 1715 one acre of ground on the east side of the "King's Highway," the first great road leading from Burlington to Salem, being part of the 200 acres originally taken up by Thomas Mathews, was deeded by John Swanson to John Ladd, Henry Wood, founder of Woodbury, and John Cooper, as trustees for Friends. The same year a substantial brick Meeting House was built by John Cooper. The timbers used were very heavy, the rough hewn joists being 10 x 15 inches, 51 feet in length, fastened by heavy hand-made iron braces. This solid work of construction has commanded the admiration of builders for nearly two hundred years. An addition of equally enduring character was built in 1783, when the older part was repaired, after the trying days of the Revolutionary war, the meeting house having been used, at different times, as a commissary depot and hospital. In 1785, under the direction of Haddonfield Quarterly, a Monthly Meeting was set up in connection with Upper Greenwich, now Mickleton Meeting. A minute of the time says: "It is recommended to the said meetings, when divided, to feel after each other and to sit together at their Monthly Meetings, as they may feel their minds drawn and engaged thereto from time to time." The first elders of Woodbury Meeting were David Cooper and James Whittall, Jr. Woodbury Friends took special interest in the colored people, in securing their freedom and promoting their education and material welfare. The school house adjoining the Meeting House, a model building of its kind, was erected in 1813 and remains in excellent condition. It has always been a popular center of learning for the children of Friends and others, being uniformly under the control of Friends. Both branches of the Society, Orthodox and Hicksite, use the Meeting House. Throughout the history of Gloucester County the influence of Friends has been a potent factor in business, political and social as well as religious circles. The burying ground of Woodbury Meeting is the resting place of representatives of many of the colonial families. Uriah French [353] and Mary (Ivins) French, grandparents of the compiler and publisher of this Genealogy, are buried here, with other members of the family. The grave of Dame Whittall, famous in the Revolutionary history of Red Bank, is upon the terrace, close to the "King's Highway."

1811 MARTHA (FRENCH) HILLMAN 1897

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENT

"On Thursday evening the 15th inst [March 15th, 1832] by Mayor Richards Esq. [of Philadelphia], Benjamin Hillman of Salem, Ohio, to Martha, daughter of Uriah French, deceased, of New Jersey." From Philadelphia Daily Chronicle, March 16th, 1832.

VERSES FROM AN AUTOGRAPH ALBUM BELONGING TO
MARTHA (FRENCH) HILLMAN [730]

AN ADIEU

Farewell! and oh! if aught of Grief
Shall mingle with thy last adieu,
May it at least, afford relief,
Those that thou leavest partake it too.

Though weeks have pass'd uncounted by,
Thy presence has not taught us yet,
To feel, with thee, Satiety;
Or part with thee without regret.

But, in exact proportions to
 Our past enjoyment—present pain,
 Arises while we bid adieu!
 The hope that we shall meet again.

Is it not meet it thus should be,
 That light and shade should mingle thus
 When we must lose a Friend like thee,
 And thou, awhile must part from us?

Yes surely—Nor could friendship ask
 A stronger test her power to tell
 Than that it should be felt a task,
 A painful one to say, Farewell!

Yet not a painful one alone;
 For our regrets a pledge shall give,
 That days and hours too swiftly flown,
 In cherished memory long shall live.

Then let our parting hour befit
 The happy ones that we have spent;
 Though grave, let Grief not darken it,
 With aught like thankless discontent.

Tis something to have shared so much
 Of joy that friends alone can know;
 Tis more to feel we part as such,
 Aye! rendered more than ever so.

But oh! it is more soothing, still
 To feel a fond hope when we sever,
 Absence can not affection chill,
 And we may meet more dear than ever.

LINES TO M. F. ON HER WEDDING DAY

Phoebus approving of this day,
 All glooms and mists hath hidden,
 Willing a compliment to pay
 To lovely Martha's wedding.

For late the atmosphere o'erspread,
 A threat'ning aspect wore,
 Now Sol resplendent shews his head,
 And glooms and mists appear no more.

DISHES BELONGING TO MARY (VINS) FRENCH
given by her parents upon her marriage to Frank French (55)

We will then to the nuptials haste,
Nor fear bespatter'd gowns—
Nature to honor Hymen's feast,
Hath for smiles exchanged her frowns

MATRIMONY

Alone, the woodbine droops and pines;
But round the elm with fondness twines,
With clasping tendrils seeks to rise,
And soon the stormy blast defies;

Till buds and spicy flowers are seen
Amidst the broad elm's branches green.
How emblematic of the fair,
Consign'd to man's protecting care!

He finds her heart his hope and stay,
His refuge in the evil day:
Condemn'd to bloom and blush alone,
She pines unnoticed, or unknown;

But placed within his sheltering arms,
She there unfolds her lovelier charms;
And thus, carefying and caref's'd,
The pair are in their union Blest.

FRIENDSHIP

Friendship the greatest bliss we mortals know,
It heightens pleasure, softens every woe,
Expands the heart, softens thought, severe disarms,
And in the mind unfolds a thousand charms.

May all the joys around thee wait
Which fortune hath in store,
Propitious heaven attend thy fate
Till time shall be no more.

Agnes Ann Combs [729]

Think not that I shall ere forget thee,
 No thy grief shall all be mine
 I will weep when foes beset thee,
 Smile when fortune sun shall shine.

Fare thee Well Dear Sister

TO MARTHA

Accept the ardent wishes of a faithfull friend;
 May peace and happiness on all thy steps attend,
 Since thou to visit distant lands must go:
 To meet those friends who thy lov'd virtue know.
 Oh! may the enlightening beams of heaven divine,
 Mark thy pure thoughts and o'er each action shine,
 With bright success may every effort prove:
 The joys, the comforts, of redeeming love.
 When angry clouds disturb the briny deep,
 Or gentle breezes in their caverns sleep,
 Calm and composed thou dost behold the hour,
 Fears not the event supported by God's power,
 Pursues the paths unconscious of each ill,
 Thy task allotted by thy Saviour's will.
 When thou at evening's solemn prayer's attend,
 Oh! breathe one aspiration for thy absent friend.

THINK OF ME

O think of me! for we must part
 And tears shall speak the sad adieu;
 Yet oh, for ever shall my heart
 Enchanting sifter beat true to thee
 O think of me when far away
 From me dear sifter, fortune bids thee roam
 And softly with the dying day
 My spirit to thy bower shall come
 Yes! the dear privilege I'll claim
 In fancys dreams to fly to thee
 In silence lispe thy darling name
 Then Martha sometimes think of me.

THE SEPARATION OF FRIENDS, IN 1827

In the autumn of 1819, Elias Hicks, a venerable Friend, belonging to New York Yearly Meeting, and an acceptable minister in the Society for many years, visited Pine Street Meeting, Philadelphia. His severe testimony against slavery and the use of the products of slave labor, caused discussion and some irritation. Three years later a committee of Elders, claiming to represent different Monthly Meetings in Philadelphia, addressed an open letter to Elias Hicks, raising the question of his soundness in doctrine, alleging his denial of the Divinity of Christ. This charge he denied and also the right of these Elders to take disciplinary inquiry or action, he being solely amenable to his own Monthly and Yearly Meetings, within which he had not been assailed. In 1825, another effort was made by the Elders to secure hostile action, but it failed. It was claimed that the accusations against Elias Hicks of "holding sentiments inconsistent with the scriptures and the principles of Friends," was only the apprehension of some individuals, "who could not with propriety or justice enforce their views as a final standard." There seemed no disposition on the part of Friends, as a body, to take any steps in the matter. But the agitation continued. Family visits to the members of Green Street Monthly Meeting had been made by Elias Hicks, and he had received 'the Meeting's endorsement and approbation of their unity with his gospel labors among them.' For this 'offence the whole strength of those calling themselves orthodox was brought to bear on Green Street Monthly Meeting through the Philadelphia Quarterly Meeting,' and that body in 5th mo., 1827, adopted a report that Green Street Monthly Meeting should be "laid down" and attached to Northern District Monthly Meeting. This proceeding on the part of the Quarterly Meeting was 'regarded by Green Street Monthly Meeting as an arbitrary measure, unwarranted by Discipline.' And as it had become manifest that their rights as a Monthly Meeting would not be respected by the Philadelphia Quarterly Meeting, Green Street Monthly Meeting had concluded in 4th mo. to dissolve their connection with that body, and accordingly in 5th mo., 1827, they applied to Abington Quarterly Meeting to be received as a branch of that meeting and the proposal was agreed to. In defense of this "peaceable and orderly retreat from an alarming infringement of our rights," Green Street Meeting, 10th mo. 4th, 1827, issued a detailed review of the whole case. On the 15th of 10th month, 1827, men Friends, to the number of nearly fifteen hundred, assembled "in the capacity of a Yearly Meeting," in a large temporary building, erected for the purpose, at Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, women Friends assembling in the Green Street Meeting House. Representatives were called from Abington, Bucks, Concord, Western and Southern Quarterly Meetings, and also from Mount Holly, Chesterfield (N. J.) and Radnor Monthly Meetings. The committee appointed to draught "an epistle to our absent brethren and sisters, within the compass of this Yearly Meeting produced an essay, which, being deliberately read, was adopted," 10,000 copies being printed and distributed to Quarterly and Monthly Meetings. Following is the Epistle adopted:

An Epistle from the Yearly Meeting of Friends, Held in Philadelphia by adjournments, from the 15th of the tenth month to the 19th of the same, inclusive, 1827, to the Quarterly, Monthly, and Particular meetings of Friends within the compass of the said Yearly Meeting.

Dear Friends,

Having convened in this Yearly Meeting, under very peculiar and trying circumstances, in order to transact the business of the church, our minds have been comforted and strengthened, in the evidence afforded that we are still mercifully regarded by our Holy Head, whose heavenly wing has graciously overshadowed this meeting to the humbling of our spirits; and tender sympathy has flowed towards our absent brethren and sisters, whom we affectionately salute in the love of the everlasting gospel.

We fervently desire that all may be increasingly concerned to retire from the noises, the contentions, and the confusions that are in the world—that we may individually submit to the government of the Prince of Peace, who gathered our forefathers to be a people and committed to them important testimonies.

These testimonies have been felt to be near and dear to us, and a living travail has been known that our Zion may arise and shine in her ancient brightness, as in the morning of the day, when her sons and daughters were despised and persecuted, yet inherited the blessing pronounced by our Divine Master: "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake."

Beloved friends, we feel the awful responsibility of our present standing, and the necessity of abiding, individually, in the meekness and simplicity of the truth as it is in Jesus—avoiding all doubtful disputations which engender strife, and earnestly endeavouring to show forth by a Godly life and conversation, that we are his humble followers, who "when he was reviled, reviled not again," and whose religion enjoins that we resist not evil, but overcome evil with good.

We believe there never was a period in our society, when it was more important for those who feel bound to the law and the testimony to stand faithful at their posts; having on "the whole armour of God," which only can protect from the dangers that surround us. But if we keep a single eye to the Captain of our salvation, humbly waiting for him to put forth and go before us, we have nothing to fear—hard things will be made easy, and bitter things sweet; for "greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world."

In the present agitated state of society, its living members must be led into exercise and suffering: and we earnestly desire that all may be preserved in the spirit of patience, gentleness, and forbearance, under every provocation and trial. And in the exercise of the salutary discipline of the church, Oh! that we may seek for a right qualification to treat with offenders in the spirit of restoring love,—most carefully guarding against the influence of party feeling, which may, almost imperceptibly, entwine itself in movements professedly designed to support the discipline of society. Let us remember that its original and primary object is, to seek and to save—not to destroy. If we in a spirit of violence seize the discipline as a sword, to be wielded in the will and wisdom of man, we thereby depart from our ancient and Christian principle, and wound the cause of truth and righteousness.

Our profession is high and holy; and let us be increasingly concerned to walk consistently therewith. The patient sufferings of our faithful predecessors finally established for them an excellent name, even amongst their persecutors. They held up with practical clearness a peaceable testimony against "wars and fightings," and by a scrupulous adherence to the principles of justice, became proverbial for their integrity.

In the present afflicting state of things, we feel deeply concerned that their example in these respects may be kept steadily in view—that our religious testimonies may never be wounded by contending for property and asserting our rights;—that no course be pursued, although sanctioned by the laws of the excellent civil government under which we live, that may be at variance with the spirit of that holy Lawgiver, who taught his disciples, "If any man will sue thee at the law and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also;" and who set forth his own situation as it related to this world when he said, "The foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the son of man hath not where to lay his head."

And we tenderly exhort, that in places where our members constitute the larger part of any meeting, their conduct may be regulated by the rule laid down by our blessed Lord: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

The discipline under which we act, positively discourages members of our society from suing each other at law. To violate this discipline in a meeting capacity, is not only a departure from our established order, but is calculated to injure us in the eyes of sober inquirers after truth, and to disturb the peace of our own minds.

Dearly beloved young friends! how shall we address you in language sufficiently expressive of the tender solicitude which we feel for your welfare! We are fully aware that many of you have witnessed scenes of contention, painfully affecting to the inexperienced mind, and calculated to produce the inquiry, "Who shall show us any good?" But remember, dear children, that truth is truth though all men forsake it. "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are his." Although there may have been seasons when, as amidst the raging of the billows, you have been ready to cry out, Lord save us or we perish, yet may you remember that the Almighty power which rebuked the winds and the waves, is the same that ever it was, and is still graciously disposed to say to the humble tossed mind, "Peace, be still."

Retire then, we entreat you, from all airy speculations on religious subjects—from all light and chaffy conversation. Enter into your closets—shut the door—commune with your own hearts and be still. Thus you will learn in the school of Christ. Your religious experience will be gradually enlarged, and as you continue humble and obedient you will be raised up a righteous generation, and will stand as faithful advocates for the law and testimony of our God. There will arise from amongst you judges as at the first, and counsellors as at the beginning: instead of the fathers there will be the sons, and instead of the mothers there will be the daughters.

The language of the Meeting for Sufferings, in the introduction to the Book of Advices published under the direction of our Yearly Meeting in 1808, appears peculiarly adapted to our present situation, and is as follows:

"The following extracts have been compiled for the benefit of the members of our Yearly Meeting, that observing the travail of the church under various concerns, which in divine wisdom have been communicated for its weighty attention, they may be drawn to the principle of life and light manifested in the mind, which points out the path of duty and can alone preserve therein.

"Our ancient Friends and their faithful successors to the present day, have earnestly laboured to turn the attention of all to this pure spirit; knowing from experience, that it is the means appointed by God for effecting our salvation, and the only foundation of all true religion and worship. As by this we have been led into divers testimonies which have distinguished us from most other professors of the Christian name, we fervently desire that all our members may walk by the same rule and mind the same things; thus everyone filling his place in the body, we shall grow up into Him in all things, who is the Head, even Christ."

We recommend these advices to the weighty attention of all our members.

Finally, beloved friends, may we all remember that the gospel of Christ stands not in speculative opinions, nor in the will and wisdom of man, but in the power of the one true and living God. Our blessed Lord gave ample proof of its simplicity, in selecting illiterate fishermen to be amongst its promulgators. And as we are engaged humbly to abide in this power, no divination nor enchantment can prevail against us.

"Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen."

Signed by direction and on behalf of the meeting, by

Clerk of the women's meeting.

Various Monthly Meetings, wherein the separation was widely discussed, took action concerning the matter, placing upon record minutes expressive of their views. Following is taken from the minutes of Haddonfield Monthly Meeting of Women Friends:

At Haddonfield Monty Mee^d of Women friends hld 1st month 14th 1828

A friend from the mens mee^d informed this, that they had appointed a committee to consider of the rise & progrefs of a late seperation which has taken place in our Monthly Meeting and that an explanatory minute should be prepared to place on record, propose that women fr^{ds} should join them therein—the following named fr^{ds} are appointed to the service, Sarah Nicholson, Sarah Crefson, Hannah Hopkins, Abigail Evans, Amy Jones, Rebecca Barton, Jr., Rebecca Pottes, Ann Swett.

At Haddonfield Monthly Meeting of Women friends held 2nd mo 11th 1828 The committee appointed last month to unite with men friends in order to prepare a minute of record explanatory of the situation of our Monthly Mee^g—produce the following—which being read & solidly considered was united with—and directed to be placed on our records.

The extraordinary and trying situation into which the religious society of Friends has been introduced within a few years past, and the peculiar exercise to which many concerned minds have been subjected—has induced this Meeting to believe that it would be right to preserve some record of the causes, which have led to our difficulties, that those of the present day, as well as such who may come after us may be forewarned of danger, and through the continued extension of divine regard, and a close and humble dependence on the safe leadings of Christ Jesus our Holy Head, may happily experience preservation from the delusive snares, which have entangled many minds in the present day.—Friends in many parts within the limits of our Yearly Meeting, have for several years past, been painfully affected with the promulgation of sentiments and doctrines, which tend to lay waste, the faith in the proper divinity of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and the benefits derived to all mankind through that most satisfactory sacrifice which he made of Himself, without the gates of Jerusalem.—Ideas, and views, of this kind, gaining an entrance into the minds of many of the members of our religious Society, and the restraints of the Crofs of Christ being cast off, our salutary order and discipline disregarded, libertinism and self sufficiency were thus introduced.

This disaffected spirit manifested itself more fully during the time of our last Yearly Meeting, inducing many members to meet, in a separate capacity; who after spending sometime together, agreed to hold another meeting of that kind in the sixth month ensuing, from these assemblies they issued addreses, inviting those who were disposed to unite with them to withdraw from our communion.

From that period to the present, continued efforts have been made to accomplish this determined object, and the disjunction has so far advanced that the seperatists now hold meetings bearing the names of Quarterly, & Monthly Meetings.—In the 10th month last, they held a mee^g in Philadelphia to which they arrogated the title of our regularly established Yearly Meeting, and issued another addres, purporting to be from our ancient and duly organized body; thereby showing their disregard to candor & justice by using this cover, while at the same time, they were endeavouring to complete the schism they had made, by instituting a distinct association, which cannot be acknowledged by our religious Society.

A number of the members of this Mo^r Mee^s, being influenced by the subtle workings of this delusive spirit, have so far yielded to its plausible presentations, as to join with others, in holding sundry meetings, and using various means to draw into their measures of alienation, and confusion. And having come to this mee^s at the usual time of holding it in last month, with design as it is believed to carry their schemes into effect, as a considerable number of persons attended from other places, and several of the same character who had been disowned by the Monthly Meetings of which they had formerly been members, having convened with them were encouraged in this imposition by several of our members, they remained in the Meeting, although repeatedly requested to withdraw;—we were thereby under the necessity of adjourning the meeting—after which a number of our members, and those other persons, in company with them remained in the house, and held mee^s under the assumed name of Haddonfield Mo^r Mee^s, in violation of the good order of our religious Society, and regardless of the wholesome provisions, & restrictions of its justly established rules; and it is with much exercise and concern that we make this record on the minutes of this meeting (which appears to have been established more than 140 years, and held with unity & reputation until this time) there is less than one fourth of our members who have thus made a schism, and seceded from us and hold themselves no longer in connection with our ancient & regularly established Quarterly & Yearly Meeting.

The following week friends assembled pursuant to adjournment and transacted the business of the mo^r mee^s and through the extension of ancient Goodness, we were favoured with a solemn & quiet meeting, for which we trust many minds were reverently thankful.

CHARLES FRENCH, JR.

Charles, third son and fourth child of Samuel [141] and Sarah (Heulings) French, was a long time farmer resident of what is now Harrison township, Gloucester county, N. J. He was a man of industry, influence and much public usefulness. He early took an interest in philanthropic and educational movements. He was a local trustee of the poor, 1803 to 1808 inclusive, and again in 1820-30-31-32-44. He was a member of the Legislature in 1813-14-24-26. He served some years as justice of the peace and in 1813 and 1836 as lay Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Gloucester county. He was an active member of the Society of Friends and for over thirty years, 1801-33, served as trustee of the Friends' school and meeting house property and graveyard at Mullica Hill. In early life he was assigned a fine farm of 142 acres by his father, and inheriting the same successfully cultivated it for half a century.

The Friends' graveyard at Mullica Hill was the only public burial place in that section for many years. Over 600 persons now rest there—more than the population of the immediate community—representing the early families who subdued the wilderness and their industrious and orderly successors, who labored faithfully to maintain the highest principles of society. The records show that over one hundred of those buried there passed the allotted three score and ten years. Upwards of fifty descendants of Samuel and Sarah (Heulings) French, appear in the list of burials. The centennial anniversary of the founding of Mullica Hill Meeting, held in 1897, was an occasion of great interest, many persons being present from a distance and taking part in the exercises. Historic papers were read and impressive addresses delivered, all in accord with the spirit of Friends.

SAMUEL FRENCH, JR.

Although neither the oldest nor youngest son of Samuel and Sarah (Heulings) French, it was the good fortune of Samuel French, Jr., to inherit the farm of over 220 acres located in Greenwich, now Harrison township, Gloucester Co., N. J., whereon his father wrought so faithfully for more than two score years. He was born, spent all his long life of 73 years, and died in the old homestead. At the time Samuel French [141] made his will, three of the older sons were settled in their own homes, and the youngest was only a lad. Samuel, Jr., remained at his right hand, and when he married in 1811 brought his young wife thither, to brighten the home but two short years, when death entered herein. He walked worthily in his father's footsteps. He was an industrious and successful farmer, a careful business man, a citizen of high ideals; and he preferred the ways of private life to holding public office. He was specially devoted to the educational welfare of his children and took pardonable pride in the honorable career of his son, Samuel G. French [755], who had rendered such brilliant public service in the war with Mexico.

Samuel French, Jr., was a man of great independence of character and would not swerve from any course he had deliberately entered upon with conscientious motives. This was strikingly illustrated upon the occasion of his marriage, in 1816, to Rebecca Clark. He declined to make acknowledgment to Meeting for "marrying out," although in all other respects in full accord with the principles of Friends. He frankly declared he could not express formal regret when he felt none. He was his own self-reliant counsellor and set a consistent example always as a loving father, faithful friend and good citizen. He died intestate and his estate was administered by his sons, Charles Clement [756] and Joseph Hewlings French [757]. An inventory showed personal property to the amount of $3,200. He was buried in the Friends' Burying Ground, at Mullica Hill. His wife Rebecca (Clark) French was buried in the historic Eglinton Cemetery, Clarksboro, Gloucester Co., N. J., the original ground for which was set apart from his estate by John Eglinton, in his will, 1776, in these words: "I set apart 10 square rods of land for a Burying ground, where the family has heretofore been and to be interred for the use of the family and their Heirs forever, the said Burying—to be put in repairs by my Executors out of my personal estate."

The kindly relationship that existed between Samuel French, Jr., and his children, was shown in the remarkable expressions contained in the will of his daughter, Hannah I. French, who died in 1845, in which filial solicitude was thus manifested, it being specially desired that he should "be more careful of his health and that he will not work so hard or expose himself so as to endanger his health." THOMAS CLARK.

Thomas Clark, son of Jeffrey and Mary Clark, was born February 18th, 1737, and married April 8th, 1758, Christian, born September 26th, 1741, daughter of Garret and Christian Vanneman. Jeffrey Clark died in Southwark, Philadelphia, in 1782, leaving three sons, Timothy, Thomas, Jeffrey, and three daughters, Catharine, Elizabeth and Mary. Thomas and his brother Jeffrey became prominent in the colonial life of South Jersey. Thomas was particularly interested and influential, as a man of high character and ideals, in social and religious matters. He founded the Church of England, now known as St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, Clarksboro. Jeffrey conceived the idea of settling a town at the junction of the Salem, Burlington and Mullica Hill roads. He became a large land holder at that point and the future village of Clarksboro was the outgrowth of this enterprise. The following interesting items are taken from the diary of Thomas Clark :

EXTRACTS FROM "THOMAS CLARK'S JOURNAL 1758 BEGUN"

A Slave Set at Liberty.

In the year of our Lord 1760. Garret and Ruth Vanneman, his widow made me Executor to their estates. They had a negro girl slave appraised to fifty-five pounds. I kept her at the appraisement and some time after she grew up, had a male negro child that she named Saul Freman, she died soon after. I put him out to board at eight pounds a year until he was about five years old. Then I took him home and brought him up in my own family until he was about twenty-four years of age and on the fourth day of July 1800 I manumitted him and set him at Liberty. Agreeable to the Laws of New Jersey in such cases made and provided. The Certificate of his freedom is recorded in the Clerk's Office in the County of Gloucester, In the State of New Jersey.

I feel myself exceedingly happy on account of my setting the above negro man free. I hope the spirit of all keepers of slaves is abating and that of the slave rising from the dust, their condition mollifying, the way I hope is preparing, under the auspices of heaven for a Total Emancipation and that this is disposed in the order of nature and of events, to be with the consent of the masters, rather than by compulsion; and if the hope of freedom for them or their posterity was held forth as the reward of good behavior the Slaves would be bound by personal interest to be civil, orderly and industrious.

A Comet Appeared.

I seldom see anything that raised a wonder in me which does not give my thoughts a turn that makes my heart the better for it. On the 5th of September 1769, at two o'clock and forty minutes in the morning, I observed a Comet or Playing Star as nigh the Equinoxon line as I could observe which course from me to it was South—seventy-two degrees—East. Its tail extended thirty-nine degrees and thirty minutes south-westwardly from the said Comet by the surveying instrument which makes 2370 miles long at 60 miles to a degree. The Sun at this time is six degrees and four minutes north of the time observed by me Thos. Clark at Clonmel in the County of Gloucester, New Jersey, North America, the place of my nativity.

How spacious must the universe be that give such bodies as these their full play without suffering the least disorder or confusion by it. What a wonderful show it is to those beings that can look into this great theatre of nature and see such tremendous objects wandering through those immeasurable elements and running their appointed courses. The eyes of future generations may hereafter be strong enough to comprehend this magnificent prospect and their understanding may be able to find out the several uses of these great parts of the Universe. In the meantime they are proper objects for our imaginations to contemplate on that we may form more exalted notions of Infinite wisdom and power and learn to think humbly of ourselves and all the little works of human invention.

August 29th, 1801

A Prayer upon Toleration

O! Thou Eternal Incomprehensible Being who art the fountain of mercy and the source of love, thy sun lights equally the Christian and the Atheist—thy showers equally nourish the fields of the Believer as the Infidel, the seed of virtue is ever found in the heart of the impious and the heretic. From thee I learn that diversity of opinions does not prevent thee from being a beneficent Father to all mankind. Shall I then to thy feeble creatures be less indulgent? Shall I not permit thy subjects to adore thee in whatever manner they please? Shall I persecute those who differ from me in point of thinking? Must religion be spread with the point of the sword? O, Thou whose dignity and mighty power love, embrace the whole universe, grant that such erroneous principles may never harbor in my breast. Where is the religion that does not instruct to love virtue and detest vice? Let all religions be tolerated, let all mankind pay their worship to thee—thou Eternal Being in the manner they think best. Does error in judgment deserve expulsion from society and is force the proper way to win the heart or bring the mind to a true sense of religion? Let the shameful chains of religious tyranny be parted assunder and the sweet bonds of love unite all subjects forever. May thy Almighty Power never forsake them. O, Thou Incomprehensible Being fortify my resolutions with thy love: surmount every difficulty and let that law of our Divine Master which inculcates charity and patience be always impressed on my part. Amen.

My conduct in life until I was 64 years of age all set forth by me Thos. Clark. As soon as I was settled I bought books and read them and improved my natural abilities, so that I became Surveyor of Lands and Conveyancer in the early part of my life which qualified me for other business. It proved much to my advantage, notwithstanding I labored under natural disabilities I was appointed to public stations in life more so than the generality of men of my age and at an earlier period than Common people, such as Executor to Estates and Guardian to Minors, Town Officers, Managers of Public Works, Justice of Peace under the King's Government Council of Proprietors. I built a house of worship in Greenwich Township which was then wanted to be called Saint Thomas Church and which name I refused to be called in the year 1770, but now called Berkeley's Church in memory of John Lord Berkeley the Proprietor of West New Jersey.

I was a member of the General Assembly of New Jersey for seven years, Judge of the Pleas and Judge of the Orphans Court, Justice of the Peace and Notary Public for the County of Gloucester. I recommend to my children the reading of books for the improving of their knowledge. I always followed learning since I first settled and went through the path of life perhaps in as peaceable manner as any person ever did—clear of broils, strifes and contentions. I never was sued for a just debt in my lifetime, nor scarcely ever sued any person and no person was ever detained in goal on my account nor their lands or goods sold. This gives peace to the mind and to God that passeth all understanding and keeps the mind and heart in the knowledge and love of God and the fellowship of his Son. So that I hope the latter part of my days may be happy in the land the Lord my God giveth me until it shall please God to call me. I am one of the Legislative Council of New Jersey for the Years of 1799, 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803.

I am waiting for the Great Teacher, convinced that the order of nature is perfect—that Infinite Wisdom governs all things, and that Christianity comes from God, and resting with full assurance on this one truth, which is the Gospel of peace lifting above the world, warming the heart with the love of God. In hope of a future deliverance from everlasting death—where the way is open to social happiness and reason utter her voice with success—and looking forward beyond the grave where a government is erected under that Messiah, who has tasted death for every one. I seem to have hopes that I shall be a partaker of that happiness beyond the grave which is not to be expected in this world—I mean to fulfill the duties enjoined to my station with a cheerful activity enjoying the world and ready to leave it when God pleases to call me.

JUDGE JOHN BLACKWOOD, M.D.

Dr. John Blackwood was born in Blackwood, N. J., in 1772, and was apparently a descendant of John Blackwood, a noted Scotch Presbyterian immigrant, who founded that place about 1750. After succeeding Dr. Evan Clement, at Haddonfield, for a time, he removed to Mt. Holly, where he became prominent and influential in his profession and in political and business circles. He served as postmaster from April 1st, 1816, until May 20th, 1829. November 16th, 1825, he was commissioned by Governor Isaac H. Williamson, Lay Judge of the Common Pleas and Orphans' Court of Burlington county. He accumulated considerable of an estate, and resided for a number of years on Main Street, Mt. Holly, N. J., his residence, recently removed, adjoining the Friends' Meeting House. He was buried in the Friends' Burying Ground, within a few rods of his long time homestead. Following is a copy of the commission issued to him by Governor Williamson:

State of New Jersey

To John Blackwood, Esquire Greeting

The Council and Assembly, reposing special trust and confidence in your integrity, prudence and ability, have at a Joint Meeting appointed you, the said John Blackwood, to be one of the Judges of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, in and for the County of Burlington. GILBERT PAGE

The first half of the nineteenth century was a notable period in the political, social, industrial and religious life of West Jersey. It developed strong men in every community. One of the most active and influential citizens of Moorestown was Gilbert Page, son-in-law of Charles French [143]. He came of rugged ancestry and throughout a long life left his impress upon those around him. Soon after his marriage to Atlantic French he purchased the large brick house which now adjoins the Orthodox Friends Meeting House, Moorestown, made suitable alterations and set up a general store, which he successfully conducted for two score years. He took great interest in public affairs and was postmaster for 26 years, from March 19th, 1813, until May 4th, 1839, serving under the administrations of Presidents Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Jackson and Van Buren. In the memorable log cabin and hard cider campaign of 1840, Mr. Page was very active in the Whig party, directing in behalf of General Harrison the largest political meeting that had ever been known in that part of the country, the festivities extending far into the night.

Older residents of Moorestown who remember Gilbert Page recall many interesting incidents concerning him. One of his favorite diversions for a time was the raising of geese, his fine flocks feeding on the rich meadow grasses a short distance from his house. One night the entire flock, numbering thirty, save one old gander, disappeared, and in a little bag, near his resting place, was found a penny for every goose stolen and this exasperating confession pinned on the parcel:

"Dear Mr Page
Dont be in a rage;
But if you do its no wonder,
For I bought all your geese
For a penny a piece,

There was a stormy time that day in the vicinity, but the stolen geese never were recovered, nor were the perpetrators of the crime discovered.

Mr. Page accumulated considerable property, one notable purchase being the saw mill and farm, near Mullica Hill, formerly owned by Uriah French, and which he bought of the heirs of his father-in-law, Charles French [143] in 1835.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH, MOORESTOWN, N. J.

Amongst the earliest settlers of Chester township, Burlington county, New Jersey, were members of the Church of England. Many of their descendants united in founding churches of their own faith. One of the first of these was at Colestown, which for over one hundred years, like St. Mary's, Burlington, served a large community. As Moorestown and vicinity grew in population and wealth, it was determined to locate a church there. Trinity parish was formed and a fine stone building erected, which was consecrated in March, 1838. This has been twice enlarged, a rectory and parish house added, memorial windows placed and the entire church property is one of the most attractive in the diocese.

The adjoining graveyard contains many beautiful memorials. In the center enclosed plot rest thirteen members of the French family, including Charles and Sabilla, with as many others nearby. Directly opposite is the Page plot, with a center monument and a number of individual tablets. The church has had ten regular ministers in charge. Rev. Dr. James Hart Lamb serving the longest, from 1878 to 1898, being succeeded by the present rector, Rev. Dr. Robert McKay. Many members of the French family and its allied branches—Hollingshead, Page, Porter, Wills, Gill—have been associated with the religious and social life of Trinity church since its foundation, seventy-five years ago. Sabilla French [373], daughter of Charles and Sabilla, who died in 1880, left a legacy of $100, the interest of which is to be perpetually applied to the care of the family plot in the graveyard of Trinity church.

And at the time of the burial of Hugh Hollingshead, husband of Eleanor, John Hunt made this reference to it:

Hugh French Hollingshead [380] came to Philadelphia from New Jersey in early manhood and entered mercantile life. After purchasing the residence of Charles Creighton French [393] on Mulberry (Arch) street near Seventh street, in 1815, he formed a partnership with William Platt, under the firm name of Hollingshead & Platt, wholesale grocers, at 47 North Water street. He continued this business prosperously until his death in 1844. For some years thereafter his son, Joseph M. Hollingshead, was the sole proprietor. The elder Hollingshead, about 1820, bought the residence 112 South Third street (below Walnut, at that time), where he died; and by will dated December 27th, 1841, proved May 23rd, 1844, he bequeathed this property to his wife, Martha (Mickle) Hollingshead. He was one of the founders and first directors of the State Bank of Camden, established in 1812. He remained in the board for ten years, being associated with Joseph Matlack, Joseph M. Bispham and other leading citizens. For a number of years Hugh F. Hollingshead and his family were members of the Philadelphia Monthly Meeting.

I give to my executors 1/16th part of my estate in trust for the maintenance and education of my grandchildren, Martha and Ellen Barton, children of my dec'd daughter Anna, provided that it shall be in the discretion of my said executors to withhold all funds for the maintenance and education of said grandchildren if they should not be placed with such persons as they may approve having regard for the welfare of said children, and upon the further trust on the arrival of my said grandchildren of lawful age respectively or upon their marriage if the same be prudently entered into, to pay them a reasonable outfit, or to settle the same for their separate use and the residue of this share of my estate to keep invested for the sole and separate use of my said granddaughters during life, share and share alike, their receipts to be a full discharge to the said trustees. And after their decease respectively, the principal held for each shall be paid to the child, children or next of kin of the decedent, if more than one, in equal shares, but in exclusion of any husband my said granddaughters may have, both as to the principal after their decease and the income to be paid to them during life. And by next of kin is to be understood on the decease of either of said granddaughters without leaving any child her surviving sister, or her child or children, and on the decease of the survivor, without any child her relatives of my blood and not those there may be related on the side of their father, and with said exception the present intestate law to be the rule of distribution.

The residue of my estate I direct may be divided into seven equal parts, or shares, one share thereof to my son Joseph M. Hollingshead, one to my son Henry and five shares to my executors, in trust, to pay the income of the same, share and share alike, unto my daughters Ellen, Eliza, Martha, Emily and Mary Hollingshead, for their separate use, without any liability to any debts or engagements of any husbands they may have, for life. And upon their decease their share or shares shall be paid over to their child or children or next of kin, on their arrival at lawful age in exclusion, both as respects principal and income, of all claims by any husbands my said daughters may have.

Should I make any advances towards an outfit in life or business of any of my children, the same shall be taken as part of his or their share of my estate and be charged accordingly.

(Provides for any possible change in trusteeship, through death or otherwise.)

CHARLES FRENCH MATLACK, M.D.

Charles French Matlack, M.D., son of Joseph and Eleanor (French) Hollingshead Matlack, being of a studious and scientific turn of mind, decided, upon attaining manhood, to leave the home farm in Chester township, Burlington county, N. J., and take up his residence in Philadelphia. Here he entered the drug store of Charles Marshall, with whom he studied pharmacy, and then took a course in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, under the personal guidance of Dr. Joseph Parish. He graduated in 1820, and secured appointment as resident physician at the Friends' Asylum for the Insane, Frankford. Later he located as a practicing physician on North Second street, near Arch street, and afterwards on Arch street near Fourth street. He was one of the volunteer staff of the historic Philadelphia Dispensary for six years. During the epidemic of 1832 he rendered heroic and efficient service at the Cholera Hospital. At this time his attention was earnestly given to the new German theory of Homoeopathy. He mastered the German language and studied the works of Hahnemann, the founder, in the original. He entered upon this practice in 1833 and soon became known as one of its ablest and most efficient disciples. He wrote much in its behalf, translating a number of German publications. For a time he was the only native American in Pennsylvania representing this school of medicine among practitioners. He declined a professorship in the Homoeopathic Medical College of Pennsylvania, founded in Philadelphia in the fall of 1848—the predecessor of Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital. He was such an enthusiastic student and so devoted to his professional work that his health broke down in 1849 and for two years he was compelled to rest. He then removed to a healthful location on Shoemaker's Lane, Germantown, where he resumed practice and continued the same until his death, at the ripe age of three score, ten and five. Throughout his long and honorable career, Dr. Matlack was known and highly esteemed for his conscientious devotion to what he believed to be the truth, in science and religion. He was a respected member of the Society of Friends and took an active and zealous interest in its affairs.

Eleanor (French) Hollingshead Matlack [144] by will dated 11th month 10th, 1845, proved July 24th, 1850, bequeathed to her "son Charles F. Matlack Two acres and two roods of my lot of land whereon I now dwell [Chester township, Burlington Co., N. J.], with all the buildings and improvements appertaining thereto, to be run off on the easterly side of my said lot of land, to him, his heirs and assigns forever. Nevertheless he is not to have possession thereof until after the decease of my beloved Husband." Executors, Charles F. Matlack and David Roberts. Eleanor (French) Hollingshead and Joseph Matlack were married 12th mo. 13th, 1796, and lived near Moorestown, N. J. Joseph Matlack died about 1857. He was the son of Thomas Matlack, born 1744, who was the son of George, born 1717, the son of George, son of William Matlack, who was born in Nottinghamshire, England, in 1648, and came to Burlington, N. J., in the Kent, in 1677, becoming a large land holder. His son Timothy was the father of Colonel Timothy Matlack, a notable figure in the Revolution, member of the Pennsylvania Committee of Safety and one of the organizers of the Society of Free Quakers.

Israel Maule, father of Sarah Ann (Maule) Matlack, was born in Radnor township, Pa., 12th mo. 28th, 1778, and died 11th mo. 25th, 1828, married 5th mo. 5th, 1801, in North Meeting, Philadelphia, Ann Garrigues. He was the son of Daniel, son of Thomas, son of John, son of Thomas Maule, who left England for the Barbadoes about 1655, when he was twelve years of age. Some years later he went to Salem, Mass., becoming a merchant and an active member of the Society of Friends. He engaged in a zealous controversy with Cotton Mather, publishing several works, one of which, "Truth Maintained," was burned by his Puritan enemies. In "New England Persecutors" he gave an account of the cruel treatment of Quakers. He was five times imprisoned, three times fined and three times whipped through the streets of Salem, at the cart's tail. His son John removed to Philadelphia in 1700.

JUDGE SAMUEL BLACK

Samuel Black, born in the old homestead, Mansfield township, Burlington county, N. J., was fourth in line of descent from William and Alice (Taylor) Black, pioneer immigrants who settled in Burlington in 1677; also fourth in line of descent from the pioneer Thomas French and wife Jane Atkins. He was the third child and second son of William and Hope (French) Black, who were married 1st mo. 20th, 1780. Concerning this event, John Hunt made the following interesting note in his diary:

"20 of y^e 1st mo 1780 we went to our Meeting W. Black & Hope Frinch was Married my wife & I being appointed were obliged to attend the Marriage a Light airy Company & a poor Difagreeable time it was to me & as Cold a Day I thot as I ever Seen & She in the thineft Drefs."

Samuel Black became a noted citizen in his community, and throughout a long life held the highest respect of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. In politics he was a strong Whig and Republican, holding many offices of trust and confidence. He was Justice of the Peace, director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, member of the New Jersey Assembly during the sessions of 1828, 1830 and 1831; and in 1840 was appointed lay Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Burlington county. His public duties were discharged with great intelligence, independence and zeal. He took a far-sighted view of projects of public improvement, believing these would greatly promote the prosperity of all classes of people. On the bench he was always courteous and impartial, and later in life often acted as arbiter between parties who sought his wise counsel. While a member of the New Jersey Assembly, Mr. Black strongly advocated the passing of the charter for the old Camden & Amboy R. R. notwithstanding the active opposition of his numerous friends and neighbors who were opposed to granting right of way through their farm lands. But realizing the great benefit which would ultimately result to the farmers and property holders through whose lands it was proposed to build the road, he cast his vote, the deciding one, for the charter. He died intestate, in 1865, and his estate was administered by his youngest brother, George Black. An inventory taken September 30th, 1865, Clayton Hancock and Augustus M. Wills appraisers, showed personal property to the value of $6,557.

rior qualities of mind and heart, and was greatly beloved. At the time of her death, one who had known her for many years, wrote of her as follows:

"During her long illness she was a most patient sufferer; and although so excessively afflicted, she did not murmur. When one so benevolent, pure, kind and virtuous departs we feel it a duty to allude to her almost faultless character, that others may, if only in a slight degree, imitate her. She never had an enemy and never acted unfriendly; never spoke harshly to any one. When others were violent, in her mild voice she would soften their asperities. Although a member of no church, she lived and died a christian in faith, profession and practice. Her soul rests in peace. Her loss to those nearest to her is most sorely felt; and in this their severest affliction we most heartily condole with them. That her merciful and forgiving disposition may be more generally practiced by others, is our fervent wish."

A few years before his death he removed to Columbus, N. J., where he had purchased a comfortable old-fashioned home for himself, daughter Ann and son Nathan. In 1854 he was appointed associate lay Judge for Camden county and served two terms. In 1864 he was appointed, by Governor Parker, one of the lay Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals, the court of last resort in New Jersey. He also served on several important state commissions, and from its organization, in 1864, was an active member of the Surveyors' Association of New Jersey. Judge Clement was a life-long student of local history and in his researches collected a great amount of information concerning the early settlers of Camden and adjoining counties, which he presented in his various writings upon the subject. His life was a busy and useful one in his day and generation.

JUDGE GEORGE BLACK

George Black, eighth child and sixth son of William and Hope (French) Black, was born on the homestead farm of his parents in Mansfield township, Burlington county, N. J. He remained with his father on the farm until he attained his twenty-third year, when in connection with his brother-in-law, Moses Wills, Jr. [367], he embarked in the mercantile business at Columbus, Burlington Co. The venture proved successful, and the partners purchased largely of real estate, from which they realized considerable advances. Mr. Black was a man of great mental and physical activity, and was one of the most prominent and public-spirited men of his time. He transacted a large amount of public business and was held in general respect and esteem. He was collector of Mansfield township for over twenty years, and chosen freeholder for nearly the same length of time. He was known widely throughout the county and state. He was elected to represent Burlington county in the State Legislature at the session of 1833. He was appointed to the office of state prison inspector, and subsequently was chosen by the Legislature one of the state directors of the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company. His name was also frequently spoken of for governor. On March 11th, 1868, he was appointed one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Burlington county. He was also a member of the Board of Directors of the Mount Holly National Bank, president of the Columbus, Kinkora and Springfield Railroad Company, of which he was one of the projectors, and a director of the Mercer County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Pennington, N. J. At his death an inventory of his estate, taken July 29th, 1872, showed an appraisement of $20,571, Moses Wills and John Bishop appraisers. The estate was administered by his son, Clayton A. Black.

CHARLES CREIGHTON FRENCH

Inclined to mercantile life, Charles Creighton French, son of Charles and Rebecca (Taylor) French, after thorough training in the wholesale grocery and importing house of his father, about 1806, entered into business for himself, in the same line of trade, locating in the same neighborhood, 48 North Front Street, Philadelphia. For a time he was in partnership with Nathan Dunn and later with Joshua Harker. Soon after his marriage, in 1809, he bought, March 3rd, 1810, of Jacob Roset, a fine three-story brick residence on Mulberry (Arch) street, a few doors east of Seventh street, paying therefor

$6,500 (see accompanying illustration). He was at this time a member of Friends' Meeting for the Northern District, Key's Alley; and in accordance with prevailing rules, upon changing his residence, he brought a certificate to Arch Street Meeting, as appears from the following extract from the minutes of that meeting, 3rd mo. 27th, 1812: "A Minute from the Northern District for Charles C. French, and Mercy his wife and their Children Rebecca and James French, also her daughter Sarah Chapman a minor, and one for William Black, Apprentice to Charles C. French."

Apparently desiring to extend his business operations, the young merchant, August 17th, 1816, sold for $10,000 his Arch street residence, with a house and lot on Seventh street, which he had bought in 1811, to Hugh F. Hollingshead [380], merchant of Philadelphia. About this time there was considerable embarrassment amongst Philadelphia business men and the affairs of Charles Creighton French were the subject of a sympathetic inquiry upon the part of a committee of Friends of Arch Street Meeting. The report submitted, 2nd month, 1817, showed that he had in no wise departed from accepted business methods or the discipline of the Society. Upon taking up his residence at 343 North 3rd street, within the limits of the Northern District Meeting, he again attended that meeting and received a certificate thereto, from the Arch Street Meeting, dated 6th mo. 27th, 1817, for himself, Mercy G., his wife, and their son James, and Joseph and Sarah Chapman, minor children of Mercy. He rendered valuable services in the settlement of several estates, and about 1820 retired from mercantile life in Philadelphia and removed with his family to Waynesville, Warren Co., Ohio. He died in Warren county, Ohio, in 1824, intestate, his estate being administered by his widow, Mercy G. French, under the direction of the Probate Court. An inventory of personal property showed a valuation of $889.26.

In the accompanying illustration, showing the lines of stores and warehouses a century ago, on Water street and what is now Delaware avenue, Philadelphia, the site of the business place of Charles French [147], father of Charles Creighton French, is represented by the store of Samuel Crawford, his former partner and successor.

Mercy (Gilpin) Chapman French was the daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Grey) Gilpin. Thomas Gilpin, born in 1749, died 1802, married August 29th, 1777, Sarah Grey; Rev. Dr. William White, of Christ Church, Philadelphia, officiating. Thomas was the son of Joseph, Jr., and Mary (Caldwell) Gilpin, who were married in 1729, and lived for a number of years in Birmingham township, Chester county, Pennsylvania, later removing to the neighborhood of Wilmington, New Castle county, Delaware. Joseph Gilpin, Jr., born 1703-4, died 1792, was the son of Joseph of Dorchester, Oxfordshire, England, and Hannah (Glover) Gilpin, who were married 1691-2. Joseph Gilpin, born 1663, son of Thomas and Joan (Bartholomew) Gilpin, like his father, was a minister of the Society of Friends, and in 1695 with his wife and two children came to America and settled in Chester county. His home in Birmingham township was the center of interest among Friends in that section, meetings being frequently held there; and its hospitality was always cordially extended to newly arrived emigrants. Joseph Gilpin died in 1739 and his widow, Hannah (Glover) Gilpin, 1757. In 1740 Thomas Chalkley made the following note in his Journal:

"Lodged at the widow Gilpin's, whose husband, Joseph Gilpin, was lately deceased; there was true Christian Love and Friendship between us for above fifty years. When first I saw Joseph in Pennsylvania, he lived in a Cave in the Earth, where we enjoyed each other's Company in the Love and Fear of God. This Friend had fifteen Children, who he lived to see brought up to the States of Men and Women, and all but two married well and to his Mind."

Joseph Gilpin was a descendant of an ancient and honored English family, and founder of a family that for two centuries has been conspicuous and influential in religious and public affairs in this country. His father, Thomas Gilpin, was a Puritan soldier, under Cromwell, but later joined the Society of Friends, and for his zeal therein suffered much persecution. His ancestors were famous men as far back as the reign of King John, in the thirteenth century. In 1206 the Baron of Kendal granted the estate of Kentmere in the county of Westmoreland to Richard de Gylpyn—the original way of spelling the name—in recognition, it is said, of Richard's prowess in killing a wild boar which had caused great destruction in that locality. This ancient seat was lost to the family at the time of the overthrow of Charles I. and never restored. For six generations the de Gylpyn family figured notably in early English history.

Mercy Gilpin and Benjamin Chapman were married in 1797. He was born 9th mo. 27th, 1775, and died 10th mo. 23rd, 1802, of yellow fever, contracted while nursing an apprentice. They had three children, Joseph B., born 1798; Sarah, born 1800; Benjamin, Jr., born and died 1802.

FRIENDS' MEETINGS IN PHILADELPHIA

The first Friends' meetings in Pennsylvania were held at Chester, in 1675, and at Falls, Bucks county, about 1681, with a meeting for worship in a private house at Shackamaxon, now Kensington, Philadelphia. The year following the arrival of William Penn and his company, in 1682, a meeting was set up on the river front, at the center of the new settlement. The first house of worship was known as the Bank Meeting. It was located on Front street, a short distance above Arch, or Mulberry, as it was then known. As population extended westward it was determined to build a meeting house at the center square, where the City Hall now stands. This was occupied in 1689. It was soon apparent that this location was too far westward from the general residence section, so there was a return to Front street, a second Bank Meeting being erected on the site of the first, larger and more convenient. This was about 1700.

The growth of the society, meanwhile, had been rapid and in order to meet its requirements another and still larger place of worship was erected, at the southwest corner of Market and Second streets. This was known as the Great Meeting House. It was completed in the autumn of 1696 and it was under the care of this meeting that the second marriage of Thomas French, the progenitor, took place, on 7th mo. 25th, 1696, when he was united to Elizabeth Stanton, a member of Philadelphia Monthly Meeting. Another enlargement, on the same site, took place 1756, this being known as the Greater Meeting House, which served until the erection, largely out of the same material, of the meeting house on Twelfth street below Market, 1812.

In order to provide larger accommodation for yearly meetings and other needful purposes, it was decided early in the nineteenth century to build a meeting house at Arch and Fourth streets, which is one of the largest of the kind in the world, the combined capacity of the two wings being fully 2,200 persons. The center and the east wing were completed in 1805 and the west wing in 1811. Until 1772 there was but one Monthly Meeting in Philadelphia. The Yearly Meeting has met continuously in the Arch street Meeting House since 1760, before that period alternating with Burlington, New Jersey. The ground for this meeting house was given by William Penn, upon the occasion of his second visit to America, in 1701. It was originally used as a graveyard, many persons other than Friends being buried there, especially during the yellow fever visitation of 1793, and it has been estimated that upwards of fifteen thousand rest therein.

In 1753 Pine street Meeting House was erected and this was used until the building of Orange street meeting, now Washington Square, in 1832. The second Bank Meeting was removed in 1790, and the Northern District Meeting erected in Key's Alley, near Second and Vine streets. This was succeeded, in 1838, by the Sixth and Noble streets Meeting. The Fourth street Meeting, below Chestnut street, was built in 1763, and removed in 1859. Green street Meeting was built in 1813-14. Very early meetings were established at Byberry, Oxford, Frankford and Germantown.

When Arch street Meeting was instituted that part of the city was the center of the Quaker colony and on meeting days the popular and beautiful thoroughfare presented an attractive sight, as multitudes of Friends wended their way to worship. The distinctive costumes of the society were almost universally adhered to and contemporary writers dwell with manifest pleasure upon the lively scenes of the time. The winsome beauty of the Quaker maidens, the manly character of the young men, the wonderfully sweet countenances of the elder women, the calm dignity of their companions, the abiding spirit of peace and content combined to make an impression upon the spectator that was inspiring and lasting. The effect was that of a semi-weekly benediction upon the whole community. In 1912 there are seven places of worship for Orthodox Friends in Philadelphia, and seven for the other branch of the Society.

FRIENDS' ADVICE AND CAUTION

From the monthly meeting of Friends, in Philadelphia, the 23d of the 9th month, 1768,

To our Friends and Brethren in religious profession with us.

Dear Friends, A deep exercise and fervent concern, being impressed on our minds, for the preservation and welfare of the members of our religious Society, and especially the youth under our care, we affectionately exhort and advise all who make profession of being led and guided by the dictates of the divine principle of Light and Truth, to commemorate with reverence and thankfulness, the manifold mercies and blessings which, by the bounty of the Lord our God, are continued to us; and by integrity, sobriety, and circumspection of life and conversation, to manifest that we are sincerely desirous of walking answerable to so great favours.

We are engaged the more immediately to excite these considerations at this time, from an apprehension that the minds of the unwatchful, will be in danger of being captivated by the ensnaring diversions of the horse races and stage plays, which are intended to be again exhibited in and near this city. We earnestly entreat and beseech you would seriously consider the danger and destructive tendency, of countenancing or encouraging these profane amusements, by attending, or being spectators of them; as they evidently tend to introduce idleness, licentiousness, and intemperance, and are directly opposite to the precepts and example of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the testimony and practice of his disciples and followers in every age.

We therefore fervently desire that all Friends, to whom the important care of the youth is intrusted, would, by admonition and persuasion, endeavour to convince them of the hurtful consequences of being deluded by these ensnaring temptations, and where this labour fails of success, that they would discharge their duty faithfully, by proper restraints.

And, dearly beloved youth, considering how many are drawn aside into vanity and folly, from the holy visitation of Divine Love, which you have at times been sensibly affected with, we entreat and beseech you to avoid these temptations; suffer the sincere and ardent desires of your elder brethren for your present and eternal welfare, to have a place in your minds.

Let a due consideration of the uncertainty of the time allotted you, excite you to devote it to the honour of God. Attend to the restraints of divine grace, and thus you will be preserved from the evils of the world, become serviceable in your several stations, and obtain true peace here, and a well-grounded hope of everlasting happiness hereafter.

Signed in, and on behalf of our said meeting, by John Pemberton, Clerk at this time.

At a Monthly Meeting of Wom. Frd^s held at Haddonfield the 12th of 12th M^o. 1791

A Minute from the last yearly Meeting of Women fr^ds held in Philad^a. was now read, wherein it is recommended that Young People who are placed out in fr^ds Families should at the expiration of their Apprenticeship, not only be suitably Cloath^d. but that they should be furnished with a Bible for their reading, having been properly instructed during their service to fit them therefor.

JOHN TAYLOR FRENCH, JR.

As a young man of exceptional talent and worth, John Taylor French, Jr., son of John Taylor and Anastasia (Bye) French, early attracted the attention and won the high regard of a wide circle of friends. He learned the trade of stone engraver and this was his daily occupation. To the close confinement thereof was attributed the premature termination of a promising career. He manifested ability both as an artist and writer, many of his portraits and sketches receiving praise from competent critics. Before the days of photography he made clinical sketches for surgeons in Philadelphia hospitals. The accompanying portrait of himself is reproduced from his own sketch, made when he was nineteen years old. Likewise the picture of the old homestead at Lamberton, N. J., which appears on another page of this volume, was his quaint handiwork, being drawn in later years from boyhood memory. One of the literary papers to which he contributed was "Scott's Weekly," which, March 13th, 1852, referred to his untimely death as follows:

"In recording the death of John T. French, one of our earliest, warmest, and best friends, we must be pardoned for expressing our remembrance of private worth, his warmth of heart, and his many noble social qualities. He was one of the few men in God's world whose friendship stood the test of years without change and whose memory will live sacred in our heart. In his profession, he was proficient, and many of the productions of his pencil are stamped with artistic excellence and merit of the first order. He was an enthusiast of art, and an ornament to the profession in which he spent his life—his very being. As a writer, he gained some distinction. His compositions were chaste, easy and graceful; fertile in feeling and rich in all that marks a poem with beauty. His devotion to his profession precluded him from giving much of his time to the Muses, yet all of his productions were finished and exquisite."

George Geist Stambach was one of Philadelphia's prominent merchants, and for nearly thirty years, from 1837 to 1863, conducted the hat and fur business at 710 North Second Street. He was an active Mason and Odd Fellow, being treasurer of Mt. Olivet Encampment, I. O. O. F., for twenty-five years. During the Civil War Mr. Stambach was greatly interested in the Union cause; and "not feeling able to shoulder a musquet," he took an active part in caring for sick and wounded soldiers. Immediately following the great battle of Gettysburg, in July, 1863, he organized a band of nurses and assistants, consisting of himself and his daughter, Dr. Anna M. Stambach [899], Mrs. Elizabeth Turner, Cyrus Whitson and several others, and conducted them at his own expense to the scene of hostilities, with ample supplies necessary for such a timely mission. This little party of volunteer aids rendered valuable services, remaining on the ground several weeks, until all the wounded had been properly cared for.

John A. H. F. Stambach [900], after learning the business with his father, established in 1861 a fur store at 826 Arch Street, Philadelphia, which he successfully conducted until 1899, when he retired from active business.

Ida V. Stambach, M.D. [906], graduated from Hahnemann College, California, in 1888, and is a practicing physician in Santa Barbara, Cal., making a specialty of women's and children's diseases.

John Savage French enlisted December 23rd, 1861, in Company C, 90th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Col. Peter Lyle, commanding, an organization which rendered valliant service in the Army of the Potomac. It participated in a score of hard fought battles, including Second Bull Run, Rappahannock Station, Thoroughfare Gap, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Spottsylvania, Wilderness, Petersburg and the great struggle along the Weldon railroad. It served under Generals McDowell, Pope, McClellan, Burnside, Hooker, Reynolds, Meade and Grant. Private French was wounded at Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. In the desperate fight with Mahone, near Petersburg, Va., August 19th, 1864, with 2,000 comrades, including nearly one half of his own regiment, he was taken prisoner and confined in the famous Libby prison, at Richmond. Here he came under the kindly protection of an old boyhood friend, a civil attache of the prison, and escaped the sad fate of so many Union soldiers who were the victims of the open stockade at Salisbury, N. C. He was exchanged in February, 1865, and on account of his reenlistment, which dated from February, 1863, was transferred to the 11th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers. He was promoted to Sergeant and honorably discharged June 10th, 1865. He is Past Post Commander of Gen. E. D. Baker Post, No. 8, Grand Army of the Republic.

A TRIBUTE BY A GRANDDAUGHTER (Mrs. Lavinia C. Hinchman [1809])

"John Jones' education and habits from early youth led him to read and study the Bible, not as a text book but a revelation from God to man. He was a sincere and pious christian; a man who feared God but not death. He maintained independence, but sought not riches; he thought none below him but the base and unjust; none above him but the wise and virtuous. He loved his parents, kindred, friends and country, and devoted his life to them, resigning it calmly and giving all glory to his Creator."

He was about 65 years old and was one of the leading and best known farmers of Delaware township, owning a large and fine farm about a mile and a half from Haddonfield. He was very exemplary in his habits and was greatly devoted to his family and a prominent and leading member of the Haddonfield Baptist Church. He was also a leading member of the local Odd Fellows' lodge. The deceased suffered for over a year from the effects of the disease. His demise, however, is supposed to have been hastened by the destructive fire at his place last summer when his large barns and all his crops were destroyed, the fire being started by the sparks from a steam threshing machine."

EDWARD FRENCH

Edward French, oldest son of Joseph [285] and Elizabeth (Zane) French, possessed in marked degree the business like qualifications of a successful ancestry. All his manhood life he displayed enterprise and judgment in the buying and selling of real estate. Many such profitable transfers are recorded, the result being the acquirement of a considerable estate. He improved available property and took active part in the development of West Moorestown. Two notable transactions may be mentioned. In 1836 he bought, of Elizabeth R. Morgan, the revolutionary homestead of his grandfather, Edward French [121], with 95 acres, for $5,400 and one year later sold it to Mary Gosmer, for $7,100. This property is now known as "Forest Brook Farm." In order to settle the estate of Joseph French [285], commissioners of the Orphans' Court, February 8th, 1838, sold his homestead, on the north side of Main street, West Moorestown, and his son Edward bought the dwelling and 61 acres of farm land for $5,387. This property, in part, was embraced in the deed of gift of Thomas French, progenitor, to his son Thomas, in 1694. It was profitably added to and the building of the Camden and Burlington county railroad through it so increased its value that it comprised a good fortune in itself when bequeathed to his only surviving daughter, Sarah (French) Ogden, in 1871. Edward French was engaged at different times in various business enterprises. Shortly after the death of Joseph French [273], husband of "Aunt Kitty" French, in 1825, the business he had established in West Moorestown, later known as "Fairview Nurseries," was purchased, with the real estate, by Edward French and John Perkins, the first named retiring from the firm in 1840. During the next thirty years he continued an active and leading citizen of Moorestown.

Thomas Ellis French [1082], after completing his education, studied law in the office of Benjamin F. Shreeve, Camden, New Jersey. He was admitted to the bar in 1876 and as counsellor in 1879. He at once entered upon practice, soon reaching a foremost place at the Camden county bar and has continued his life work, declining all offers of public preferment. For a time he was in partnership with Charles G. Garrison, for some years past an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey. He has given special attention to real estate, insurance and corporation business and has been counsel in many important cases. Two of these related to the title to Long Beach, involving proprietary records and the right of the present board—or Council of Proprietors—to pass title to strangers. A VIRGINIA HOMESTEAD

From a communication received from Anna M. Roberts [1229], 1st mo. 27th, 1910:

"My father came to Virginia in 1848, having become interested in Alexandria and vicinity when attending, in his youth, Benjamin Hallowell's well known school. He bought, with his brother-in-law, Reuben Roberts, this place, "Cameron Mills,"—where we still live. The house was old in 1848 and is now one of the oldest in this part of the world, but we continue to find it a real home, full of comfort. My father left his children a good heritage in an honored name and they have done nothing to mar that inheritance. We continue to hold our membership in the Society of Friends—my brothers and sisters and myself.

"Walter Roberts [1226] is a merchant in Alexandria, a bank director, president of the Alexandria Water Co., etc. James W. Roberts [1228] is a farmer, bank director, school trustee, president of one of the most important home insurance companies, etc. While not engaged in extended business interests, they are men of high standing, living busy and useful lives."

A NOTABLE EDUCATOR

Benjamin Hallowell, born in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, 8th mo. 17th, 1799, died 9th mo. 7th, 1877, at his home near Sandy Spring, Montgomery county, Maryland, was a noted teacher, lecturer and philanthropist. It was under his direction and principalship that Friends' Central School, Philadelphia, was founded in 1845, at Fifth and Cherry streets. His skilful organization was the beginning, upon sound principles, of a noted institution. Previously he had conducted for a number of years a successful and prominent school in Alexandria, Virginia, but "the wear of the large school and lecturing twice a week on Chemistry, Astronomy, Geology, Philosophy, etc., through the term of eleven months, began to tell unfavorably on his physical constitution," and in the summer of 1842 he retired with his family to his farm at Rockland, Sandy Spring, Maryland, whence he went to Philadelphia, ninth month, 1845. After a year of earnest and effective work in that city, to which, in the characteristic sensitiveness of his nature, he refers as being "by no means to my own satisfaction, but I was conscious of having done the very best I could under the circumstances," he returned, much to the regret of his friends and associates in Philadelphia, to his Rockland farm, there to remain in retirement but a short time, when he again assumed charge of the school at Alexandria, broadening and extending its scope of usefulness. For more than half a century Benjamin Hallowell was a leading figure in the councils of Friends, his influence for good being felt in many directions. In 1910 seven pupils of his first school in Philadelphia were living, all retaining tender and appreciative memories of their early teacher.

MARY FRENCH-SHELDON, AUTHOR AND EXPLORER

Mary French-Sheldon [1241], third daughter of Joseph French, an engineer and mathematician of ability, and his wife, Elizabeth (Poorman) French, a practicing physician of New York City for some years, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., during the residence of her parents in that city. She was carefully educated as a musician and linguist and also took a course in medicine, but never practiced. Developing a taste and talent for literature and exploratory travel, she early entered the field as an author, translator and public lecturer. She made three journeys around the world, making historical and ethnological research, meanwhile translating a number of important French books. She became specially interested in African exploration, and greatly pleased French savants by such a faithful translation of M. Gustave Flaubert's "Salamambo" that the French government placed a copy of her work in his tomb, at Rouen. She conducted the publishing house of Saxon & Company for many years and was constantly engaged in editorial and literary work.

Her interest in African exploration and civilization led to a notable expedition, under her own direction, in 1891. The following year, under the title "Sultan to Sultan," she published a remarkable story of her adventures among the Masai and other tribes of East Africa, with maps and many suggestive illustrations reproduced from photographs made by this intrepid explorer, who was unaccompanied by any white person. Among her one hundred and forty native attendants there were only about half a dozen women. Her special object was to demonstrate the justice and wisdom of a peaceable and kindly policy in dealing with the long misunderstood and abused people of the Dark Continent. She passed through many perilous adventures and reached the East Coast, upon her return, in almost a dying condition. The story is told with fidelity to nature and at times with much feeling. The astonished natives always showed profound respect towards "Bebe Bwana," the "Woman Master" of this novel expedition. They vied with each other in rivaling the members of the caravan in paying daily court and performing acts of kindness and courtesy.

The expedition started inland from Mombasa in March, 1891, journeying some two hundred miles southwestwardly, to the great mountain Kilimanjaro, the vicinity of which is occupied by the Masai and other wild tribes. The explorer performed a remarkable feat in descending by a rugged and dangerous route, to the famous lake that lies in a perilous volcanic basin. Through interpreters she made herself quite at home in a forbidding wilderness, where no white woman and few white men ever trod. She was permitted to look upon inner scenes of African life and to learn many things hidden from the ordinary traveller. She walked much of the way and when wearied was carried in a huge basket palanquin which afforded a quiet and restful retreat during the heat of mid-day. Upon one occasion her carriers slipped, in crossing a fearful gorge, and all were plunged into the roaring abyss. In rescuing her the poor affrighted fellows, in their wild efforts to carry her up the steep rugged bank, hopelessly slipped and dropped her a second time, resulting in serious injury to her spine where she struck the rocks, nearly costing the life of "Bebe Bwana." This journey of an intelligent and brave American woman was a close, face to face, study of racial conditions that was certain to attract the attention of learned men and thoughtful observers everywhere. It secured recognition from British geographers and scientists; and the following year after Mrs. French-Sheldon's return to England she was commissioned to visit the missionary workers in the English Congo region. Her book was reviewed in the most flattering manner, many other travellers testifying to its interest and value. She was made a member of the Royal Geographical Society, London, and resides in Pembroke Square, Kensington, W.

Some years before her journey to Africa this notable woman met and married Eli Lemon Sheldon, a man of considerable intellectual gifts and a successful author. He fully sympathized with her in her work, but was unable to accompany her on her memorable journey. His health failed and he died, in 1892, as her book was going to press. In the revised preface she paid the following tribute to his memory:

"Dedicated to Eli Lemon Sheldon

To whom I owe all I have accomplished. My inspiration, my critic, my advocate, my refuge, my anchor, my sympathizer, my friend, my comrade, my husband.

Honorable, gifted, noble, unselfish, gentleman, beloved by all; whose sudden demise has laid upon me a tragic burden of sorrow during the completion of this volume.

M. French-Sheldon.

Boston, U. S. A., August 1st, 1892."

CAPTAIN THOMAS FRENCH

Thomas French, fifth son and child of Joseph and Martha (Newton) French, received his early education in Beaver, Penna., and then went to Pittsburgh and took a course of study to fit himself as mechanical engineer. In that capacity he served for several years on the western and south-western steamboat lines. In 1841, he removed to Burlington, Iowa, where he followed his calling and engaged successfully in various industrial enterprises. He represented the notable firm of Gales & Seaton, owners and editors of the "National Intelligencer," Washington, D. C., for twelve years, operating the Burlington ferry, controlled by them, and as general agent looked after their extensive western interests. In 1854, Mr. French with a number of others purchased about 700 acres of land which included the ferry property on the Illinois side of the river. He then superintended the construction of four large steamboats, built at different points, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Brownsville, Pa., three for use of the ferry, and one for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. In the fall of 1856, Mr. French sold his interest in the ferry, and was not again interested in business for some years. He had also dealt largely in real estate, buying and selling city and other valuable property, and had acquired considerable real estate personally. He took an active and influential interest in local affairs. He was seven years a member of the City Council, and was Mayor of Burlington during the entire civil war, in that position rendering conspicuous and efficient service to the national government. He assisted in raising troops and took a notable part in caring for the families of Union soldiers. He was an efficient city officer, and his term of office was marked by a wise, orderly and economical administration. In all the walks of life, Captain French was recognized as a man of high character and worthy motives. His humanitarian views led him to espouse the cause of the colored race, as a vigorous advocate of emancipation before the war. To this end he allied himself with the Republican party at its birth and always sustained its principles. He is remembered in Burlington, Iowa, where he lived for two score years, as one of its most noted citizens.

1261—WILLIAM CALDWELL FRENCH

- Attorney-at-Law.

SAMUEL B. FRENCH

Samuel B. French [668], sixth son and child of Joseph and Martha (Newton) French, when a young man entered the service of one of the steamboat companies plying on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, between Pittsburgh and New Orleans. He possessed qualities specially adapted to this work, and was very successful. He became captain and part proprietor and later owner of several steamboats, among them the Joseph Pierce, Tropic and Shenango. Retiring from river life, he engaged extensively in the manufacture of brick under the firm name of French & Quay. The plant was conveniently located on the south side of the Ohio River, directly opposite Beaver, Pa., and Mr. French was conducting this business at the time of his death. About 1845, Mr. French built a substantial and attractive brick residence in Beaver, at the northwest corner of Elk and Second streets (see accompanying illustration), in which he resided until his death in 1874. He was a public spirited man of considerable influence and prominence, and in politics an old line Democrat. His active river life had prevented his accepting political office. He was of benevolent and social disposition, active in the Masonic fraternity, being a charter member of St. Joseph Lodge No. 457, F. & A. M., of Beaver, and a member of Commandery No. 1 of the Knights Templars, of Pittsburgh. After Mr. French's death in 1874 his former partner, Matthew Stanley Quay, later noted in the politics of Pennsylvania, settled the estate, and secured possession of the residence at Elk and Second streets, which he occupied as his home for the balance of his life.

Mr. French's wife, Emily (Robinson) French, was for many years an active member of the First Presbyterian Church, of Beaver, Pa.; she survived her husband some twenty years, dying at the age of seventy.

JUDGE DAVID BLACKWOOD MORGAN

David Blackwood Morgan was a descendant of the pioneer Morgan and Blackwood families, long associated with the early settlers of Gloucester county. His father, David Morgan, was born December 15th, 1740, died June 4th, 1789. He married in 1768, Mary Blackwood and had children, Margaret, born April 25th, 1769; John, born March 15th, 1771; Mary, born January 15th, 1774. Mary (Blackwood) Morgan died January 30th, 1774, and David Morgan married, second, Sarah Blackwood, and had three sons, Joseph, born March 9th, 1780; Randall, born January 15th, 1782; and David Blackwood Morgan, born February 11th, 1785. Sarah (Blackwood) Morgan died March 3rd, 1785. By will dated April 13th, 1789, proved June 17th, 1789, David Morgan directed that his "three younger sons, Joseph, Randle, and David, be put to trade as they severally shall choose after they arrive to the age of 14, and I also desire that said three sons shall live with the persons they are now with until they are 14; son Joseph with his uncle Joseph Blackwood, Esq.; my son Randle with his cousin Randle Morgan; and my son David with Ephraim Cheesman, and the cost of educating and bringing up on son David until he is 14 is to be paid out of his portion."

David Morgan was the son of George Morgan, of Deptford, Gloucester Co., N. J., whither he had come from Bucks Co., Pa., about 1734. By will dated April 17th, 1759, proved May 16th, 1759, George Morgan mentions his sons George, Randall, Jonathan, David and Abraham, daughters Anne Styles and Martha.

David Blackwood Morgan married first, March 10th, 1814, Elizabeth (Tomlinson) Clark, of Gloucester township and county. She was born March 28th, 1783, and died February 1st, 1829. They had the following children: Ellwood, born March 13th, 1815; Joshua T., born February 24th, 1817, died August 25th, 1833; Mordecai, born April 22nd, 1819; Ann, born December 23rd, 1820; Barclay, born January 13th, 1824, died November 6th, 1825. In 1820 David B. Morgan purchased of Abel Nicholson a farm of 119 acres, with large dwelling, still standing, near Chew's Landing, on Timber Creek. Later he added to this homestead, and during the next twenty-five years purchased several tracts in the same vicinity. He took an active interest in public affairs and in 1829 and 1838 was made justice of the peace and also served the same year as lay Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Gloucester county. In 1833 he was a subscriber to the maintenance fund of the historic St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, at Chew's Landing. He acted as administrator in the settlement of many estates, being one of the Orphans' Court Commissioners who sold the farm of Francis French [116], on Timber Creek, near Almonesson, in 1833. In 1837 he sold his farm at Chew's Landing, devoting himself thereafter to other business. Upon his death, at an advanced age, in 1868, he was buried with his ancestors in the old graveyard of the First Presbyterian Church, Blackwood, N. J.

SAMUEL HARRISON FRENCH

As already noted, Uriah French [353] soon after selling his farm and saw mill property near Mullica Hill, N. J., removed with his family to Swedesboro, where he engaged in mercantile business, remaining there until his death, in 1825. Although but nine years of age at the time of his father's death, with three younger brothers, Samuel H. French was then called upon to face the serious problems of that earnest useful life which afterwards characterized him; and in the quaint language of the times, he became the "man of the house." The family returned to live in the vicinity of Mullica Hill, and for some years thereafter Samuel H. French attended the historic Harmony School at that place, his cousin, Samuel G. French [755], afterwards a famous soldier, being his schoolmate. He was a faithful helper in the home and on the farm, building up a sturdy young manhood. When sixteen years of age, home ties were broken, and he went forth confidently to make his own way in the world, carrying with him as a token of his mother's loving tender care and solicitude, a Bible containing the inscription in her handwriting, "Samuel H. French from his mother," which she had given him with the earnest request that he "search the Scriptures and follow their precepts." He was placed as an apprentice with his older cousin, William Hazelton French [746], of Philadelphia, doubtless little dreaming of the measure of success which he was to achieve in the commercial world. Attentive, efficient and faithful, he was soon entrusted with larger responsibilities. He was sent to Salem, Ohio, about 1837, on a business trip, which proved more than usually successful, and he decided to locate there. He soon became very profitably interested in several enterprises. His affairs prospered socially as well as otherwise. It was here he met and married the lady who thereafter journeyed through life with him as his faithful helpmate. Four of their children were born in Salem.

Returning to Philadelphia in 1852, Mr. French entered vigorously upon the business career which soon marked him as one of the leaders in the manufacturing and mercantile development of the city. Having acquired special knowledge of a particular branch of trade, he determined to continue therein, and associated himself with his younger brother, Clayton French [735] in establishing the manufacturing branch of French & Richards, wholesale dealers in drugs, paints and oils, northwest corner of Tenth and Market streets, Philadelphia. The manufacturing department of the business was conducted under the style of C. French & Co., and they at once commenced the production of paints, plaster, cement and building materials at York avenue, Crown and Callowhill streets, purchasing the plant of Paschall Coggins, located there, fitting it up with improved machinery, etc. The business prospered greatly but was soon overtaken by misfortune. On the night of October 1st, 1854, the factory was destroyed by fire, causing a severe loss thus early in the career of the new firm. From the Philadelphia Public Ledger of October 2nd, 1854, we quote the following:

"At one o'clock yesterday [Sunday] morning the extensive steam plaster mills, corner of York Avenue and Callowhill St, belonging to Messrs C. French & Co, took fire and burned to the ground. The basement, first and second stories were occupied by the firm and contained a valuable engine and other costly machinery, besides a large quantity of prepared plaster and cement. Messrs French & Richards occupied the upper stories as a manufactory of paints and oil. At the time of the fire there were fifteen tons of zinc ground in the mill, several tons prepared for grinding, about five tons of green paint, together with other colored paints and oils. The loss is estimated at $45,000; insurance $13,000. The origin of the fire is not accounted for; some think it was accidental, while others suppose it was the work of an incendiary."

The situation was met with courage, energy and faith, the high credit in the business world for integrity and enterprise already established being a potent factor in this trying hour. By February, 1855, there was erected upon the site of the old factory a large and substantial four-story building, containing all the (then) modern appliances for the manufacture of paints and plaster; and the machinery was started and the factory put in full operation on the fifth day of that month. In that year the name of the firm was changed to French, Richards & Co. In 1857 they erected at the junction of York avenue, Fourth and Callowhill streets a five-story brick and iron building, and in 1864 a storehouse on Noble street, between Fourth street and York avenue, and the following year a large and commodious stable, with accommodations for 28 horses, on York avenue, below Buttonwood street, extending eastward and connecting with the warehouse on Noble street.

The fire which destroyed the plaster works fortunately left standing the adjoining building, situated at the southwest corner of York avenue and Callowhill street. This house had been built by John Penn, on part of his "Spitsylvania" estate—Manor of Springetsbury—and being located as it was, on Old York road, over which much traffic passed between Philadelphia and New York, its pretentious size made it an object of more than usual interest. It was, we believe, the first house erected in that section, north of Vine street, the then northern limit of the city. When making alterations in the building, which has been remodeled for office use by the firm of Samuel H. French & Co., a brace of duelling pistols, pigs of lead, bullet moulds, knives and many other interesting relics have been found. The bricks in this building were brought from England and the wood used, oak and hickory, is now almost as hard as stone. Sentimental and patriotic considerations have prevailed thus far when propositions to tear down and rebuild, in accordance with modern methods and conveniences, have repeatedly been suggested. Another noteworthy land mark, nearby, at the junction of York road and Fourth street, is the Indian pole, surmounted by a giant chief, which stands on the site of the last great "pow wow" of the receding sons of the forest, a century and a half ago.

In the equitable division of burdens and responsibilities arising under a business of remarkable growth and magnitude, Samuel H. French gave the manufacturing department of French, Richards & Co., daily and unceasing personal supervision, while Clayton French devoted his energies to the general management of the sales department of the business. The dominant qualities of each supplemented the other harmoniously and effectively. But another great trial was just ahead. At 10:30 P. M., October 3rd, 1865, the great seven-story warehouse at Tenth and Market streets was discovered to be on fire. Owing to the inflammable nature of the contents, the building was soon a roaring furnace. The scene was wierdly impressive and attracted a multitude of spectators, while the firemen—the heroic volunteers of those days—performed their perilous duties with unselfish zeal. The loss by the fire was about $300,000, with less than $200,000 insurance. As an interesting account of this notable incident in local history, we take the following from the Philadelphia Public Ledger of October 4th, 1865:

"Last evening about eleven oclock, a fire broke out in the extensive drug and paint Establishment of French, Richards & Co., Tenth & Market Streets. The fire was discovered by a citizen who was passing, who gave the alarm, but before any fire engines could be got into service the entire first and second floors were in flames, from the large amount of drugs and paints stored there. Smoke poured from every window of the huge five story warehouse. The fire rapidly extended all over the building. The roof soon fell in and the fire reached the cupola, presenting a magnificent sight.

The cupola burned for a half hour and then fell, filling the heavens with myriads of sparks, the city being brilliantly illuminated for a great distance around. Sparks were thrown upon the houses in all directions and the firemen were kept busy watching them, so as to prevent the spread of the conflagration. The two buildings adjoining on the west, also occupied by French, Richards & Co, as storehouses for glassware, were somewhat damaged both by fire and water. The fire raged for several hours and at half past twelve this morning the entire inside of the building was consumed and only the bare walls were standing. There was no damage to surrounding property. The loss was very heavy."

There were no facilities in those days for the quick transmission of intelligence to the suburbs, no local telegraph, no telephone, no early trains for newspapers. Samuel H. French first learned of the disastrous work of the night when crossing the Delaware, in the morning, on the ferry boat, his family yet lingering in their country home, on the White Horse pike. "That's too bad," was his characteristically brief, unruffled comment. After a few minutes consultation with his brother, as they stood beside the smoking ruins, orders were issued for the resumption of business, at a temporary location, 630 Market street, where the entire stock and fixtures of Thomas P. James were purchased. Needing much larger quarters, pending the rebuilding at Tenth and Market streets, the Franklin market house (now the Mercantile Library building) on Tenth street, below Market, was occupied by French, Richards & Co. for about two years. It was then owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which proposed to utilize it as a great central station, adjoining that at Market and Eleventh streets, but the exigencies of business and the erection of the new City Hall, on Broad street, necessitated the removal of tracks on Market street. The building had been used by the United States Sanitary Commission during the Civil War, as a depot of supplies.

The new building which French, Richards & Co. erected at the northwest corner of Tenth and Market streets, and occupied in the fall of 1867, was one of the finest commercial structures in the city. The hydraulic elevator, with a shaft extending ninety-six feet below the surface of the street, cost $25,000. All departments of the business rapidly increased during the ensuing years. On January 1st, 1883, Clayton French and Samuel H. French dissolved their partnership of more than thirty years. The former continued the wholesale drug business at Tenth and Market streets, while the latter remained at Fourth and Callowhill streets, in the manufacturing line, organizing the firm of Samuel H. French & Co., with his sons, William A. French and Howard B. French, and John L. Longstreth, as partners, the latter having been connected with the business from the year 1852. Shortly after this change the firm established an additional factory in Camden, N. J. On April 11th, 1886, William A. French died; and since the death of the senior partner, in 1895, and the retirement of Mr. Longstreth, in 1901, Howard B. French has continued the business, with ever-increasing success, adhering to the sound principles and wise policy which always characterized its honored founders.

During an active career of nearly three score years, Samuel H. French took a lively and influential interest in all the great questions of the time. He was eminently conservative and safe in all business methods, yet in full accord with every progressive idea of practical utility, his firm becoming a pioneer among manufacturers and merchants in the adaptation of improved ways and means of extending trade. Its quick recuperation, after two destructive fires, was an illustration of business energy and enthusiasm. Its individual members were at all times ready to do their personal part along civic lines and in sustaining public enterprises and worthy charitable effort. As their trade relations were very extensive, so with many others their losses were heavy in consequence of the breaking out of Civil War, in 1861; but a spirit of firm devotion to the cause of national union was earnestly manifested at all times. Passing incidents were significant.

Upon one occasion, when indignant citizens demanded the enforced retirement, from Philadelphia, of a too pronounced sympathizer with rebellion, who was a business neighbor and tenant of Samuel H. French, he vigorously declared: "That's right and I'll lend his associates all the money needful to buy out his interest." Owning a farm in Maryland, he caused to be erected a national flag, which floated during the ensuing exciting years, an object of intense and patriotic interest to a great multitude of soldiers of the Union army, as they passed by, on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad.

A notable incident occurred the middle of May, 1862, during the operations of General McClellan's army, near Yorktown, Virginia. There had been much fighting for several days and as hospital accommodations in the field were inadequate, many wounded soldiers were sent north. Pennsylvania made special provision for the care of its own men, sending Surgeon General Smith, with a corps of assistants and nurses to the front. Upwards of two hundred wounded men were placed on a Baltimore steamer and hurried to Philadelphia, via the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal, where they arrived on Tuesday night, May 13th. News of their coming had been forwarded, so that a great crowd assembled at Vine street wharf. Merchants and manufacturers volunteered the services of their wagons, as improvised ambulances. French, Richards & Co. sent fifteen wagons, to help in this merciful work of transferring the wounded soldiers to the hospitals, these being the first teams to arrive at the wharf.

Although always a consistent member of the Society of Friends, Samuel H. French insisted upon bearing his share of the burden cheerfully borne by all loyal citizens and doing even more than this. He furnished substitutes for himself—though he was beyond the age limit—two sons and two business associates, and specially cared for the families of those in his employ who enlisted, duplicating the bounty paid by the State, county and city. He had very early in life espoused the cause of the colored people, yet with characteristic freedom from ostentation, very little record was left of the great work which he did for wronged and needy humanity. As a young man, in Ohio, he conducted a branch of the famous "Underground Railway," assisting many fleeing bond men and women to escape from their pursuers. When the Home for Aged Colored Persons was started in Philadelphia, after the war, he was one of the earliest subscribers, becoming a life member of the corporation.

Repeatedly worthy-looking young colored men were seen in Mr. French's private office. To all curious inquiries he would return evasive answers. Not even the officers of the educational institutions where these grateful beneficiaries were received, were permitted to know to whom they were indebted. Enough has been learned, however, to make clear the fact that a considerable number of young men were thus fitted for work amongst their own people, the single imperative condition being that they must go South and either teach or preach. Doubtless in many ways the good seed was sown without the knowledge of men, the harvest of which will continue to be gathered in the years to come.

A beautiful tribute was paid, a touching mystery to the wondering eyes that witnessed it. Into the crowded house of sorrow, during the solemn services over the remains of Samuel H. French, quietly pressed two aged colored women. After gazing tearfully, for the last time, upon the face of the man who had so often remembered, in their hour of need, the people now fitly represented by these humble mourners, they knelt by the casket, remaining there during the reading of scripture and prayer, a scene worthy the sympathetic tears of angel watchers above.

The loss sustained by the paint trade of Philadelphia in the death of Samuel H. French was the principal topic at the February (1895) meeting of the Paint Club of that city. During his long and successful business career he had made many friends and his wide popularity was shown in the utterances of members of the trade. One of those who spoke, Mr. S. K. Felton, said that Mr. French "represented the very highest type of honorable business men. He was a man of the strictest integrity and among the most exemplary of that exemplary Christian body, the Society of Friends. I have known him in business for forty-five years, and have never heard a word uttered against his character as a Christian or as a business man."

The following resolutions were adopted as expressing the unanimous sentiment of the club:

WHEREAS, it has pleased Almighty God to call to his abiding home, through death, our honored townsman, Samuel H. French, the merchants and paint trade of Philadelphia are profoundly impressed with the great loss they have sustained; therefore be it Resolved, That the Paint Club, recognizing the loving hand of the All-Wise Father that governs life and death, reverently bows to this decree. We are also thankful for the example of the honest and pure life of Mr. French, who, in a marked degree, seemed to have sanctified his business life, extending through a period of over fifty years, with the calm peace of the God of his revered Quaker fathers, thus illustrating the weight and value of moral character in business.

Resolved, That this club will long cherish the memory of Mr. French, the Christian gentleman, and that the secretary be requested to send a copy of these resolutions to the bereaved family.

Simultaneously there were many other expressions of like character, from long-time friends. From a number of these communications, addressed to Howard B. French, quotations are thus made:

"I desire to express my great sympathy for you in your bereavement, for your father was surely one of nature's noblemen. Far better than fame or riches is the verdict that the world will pronounce in his case, that he was a good man and one who will be sorely missed.

Clayton R. Shoumaker

"The expression of calm, sweet peace, combined with manly dignity, was so rare and so spiritual that I am sure it must have been a source of great comfort to you and your family. The life was beautiful and the body was beautiful in death. I trust our Father in Heaven is giving you His Consolation and blessing.

Sincerely yours

Wm. Watcull

"He was spared to reach a good old age, to see his children grown up and highly respected, and now he is called away, leaving a record behind him worthy of imitation—an example dear to his children and hosts of friends.

Sincerely yours
Edw. L. Greenough

"Not only was Mr French a recognized Captain of industry, but his noble bearing marked him as such to every observer, while the commanding outward appearance was an evidence of the inward man. Confidence in his character and word was assured. Entirely free from ostentation, he pursued the tenor of his manly way with dignity and good will towards his fellow men, as he passed through life. As I gazed upon his face, its calm repose inspired the thought: Here is a man prepared to meet his God.

Very sincerely yours
Wm. B. Mather

"It is with feelings of profound sorrow I learn that the spirit of your good father has taken its flight—to whence we know not? I picture him in his coffin; you have looked on his face for the last time; and the lid closes forever from your sight all that is mortal of a good man and a kind father, and it is returned 'to the ground; for out of it, was it taken.'

"For three score years I have known him well, and I can recall naught but unbroken friendship—not only to me but to members of my family. He contemned all that was low and mean, and a generous impulse governed his acts. I can offer no consolation to you or the members of his family; that must come from a higher source. I can only sympathize in your affliction and share it with you. His death makes me feel more lonely in this world; one by one the companions of my youthful days have passed away to the otherside of the river until I am left almost alone.

Affectionately Your Cousin

S. G. French.

From "Drugs, Oils and Paints," February 18th, 1895, Philadelphia, a leading trade paper, we quote as follows:

"Samuel H. French was a man of pronounced views, charitable, benevolent and of unswerving integrity, in every respect a type of the upright christian gentleman and business man. Of dignified demeanor, tranquil life and unselfish nature, he often expressed it as his ambition to leave to his family, not great wealth but an honorable name; and in this his success was marked, for there has been none more honored in the city of Philadelphia."

The most tender and suggestive message of abiding respect and sympathy came from the office employees, a number of whom had been in the service of the man whom all had learned to look upon as their best friend, for many years. We quote this beautiful letter entire:

"Mr Howard B French

Dear Mr French

It is with hearts keenly alive to the suffering occasioned by just such seasons through which you are now passing, that we earnestly wish to extend you our deepest sympathies. You have lost a father, we a friend, but to those who sorrow with you at this time comes the thought—that to some extent breaks in upon the sombreness of the gloom—that it has been a most sacred privilege to have come in touch with this one of God's children, in whom was embodied so many of the attributes which brings a life into the measure of the stature of the 'Perfect One.'

"We sincerely hope that to you may come some little comfort in the thought, that as life would not be complete without death, so the going out of this life, so rich in the crowning years of time, seems but a quiet

"WHITE MANSION," SUMMER RESIDENCE OF SAMUEL H. FRENCH, WHITE HORSE PINE, benediction to the closing of a well spent day; and that as the broken circle closes, and the duties of life are once more assumed, we shall find ourselves knitted closer in loyal and loving allegiance to the son of him who leaves a memory of such living useful worth

"With deepest sympathy, we are," etc.

The inspiration of these impressive words is readily perceived. They reveal the manner of man Samuel H. French was in his daily walk and conversation; they show the influence exercised upon those having the closest opportunity to observe the guiding principles of an always busy life; the effect of a consistent example of just dealing, kindly consideration, practical sympathy, genial fellowship. Out of full hearts affectionate tribute is paid and the promise of renewed loyalty freely given, an exhibition of the continuity of devotion that calls for the highest admiration. Well would it be throughout the business world if such instances were not so rare. In the home, the social circle, the religious and philanthropic arena, this winning personality created an atmosphere of up-lifting confidence that made his presence a constant benediction. His children were his happy companions; he was the sharer of their hopes, ambitions and pleasures. His business associates leaned on him at all times, relied upon his counsel, respected his admonition and his chief partner, his younger brother, fondly regarded him as without an equal in the affairs of men.

Thoroughly devoted to his self-appointed duties, this strong-minded leader in the business world, when the day was done, found his delight in the quiet restfulness and beauty of rural life, an outward reflection of an inward love of the ways of peace and righteousness. The exalted faith of the fathers was to him an ever-present and joyous reality. His calm countenance at all times showed forth his supreme trustfulness. From early life, guided by a faithful mother's loving eye, he wrought for himself a place of usefulness and honor, leaving the priceless heritage of a good name, his steadfast chief desire and purpose. As a fitting and lasting tribute to the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the nation, Mr. French planted, in the spring of 1876, one thousand shade trees along the roads surrounding his summer home, in Camden county, New Jersey. Most of these trees have grown to large size, and now (1913) add much to the beauty of the neighborhood and the comfort of the inhabitants of that very populous locality. It is deemed a special privilege and duty thus to gather up the scattered threads of a life of singular purity, fidelity, industry and lofty devotion to the best ideals, for the inspiration and encouragement of those who come after.

FLUID LAMP, 1850.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER FRENCH.

William Alexander French [1405], second son and child of Samuel H. and Angelina (Dunseth) French, was educated at Friends' Central School, Fifteenth and Race streets, Philadelphia. While attending school he manifested an eager desire to win a useful place in the commercial world, taking special interest in chemistry and those studies which, rightly applied, would enable him to succeed therein. After completing his schooling, he took a position in the office of the manufacturing branch of his father's firm, French, Richards & Co., where he quickly adapted himself to circumstances and rapidly acquired a knowledge of the details of business. It was his special delight to perform those duties which brought him into close relationship with his father, and to relieve him of needless work of supervision. He was early entrusted with larger responsibilities and never failed to meet every requirement. In 1872, with his elder brother, Emmor Davis French [1404], he formed the firm of E. D. & W. A. French, manufacturers and dealers in paints and building materials, with location in Camden, N. J. The brothers remained together in business until 1878, when, owing to ill health, Emmor D. French retired from the firm, and William A. French continued the business until January, 1883, at which time it was absorbed by his uniting with his father, Samuel H. French, his brother, Howard B. French, and John L. Longstreth, forming the firm of Samuel H. French & Co., a division having taken place at that time in the old firm of French, Richards & Co., the latter continuing under that name in the drug business, and Samuel H. French & Co. continuing the manufacturing and builders' supply department of the business.

William A. French was actively interested in all that pertained to the advancement and betterment of Philadelphia. He was connected with a number of charitable institutions and devoted much time and attention to benefiting the colored race, rendering material assistance in establishing a home for colored orphans. His death, from pneumonia, at an early age, the result of unremittent devotion to business, was a sad blow to a large circle of friends, both business and social, and an irreparable loss to his family. He was loved and respected as a man of noble character and the highest ideals of life.

As a young man, Charles Barclay French, third son and eighth child of Uriah [353] and Mary (Ivins) French, was apprenticed to his cousin, William Hazelton French [746]. For some little time after the expiration of his apprenticeship he remained in the employ of his cousin, but having a pronounced liking for out-door life, he engaged in farming, continuing therein until his death in 1870. He took an active interest in local conditions, advocating practicable improvements; and while residing in Newton township, Camden county, N. J., he was largely instrumental in having Newton creek dredged, from its mouth to the White Horse turnpike, making available and highly productive a large section of meadow and greatly improving in every way the surrounding country. In February, 1869, the house in which he lived, located at the intersection of White Horse pike and Collings' road, was entirely destroyed by fire, the family barely having time to escape from the burning building. The night was extremely cold, everything frozen, and the exposure and shock of losing the home resulted in illness from which he never recovered.

Uriah French, Jr., fourth son and ninth child of Uriah [353] and Mary (Ivins) French, devoted most of his life to manufacturing and commercial pursuits. For some years he conducted a general hardware store in Millville, N. J., and later for a short time resided in Camden, N. J., whence he moved with his family to Philadelphia and formed the firm of Shords & French, soap manufacturers. Their business prospered materially and the future seemed very promising for the firm. In 1856, during an epidemic of smallpox in Philadelphia, two of his children were stricken and died, so disheartening and impairing the health of his wife that he was induced to move his family to the vicinity of Atwater, Ohio, near the home of his wife's parents. Shortly after this he went to Missouri, to look after some business matters and while there died suddenly. Although no evidence was obtained as to the cause of death, it was supposed at the time that the money which he had on his person, which was of considerable amount, had tempted some avaricious person to take his life.

CLAYTON FRENCH

Clayton French, fifth son and youngest child of Uriah [353] and Mary (Ivins) French, was less than two years old at the time of his father's death. When about eight years of age he went to live with George T. Atkinson and his wife Elizabeth, useful and influential Friends living near Mullica Hill, N. J., his mother having returned to that vicinity after the death of her husband in Swedesboro, where the family had lived for some years. He was early trained to industrious and careful habits. Diligent in study, quick in acquiring practical knowledge, ambitious and maturing rapidly, like his elder brother, Samuel, he journeyed to the great city on the Delaware when a lad of sixteen to seek a place of usefulness where he might profitably develop the gifts already indicated. He found what proved to be a very promising opportunity with Dr. Edward S. Wilcox, who conducted a retail drug store at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Callowhill streets, or the outskirts, in those days, of Philadelphia. During the last years of his engagement, Dr. Wilcox was seriously ill and the conduct of the business was left entirely to Mr. French, although but nineteen years of age. His management, however, proved so successful as to attract the attention of Mr. William Campbell, who.

after Dr. Wilcox's death, became a partner with Mr. French, under the style of Campbell & French. This connection lasted only about a year, and was succeeded by the firm of French & Richards, composed of Clayton French, William H. Richards, afterwards his brother-in-law, and John E. Morey, with location at the northwest corner of Tenth and Market streets. In 1852, his elder brother, Samuel H. French, became associated with the firm. In 1857, William H. Richards died, and in 1859 the death of John E. Morey occurred. In 1861, Clayton and Samuel H. French admitted Edwin Morey, brother of John E. Morey, deceased, to an interest in the firm, from which he withdrew July 1st, 1865. In January, 1866, C. W. Funk and William Hazelton, Jr., were admitted to the firm, the latter dying in 1884, while the former retired in January, 1888. In January, 1883, Clayton and his brother, Samuel H. French, dissolved their business connection, the latter continuing the manufacturing department at York Avenue, Fourth and Callowhill streets, and the former the drug business at Tenth and Market streets, under the old style, French, Richards & Co. In January, 1885, Clayton French connected with him his son, Harry B., and on the first of January, 1888, his son, Samuel H. French, Jr., and his nephew, C. Stanley French.

As will be observed, Clayton French was the founder of the firm of French & Richards, afterwards French, Richards & Co. For over forty years he was an active partner, giving close and effective attention to the daily conduct of its affairs and to his vigilance and zeal its prosperity was in large measure due. Other interesting details of its successful history appear on preceding pages, in chronological order, in the sketch of Samuel H. French, his elder brother, and partner for over thirty years, and therefore need not be repeated here.

At the time of his decease, July 26th, 1890, Mr. French was senior member of the firm of French, Richards & Co., a special partner with Bailey, Banks & Biddle, a director in the Guarantee Trust & Safe Deposit Company, the Pennsylvania Warehousing Company, the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, the Charleston (S. C.) Mining and Manufacturing Company, the United States Chemical Company, and from January, 1873, until the time of his death member of the Executive Council of the Philadelphia Board of Trade.

In January, 1861, the firm of French, Richards & Co. signed the call for a meeting of manufacturers and wholesale druggists to form an association, the objects of which were defined as follows: "To facilitate the purchase and sale of drugs, the common interests of its members by encouraging intimate personal intercourse with each other, and the protection of the individual and united interests of the drug trade." This association became known as the "Philadelphia Drug Exchange," which has continued an influential and useful adjunct of the trade for half a century. Mr. French was elected a member of the first board of directors and served in that capacity for many years.

Throughout an active and uniformly successful business career of nearly half a century, Clayton French built up and maintained a reputation for energy, sagacity, integrity and foresight that gave him an enviable place as a leader in the world of trade. Exacting in his requirements of others, he applied the same rules of industry and fidelity to himself. He permitted no deviation from correct business principles. Contracts must be executed as agreed upon, even though sometimes at a loss to his own firm, but it was seldom that his judgment was at fault. He was far-seeing and courageous, reaping reward where less self-confident conduct would have failed to bring satisfactory returns. His knowledge of business extended to minute details and he could not tolerate negligence or careless methods. His relations with employees were friendly and helpful. He was hospitable to friends and always solicitous for the welfare and happiness of his own family, contributing most liberally to the desires of those near to him, and taking a pardonable pride in the surroundings and appointments of his home.

Always interested in civic affairs and believing in the maintenance of sound principles of government and upright political methods, Mr. French gave freely of his time and substance to forwarding the great reform movement that led to the adoption of a new charter for Philadelphia. As a member of the Committee of One Hundred he rendered valuable service. Throughout the Civil War period he joined his business associates in upholding the cause of the Union. Like his elder brother and long-time partner, Clayton French, without fortune or influential friends at the beginning, solved for himself the problem of life, achieving a measure of material success only vouchsafed to men of strong mind, high purpose and indomitable will.

At the time of his death his city residence was 1827 Walnut street, Philadelphia, and he had a beautiful country home located on York Road, near Fisher's Lane.

At the meeting of the Executive Council of the Philadelphia Board of Trade, following Mr. French's death, these minutes were adopted:

"The Philadelphia Board of Trade has recently suffered by decease the loss of some most useful, and while in health, most active members. Among those so lost by death, none were more useful and none more active than Clayton French.

"In the many years of his connection with and services to this Board, his counsel and advice were always earnest, always to the point and of marked ability and wisdom.

"By this Board he has been repeatedly chosen as a delegate to the National Board of Trade; in which Board his ability to handle and debate the great commercial questions coming before the body indicated the thoughtful practical intelligence of this eminent merchant.

"For the past year his friends and associates marked with sorrow the physical infirmity and declining health of Mr. French, and, while his mind remained bright and clear, all knew that he could not long be with us.

"We can but mourn the loss of such men, and bow to the will of Providence."

The following is an extract from the Minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company, August 4th, 1890:

"The President announced to the Board in a fitting manner and with appropriate remarks, that a loss had been sustained in their membership by the demise of Mr. Clayton French on July 26th, 1890, whereupon, on motion of Mr. Stadiger, the following was adopted, viz:

"The Officers and Board of Directors of the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company are called upon to record the death of another of its early Directors, Mr. Clayton French. Impressed as they are with his strict integrity, the correctness of his judgment, the faithfulness which he displayed in performing the duties intrusted to him, as well as the kindness and courtesy of manner which tempered his business exactness—the Board feel his loss most keenly both as a social as well as business friend and associate and order that this minute be inscribed in the Minute book of the Company.

"They further direct that this Resolution be transcribed and forwarded to Mr. French's afflicted family with the expression of their sincere sympathy with them in the loss of one so deservedly held dear by them."

LIEUTENANT JAMES HANSELL FRENCH

James Hansell French [1427], eldest son of Clayton and Catharine Ann (Hansell) French, was born and received his preliminary education in the city of Philadelphia. In 1869 he was appointed a cadet in the United States Military Academy, West Point, in accordance with his ardent desire and the seeming trend of his life, he being fond of outdoor pleasures and stirring adventure. He graduated with honor in 1874, and entered the cavalry service as second lieutenant in the Ninth Regiment, stationed in Texas. On account of raids of border cattle thieves the young officer soon saw very active and more or less dangerous service. He frequently pursued marauders beyond the Rio Grande, and upon one occasion broke into a secret storehouse where their arms were kept and confiscated them, defying the local Mexican authorities. For this act he was indicted but being sustained by his superior officers the matter went no further. Soon thereafter he was ordered to Fort Garland and marched his detachment over the desert plains for several weeks, enduring great hardships. Later he retired from the army, but in 1877 his commission was renewed and he soon engaged on the frontier, taking part in hazardous expeditions against warring Indians in the southwest.

It was in Arizona, in January, 1880, that Lieutenant French, serving under Major Morrow, was assigned to pursue a band of hostile Apache Indians, of which Victoria was chief, in the San Mateo mountains. This service required great courage and endurance, and resulted in the untimely ending of the young officer's life. An interesting account of the fatal engagement was addressed to his father, Clayton French, by a comrade, Lieutenant M. W. Day, Ninth Cavalry, from which we quote as follows:

"It becomes my painful duty to inform you of the death of your son J. Hansell French who was killed at the head of his company in action with Victoria's band of hostile indians in the San Mateo Mts., N. M., about 25 miles from Ojo Caliente on the 17th inst. His company was on the extreme left of the command during the engagement. He and Major Morrow rode their mules up the mountain and dismounted under a ledge of rocks at 3 P.M. Receiving no shots from the hostiles Maj. Morrow returned to direct the movements of the troops. Hansell and Purington with their companies climbed upon the top of the Mt. Hansell scouted along the top of a cañon and finally opened fire on some hostiles who had obtained a position inside the crescent formed by the troops, and engaged them 'til near dark. The fighting was mostly on the right flank, but about sundown a few shells were exploded amongst the hostiles who fled & ran around the Mts. to the left flank. It being now dark orders were issued for all the troops to be withdrawn to camp. As there had been no firing in his vicinity for half an hour, Hansell supposed that the hostiles had retired, and moved ahead of his command about two hundred yards to look into the cañon, when a volley was poured into him at a distance of only a few yards. His death was instantaneous and painless. When his men brought in his body under the direction of Lieut. Maney 15th Infty. who volunteered to go in after him, his face had the same handsome smile and commanding expression that it bore when he led his company up the mountain. He distinguished himself by his bravery and skill at planning a defence in an engagement with Victoria on the Sierra Blanco Canon, on the 12th inst.; and was working hard to distinguish himself during this campaign, for the sake of his parents and brothers and sisters. He spoke of them very frequently. Just before he went into this unfortunate engagement he was speaking to us about them and you were continually in his mind. He was noted for his generosity and high standard of honor. The favorite officer in his Regiment, his loss is a heavy blow to us, as to those who were with him as cadets at West Point."

Lieutenant French's remains were interred with full military honors on top of the mountain, with seven soldiers who were killed in the campaign. Soon thereafter the body was forwarded to Philadelphia and buried in Laurel Hill Cemetery. Fellow officers united in a feeling testimonial as to their late comrade's bravery and efficiency. His untimely death was the occasion of sympathetic sorrow throughout an extended social circle wherein his personal worth was cordially recognized.

It may be of interest to here note that the Indian chief Victoria, one of whose band killed Lieutenant French, was one of the most troublesome leaders of the Apaches with whom the frontier army ever had to deal. Four times within five years he broke away from the reservation assigned to his people in New Mexico, leading marauding bands through the country and along the Mexican border. In September, 1879, objecting to removal to the care of the San Carlos agency, he took the field with several hundred warriors. He was pursued during the next few months by Colonels Grierson and Hatch over 1,000 miles, the troops being almost constantly engaged in fighting. It was during this campaign that Lieutenant French was killed. Finally Victoria was chased over the Mexican border and his band broken up, and he was reported killed in the latter part of 1880.

ANCESTRY OF CATHARINE ANN HANSELL

Peter David and Ann Dorethea (Hencht) Hansell came to Philadelphia about 1754 and settled in Kingsessing township. He constructed and operated for many years a tannery, and built a homestead 1759-60 on the present site of the Presbyterian Orphanage, 58th and Kingsessing avenue. His family were among the earliest pewholders in the neighboring colonial Swedish Lutheran Church, now St. James P. E. Church, Kingsessing, 69th and Woodland avenue. The cornerstone of the original part of this historic edifice was laid, August 5th, 1762, by Rev. Charles Mangus Wrangell, rector of Old Swedes' Church, assisted by Rev. Henry M. Muhlenberg, who was known as the patriarch of the colonial Evangelical Lutheran churches in America. He was the father of Reverend, afterwards Major General Peter Muhlenberg, famous during the Revolution. The pioneer Hansell family and many of their descendants throughout four generations rest in the burial ground of St. James, their tombstones being remarkably well preserved. Peter David was born in 1724 and died November 19th, 1786. His will, dated September 21st, 1784, proved December 2nd, 1786, bequeathed quite an estate to his wife and children. Ann Dorethea (Hencht) Hansell was born 1732 and died December 22nd, 1812. Their children were David, William, George, Barnett, Jacob, John, Mary, Elizabeth, Charles, Peter, Andrew. The sons were all industrious and useful citizens, successful farmers and artisans and their children, likewise, were active in industrial and mercantile pursuits.

William Hansell, second son of Peter David, was born in 1757, died July 16th, 1800, married November 16th, 1783, Sarah Morris; pastor of St. Michael and Zion Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, performing ceremony. Sarah Morris was born 1762, died December 12th, 1833; funeral services were held at the residence of her son, James Hansell, 76 North 11th St., near Race, Philadelphia. William Hansell and wife Sarah are buried in the same grave in St. James Churchyard. William and Sarah (Morris) Hansell had children: Anne, born 1785, died unmarried March 15th, 1847; Hannah, born 1788, died May 29th, 1873, married June 24th, 1827, Samuel Forman; James, born 1791; Morris, born 1794, died April 11th, 1839; William, born 1796, died October 9th, 1846, married March 4th, 1819, Elizabeth Ann Berrett; Thomas; Sarah, married April 25th, 1822, John Matthews, Jr.

James Hansell, eldest son of William and Sarah (Morris) Hansell, born 1791, married July 31st, 1817, Ann Catharine Ehrenzeller. Baptismal records of the First Moravian Church, Philadelphia, give this name as Anna Catharina Ehrenzeller. In the American [Philada.] Daily Advertiser, August 2nd, 1817, appeared the following marriage notice: "On Thursday evening last [July 31st] by the Rev. Mr. [Jacob] Broadhead, Mr. James Hansell to Miss Ann C. Ehrenzeller, both of this city." Rev. Jacob Broadhead was a distinguished minister of the Dutch Reformed Church in America. He came to Philadelphia from New York in 1813, being pastor of the First Dutch Reformed Church, N. W. cor. of Crown (now Lawrence) and Race streets, until 1826. He was a regimental chaplain during the war of 1812. He was born in 1784 and died in 1855.

James Hansell was a pioneer watch and clock-maker, and silversmith, being long recognized as a leading manufacturer in that industry. He carried on the business very successfully for nearly half a century, and for upwards of forty years his store was in the building on Market Street, now 706, within close proximity to the site where Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. He died March 31st, 1865. His will, dated October 5th, 1850, and proved April 6th, 1865, amply provided for his wife, his children being residuary legatees. His wife, Ann C. Hansell, was made executrix, and his sons-in-law Charles C. and Clayton French and William H. Richards, executors. Ann C. Hansell died June 27th, 1886. Both buried in Woodlands Cemetery, West Philadelphia. James and Ann Catharine (Ehrenzeller) Hansell had the following children: Emma Ehrenzeller, born July 4th, 1818, died February 27th, 1891, married November 14th, 1839, Jacob W. Boller; Ellen Justice, born October 7th, 1821, died June 27th, 1865, married January 15th, 1846, William H. Richards; Henrietta Ehrenzeller, born November 11th, 1824, died March 3rd, 1878, married January 15th, 1846, Charles C. French [756]; Catharine Ann, born October 22nd, 1827, died February 1st, 1881, married April 30th, 1846, Clayton French [735]; Sarah, born March 24th, 1830, died March 15th, 1886, married February 24th, 1857, Charles W. Funk; Warner, born October 19th, 1832, died August 9th, 1833; Margaret Humphreys, born July 20th, 1834, died July 31st, 1905, married first, June 15th, 1858, Bradford Ritter, he died August 11th, 1873; married second, April 12th, 1888, Clayton French [735].

Jacob Ehrenzeller, born April 5th, 1725, son of Jacob and Anna Magdalena (Künter) Ehrenzeller, left Basle, Switzerland, in 1749 and sailed for America from Rotterdam. After a passage "of seven or eight weeks, in an old leaky vessel, arrived at Philadelphia. Whole cost 70 or 80 guilders, yet brought a ducat ashore." He bought a plantation in Maryland but did not remove there, entering into business projects in Philadelphia, where he remained the rest of his life, nearly half a century. On June 5th, 1754, he was married to Anna Gertrude Hankee, by Rev. John Dietrich Heinzelman, pastor of St. Michael Lutheran Church, Fifth and Cherry Streets, Philadelphia. There were three children by this marriage; the mother dying January 28th, 1765, Jacob married second, October 21st, 1765, Elizabeth Hankee, who bore him two children. She died October 4th, 1769; and June 6th, 1770, Jacob married "for the third and last time," Anna Catharine Baker, born in Frankfort, Germany, August 12th, 1742, by whom he had eight children: Hilary, born July 20th, 1771, baptized August 2nd, 1771, by Rev. Dr. Duche, assistant rector of Christ Church, afterwards Chaplain of the Continental Congress; Catharine, born February 23rd, 1773, died July 4th, 1773; John Christopher, born May 21st, 1774, died May 13th, 1776; George, born May 12th, 1776, died November 6th, 1829, married October 21st, 1805, Henrietta Loveland; Maria, born November 15th, 1778, married June 6th, 1796, Lewis Fouquet; William, born March 25th, 1781, died June 6th, 1781; Anna Catharine, born September 29th, 1782; Christopher, born February 16th, 1786, died September 16th, 1798, of yellow fever. Jacob Ehrenzeller died October 27th, 1798, and is buried in the same grave with his first wife and her infant daughter in Christ Church graveyard, Fifth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia. Beside them rests the third wife, Anna Catharine Baker, who died April 16th, 1823. In the same enclosure are buried Jacob's second wife and eight of his children. Ten of Jacob's thirteen children were baptized by ministers of Christ Church, three of them by Rev. William White, D.D., afterwards first Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania.

Hilary Ehrenzeller, eldest child of Jacob and Anna Catharine (Baker) Ehrenzeller, married May 19th, 1793, Ann Catharina Dehuff; the pastor of the First Moravian Church, Lititz, Lancaster Co., Pa., performing ceremony. In the records of the First Moravian Church, Philadelphia, are recorded the births and baptisms of two children of Hilary and Ann Catharina (Dehuff) Ehrenzeller: Jacob Dehuff Ehrenzeller, born March 27th, 1795, baptized April 12th, 1795, married August 22nd, 1816, Mary Ann Matlack; Anna Catharina Ehrenzeller, born October 3rd, 1797, baptized November 19th, 1797, married July 31st, 1817, James Hansell. Hilary Ehrenzeller died September 7th, 1798, of yellow fever, and is buried in St. Peter's graveyard, Third and Pine Streets, Philadelphia.

The Dehuff family were among the earliest German colonists to settle in America. John Dehuff and Catharina Brecht, daughter of John and Catharina Brecht, were members of a little company who came from the Palatinate in 1725 and located in Maryland. They were married in 1727 and some years later removed to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where John Dehuff died in 1751. They had eleven children: Henry, born 1738, died 1800, married March 14th, 1768, Philipina Eberman, daughter of John and Anna Eberman. Their daughter, Ann Catharina Dehuff, born December 31st, 1773, died July 21st, 1814, married May 19th, 1793, Hilary Ehrenzeller.

WILLIAM HAZELTON FRENCH

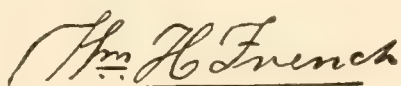

William Hazelton French, eldest son of Charles [356] and Martha (Hazelton) French, came to Philadelphia in his youth and learned a trade. About 1824 he established himself in business in that city, becoming a prosperous contractor and builder; his work extending throughout the eastern, central, southern and some of the western States. For many years previous to his death his place of business was located at 1735 Chestnut street. He took a leading part in developing a section of the city, the vicinity of Rittenhouse Square, which has for more than half a century been noted for its wealthy and cultured residents. In 1834 he bought a piece of ground at the southwest corner of Schuylkill Sixth and Locust streets, a thinly populated portion of the city, now Seventeenth and Locust streets, and in the autumn of that year he commenced building thereon the first brick house in that location. Winter coming on, and having no means of warming the building, it was boarded up until the spring of 1835, when he finished it and there established his home. Following this he built a number of large and comfortable brick houses on Locust, Seventeenth and Rittenhouse streets. His business career covered a period of three score years, and when past eighty he continued to give daily personal direction to many of its details, supervising correspondence, advising and suggesting in many helpful ways. Using the best materials and skilled workmanship, his products were of the highest class. At the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, he exhibited a model of the great Egyptian pyramid Cheops, which attracted wide attention. Many duplicates of this work were ordered by art collectors, and Egyptian visitors were among the appreciative purchasers.

William Hazelton French always took an active interest in the welfare and advancement of Philadelphia; served as councilman, and was one of the originators, in 1852, and the first president of the Philadelphia City Institute and Free Library, located at the northeast corner of Eighteenth and Chestnut streets. To this beneficent institution, he gave most earnest and enthusiastic support, continuing as president for fourteen years, and was a manager until his decease. This is one of the oldest free libraries in the city, and continues to have a large attendance. Mr. French was also connected with the Howard Hospital and other charitable institutions, and gave sympathetic thought to the care of the poor and wayward. All his life he was a consistent and active Friend. He adhered to the principles of the Society at all times, and in consequence was often compelled to face a strong current of public opinion and even to ignore the formal demands of the constituted authorities. He conscientiously refused to pay military tax. The amount exacted was small and the collecting officer upon several occasions regretfully but courteously seized a special piece of household furniture that was highly prized. This was in due form put up at public sale, an agent of the owner always being the purchaser. Thus the lawful obligation was met without violation of personal scruples. Friend French ardently sympathized with the Union cause, but he could not voluntarily sustain war measures, even during that memorable contest. He was keenly alive to the condition of the sick and wounded during those dark days, and the families of many unfortunates were the recipients of his kindly thought and care. It was in his home and under his friendly guidance that some of his young cousins (referred to in other portions of this volume), who later took such prominent parts in life, received their first insight into the active business world. In 1824 he and his wife united with Green Street Monthly Meeting by certificate from Pilesgrove Meeting, Woodstown, N. J.; and in 1835, upon his removal to Locust street, he united with Spruce Street Meeting, where he remained an active member until his death.

GREEN STREET MONTHLY MEETING, PHILADELPHIA

In the early part of the nineteenth century the Society of Friends had become a prominent and influential element in the life of Philadelphia. Within fifteen years three large Meeting Houses were erected: Arch street, 1802-4, Twelfth street, 1812, and Green street, 1813-14. The North Meeting, in Key's Alley, near Second and Vine streets, was in flourishing condition and the need of greater accommodations was felt. Some Friends were apprehensive as to the success of a meeting so far "out of town" as Fourth and Green streets; in a little while, however, this meeting had a large and active membership. The Preparative Meeting was set up in 1814, and the Monthly Meeting in 1816, the additional meetings later becoming subject thereto being Frankford, Fairhill, Germantown and Girard Avenue. At the time of the separation, in 1827, the followers of Elias Hicks controlled Green Street Meeting, which at once became the center of influence of that branch of the Society in Philadelphia. The Yearly Meeting of men Friends was held there from 1829 until it was moved to Fifteenth and Race streets in 1857, and during that period the women Friends held their Yearly Meeting in the Meeting House which had been erected immediately after the separation, on Cherry street below Fifth. Many noted ministers of the Society appeared at Green Street Meeting from time to time. That part of the city became a favorite residential section and Friends comprised a numerous portion of a highly intelligent and wealthy population, which also led to the erection by Orthodox Friends of the large Meeting House at Sixth and Noble streets, in 1838.

FRIENDS' UNITY WITH PATRIOTIC PRINCIPLES.

When the long agitation over the question of slavery in the Southern States was followed by attempted secession and civil war, the attitude of Friends became a matter of great public interest. Their uniform earnest sympathy with the anti-slavery cause rendered it quite impossible for them to nullify their sentiments by opposing the efforts of the Federal government in dealing effectively with its armed enemies. They deplored at all times the necessity of a resort to arms but their loyalty as citizens was unquestionable. Individual members of the Society, mostly women and some of the older men, spoke and wrote strongly against the demoralizing tendencies and destructive effects of war; but very few meetings recorded special testimony upon the subject. When enthusiastic young Friends felt called upon to aid the cause of freedom and the Union, even to the extent of uniting with the Union forces in the field, they were in some cases gently admonished, but seldom disciplined.

A memorable and suggestive incident occurred in one meeting. An earnest discussion was suddenly ended by the emphatic protest and declaration of a noted Friend, of lifelong physical weakness, that if he had been able he would have gone to the field himself. Philanthropic movements on behalf of Union soldiers, especially the sick and wounded, were most earnestly and effectively supported by Friends in every part of the country. There were abundant contributions of food, clothing, medicine and other needful things. In some cases Meeting House lawns were surrendered for hospital purposes. Beyond all this, a vast sum of money was subscribed by Friends directly for hospital uses and expenses. Through Jay Cooke, the great war financier, many millions of dollars were thus offered up in the cause of humanity. "I knew," says Mr. Cooke in his "Memoirs," "that vast wealth was in the hands of members of the Society of Friends. I sent for some of their representative men and after acknowledging my admiration for the principles upheld by them, I submitted a plan by which, without a violation of those principles, they could effectually aid the government. It was well known to them that large sums were required for the support of hospitals, for medicines and attendance upon the sick and wounded, etc., and I proposed to personally see to it that all their subscriptions should be applied directly to the relief of the sick and wounded and in the purchase of such things as were required for their comfort. This proposition was entirely satisfactory." Mr. Cook presented this matter in person, at Washington, to President Lincoln and the Secretary of the Treasury, both of whom heartily concurred in the proposition submitted and promise was given that the funds furnished by the members of the Society of Friends would be used in sustaining the government during the perilous period, but not for the prosecution of the war. Subscriptions in large amounts were then made by Friends to the loans, and this manifestation of confidence in the government on their part greatly increased the available funds and made more popular the sale of United States bonds among other citizens; thus materially aiding the government in solving one of the great problems of the time. The consistent courage, fidelity and patriotism of Friends was made manifest in every possible way.

The 12th Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, was one of the most noted organizations from that State during the Civil War. It served from September 4th, 1862, until June 4th, 1865, in the Army of the Potomac, participating in upwards of thirty engagements. These included Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Mine Run, Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, Capture of Petersburg, Farmville and Appomattox, being present at Lee's surrender, April 9th, 1865. The regiment lost over 250 men killed in battle and dying from wounds and disease, while nearly as many more were incapacitated by wounds and sickness. Its muster roll aggregated 2,000 names. Many were transferred to other organizations. The regiment was largely composed of young men representing the leading families of Gloucester, Salem and Cumberland counties, many of whom were members of the Society of Friends.

Charles French [1490], private, Company H., 12th Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers.

Honorable John W. Hazelton was a prominent and influential citizen of South Jersey for many years. He was educated in the public schools and became a prosperous farmer. He was interested in political affairs all his manhood life, actively beginning with the Harrison campaign of 1840. He served as a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Chicago, in 1868, and was a member of the National House of Representatives, from the First District of New Jersey, from 1871 to 1875, serving on the Committee on Agriculture. The West Jersey Press, December 25th, 1878, thus spoke of him: "He was among the first to espouse the Republican cause in South Jersey and continued to the day of his death to take the liveliest interest in its success. As a member of Congress he was faithful and attentive and while he made but few speeches, he did his full share of Committee work and looked closely after the welfare of his constituents." The Woodbury Constitution, December 25th, 1878, said: "Mr. Hazelton was a most worthy citizen, a kind friend and hospitable neighbor. His death will be regretted by a large circle of friends, whose intimate knowledge of the man led to the greatest respect and esteem."

GENERAL SAMUEL GIBBS FRENCH

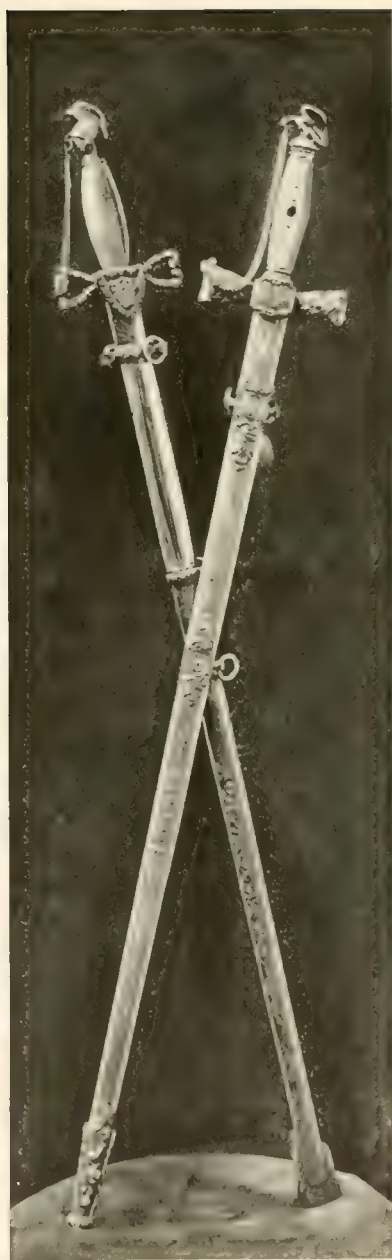

To have outlived every comrade who, like himself, achieved distinction and won repeated public and official acknowledgment of brave and brilliant services in a war three score years ago; to have evidenced patriotic and courageous public spirit and unselfish devotion to his country and to the cause of humanity, through the offer of his services to the government again, when midway in his eightieth year—one of very few instances on record; to have reached his ninety-second year with a bright eye, firm step and warm heart, manifesting a sympathetic interest in all that relates to the welfare of the nation—is the inspiring record of a descendant of Thomas French, who seemed to have inherited in special measure the rich gift and abiding virtues of an honored ancestry.

Born near Mullica Hill, Gloucester County, New Jersey, November 22nd, 1818, Samuel Gibbs French, the second son of Samuel [357] and Rebecca (Clark) French, passed his boyhood years on the farm, receiving his primary education at the notable Harmony school, a reproduction of which is given on another page, with accompanying sketch, also facsimile of a quaint reminiscent letter from General French, when in his eighty-eighth year, recalling interesting incidents in connection with his attending this school. It was during that period that the future military leader largely laid the foundation of the wonderful physical strength which was to sustain him in ordeals few could endure, and carry him far along in life. When only eight years of age his military destiny was unconsciously indicated, through the sudden birth of admiration of a soldier's life. For nearly ten years he kept this forbidden ambition hidden within his own breast, then was rejoiced to receive parental permission to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point, and received his appointment as cadet March 22nd, 1839, after a preparatory term at the famous Burlington Academy, Burlington, N. J. At West Point he was associated with young men of superior talent, every one of whom, reaching middle life, attained conspicuous places.

In the graduating class of 1843, thirty-nine in number, W. B. Franklin stood number one, George Deshon two, W. F. Reynolds five, Isaac F. Quimby six, Roswell S. Ripley seven, John J. Reynolds ten, Samuel G. French fourteen, C. C. Auger, sixteen, U. S. Grant twenty-one, Rufus Ingalls thirty-two. Every one of the class living in 1861 entered the military service except George Deshon, who was long a faithful priest and missionary of the Catholic Church in New York City; and all except one gained the rank of general. No other class in the history of the Academy has had such a remarkable record. General French outlived all his fellow-members of the Class of '43. In his "Autobiography," published in 1901, the General gives many touching reminiscences of his classmates, with whom he maintained cordial fellowship. In his first letter to General French after the Civil War, General Rufus Ingalls, Grant's always efficient quartermaster-general, writing of an exciting midnight scene during the bombardment of the Union army along the James River at Harrison's Landing, in the summer of 1862, said: "You don't know, dear Sam, how near you came killing me that night, which, had it happened, would have been a great sorrow to you." And in a letter from Portland, Oregon, dated September 6th, 1889, and sent to General Quimby,

SWORDS PRESENTED TO
CAPTAIN SAMUEL G. FRENCH

The one upon right, with eagle head and jeweled hilt, by the citizens of New Jersey, at Trenton, July 4, 1847, that upon left, with gold scabbard, by the Legislature of New Jersey, February 8, 1849.

who was ill, it being affectionately passed along to General French, General Ingalls in the fullness of his heart thus wrote:

"Your letter surprised me most joyously. I was thinking of you constantly and lovingly. Do not give up. Let us live to the last possible hour. I hope to meet you this fall. * * * I am robust, never better. Habits perfect; fact. Why not at 70? Write me dear 'Nykin.' Nail your flag high up, and don't regard dark clouds.

Very affectionately
Rufus"

Referring to this cheering message General French thus tenderly writes in his book:

"My dear, good Rufus! How I recall the many happy days we have passed together! My love for you was like unto Jonathan's for David, and you have gone and left me, gone to your long home. Yet I can see you now. . . . There always was mirth when Ingalls was present. He was the prince of good fellows; ever cheerful, never selfish, full of quaint humor."

What a delightful revelation! Grizzled old soldiers recalling youthful days with loving hearts and lasting friendship. They will answer the roll call together on the other side with renewed joy and fidelity.

July 1st, 1843, Cadet French received his first commission, entering the United States Army as brevet second lieutenant, Third Artillery, and October 1st joined his company at Fort Macon, N. C. In November of the same year he was ordered to Washington, thence to West Point, to prepare drawings for light and heavy artillery in consequence of his superior skill as draughtsman and artist. Two of his water color paintings, made while a cadet, were retained for wall pictures; and have remained at the Academy ever since. Upon one occasion, while at the White House, General French asked President Grant if he would not have one of the little pictures returned to him. With quiet irony, referring to his own deficiencies as an artist, Grant replied: "Certainly, and you may have any of mine that are there." The picture was not disturbed. Lieutenant French continued on the duty assigned for a year, and on November 12th, 1844, joined his company which had been transferred to Fort McHenry, Baltimore. Here he remained until active preparations for the coming war with Mexico led to important military movements. In August, 1845, he sailed with Major Ringgold's battery of horse artillery to Aransas Pass, Texas, to join the army of occupation under General Zachary Taylor.

In the short but sanguinary conflict of 1846-47 a considerable number of bright and capable young men won distinction, but no one made a finer record than Lieutenant French, who early attracted the personal notice of his appreciative superiors. He rendered conspicuous service at the first meeting with the enemy, at Palo Alto May 7th, 1846, and was complimented by General Taylor at the battle of Resaca de la Palma, May 9th, where he had charge of a battery that held an important post. June 18th, 1846, he was promoted to the full rank of second lieutenant. During the struggle for the possession of the city of Monterey he was in charge of a piece of artillery which for two hours was exposed to such a destructive fire from barricades and housetops that his horse and four out of five gunners were shot down. General Taylor was close by part of the time, quite oblivious of danger. Promotion to brevet first lieutenant, "for gallant and meritorious conduct in the several conflicts at Monterey," came September 23rd, 1846.

At the battle of Buena Vista, February 23rd, 1847, Lieutenant French displayed efficiency, courage and fortitude that commanded the admiration of officers and men. While directing rapid artillery firing upon the advancing enemy, he was struck in the right thigh by a heavy musket ball. Refusing to leave the field, he remained on his horse, part of the time directing his men and later earnestly endeavored to rally disordered troops. Twice during the day his wound was probed without success. In his own account he says: "Weary, tired and weakened by loss of blood, with my leg stiff and useless, I was taken from my horse and carried into a large room, where the floor was covered with wounded beside me. When General Taylor came after the battle ended, with his help I was placed in a wagon and taken to camp."

For many weeks the young officer suffered from his wound. He was on a cot forty days, growing very weak and still the ball could not be found until he located it himself and heroically demanded its extraction, regardless of consequences, and this, too, before the day of anesthetics. Finally he was sent north to recuperate, where he was joyously received by his friends and especially his parents, as the newspapers had reported him amongst the slain. His bravery had been officially recognized by promotion to first lieutenant and he was also brevetted captain "for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Buena Vista." Still other honors of a peculiarly gratifying character awaited him. The people of his own State had determined to testify their high regard and grateful appreciation.

At Trenton, New Jersey, July 4th, 1847, Captain French was presented with a sword by the citizens of the State, "for distinguished service in the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma and Buena Vista." The occasion was one of great interest to a large and representative assemblage in a public hall. Also, February 8th, 1849, there was presented to him, in accordance with a resolution of the Legislature of New Jersey, passed February 10th, 1847, a sword with the inscription, "For brave and gallant conduct displayed in the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, and Monterey. Subsequently distinguished at Buena Vista, and promoted to the rank of Captain." At the same time similar testimonials were presented to three other worthy young officers from New Jersey, viz., Captain W. R. Montgomery, and Lieutenants N. B. Rossell and Fowler Hamilton. Captain French was unavoidably absent, being on military duty in Texas. Referring to him, Governor Haines paid a high tribute to his courage, fidelity and efficiency. In response, Richard P. Thompson spoke, in part, as follows:

"When on bloody fields he periled his life for his country, one hope animated his young and gallant spirit, and this day finds that glorious hope fulfilled. Here, within sight of the battle ground of Trenton, the descendants of heroes are proving to the world how Jerseymen appreciate and reward the heroism of her sons. I can well imagine how Captain French's manly heart will overflow with gratitude. The perils and privations he endured, the pain and anguish of his wound, will be forgotten in the joy of this event—in the knowledge that the Legislature of his beloved State has placed in his hands this mute but eloquent certificate of brave deeds in his country's service."

The young officer who had thus early won a proud place in the army and at home, continued to move forward, solely on his own merit. January 12th, 1848, he was commissioned captain and assistant quartermaster in the general staff of the army, outranking some officers who had been from twelve to eighteen years in the service. He and Rufus Ingalls were the only two officers who received staff appointments or commissions as captains under five years' service, and both were appointed over officers recommended by General Jesup, Quartermaster-General. The high office of Quartermaster-General of the Army of the Potomac was most capably filled by General Ingalls during the entire period of the Civil War.

The War Department in many ways manifested its special confidence in Captain French. His personal knowledge of the southwestern frontier—then a barren and forbidding waste and wilderness—and his experiences in the Mexican War, were utilized for valuable purposes. In the winter of 1849 he was ordered to San Antonio, Texas, to fit out a train of wagons with provisions and supplies and conduct it to El Paso, Texas, where the Third Regiment had been ordered. Over 2,000 mules and 1,200 oxen for draft animals and corresponding wagons were required. There was not even a trail to the west; all was a wilderness of plain and mountains, creeks and rivers, over which no white man had journeyed except two United States engineers. A road of nearly seven hundred miles had to be constructed, which was done under Captain French's direction. There was but one house at El Paso on the Texas side of the Rio Grande River. It required four months to construct the road and carry the expedition through, the troops and caravan arriving there in September.

In the winter of 1851 Captain French was selected to head another expedition over the route to El Paso. To his suggestion that some one else might be assigned this time, Quartermaster-General Jesup emphatically declared he would entrust the responsible task to no one else. Besides, he wanted an intelligent and detailed report of the country, its resources, possibilities for immigration, the Indians, etc., and he suggestively added: "Let the service be performed in your usual manner, and with your accustomed energy, and I am sure all will go right." The trust was faithfully discharged and the elaborate report submitted reflected the highest credit upon the zeal, discernment and statesmanlike character of Captain French. This report, with that of the previous expedition, gave the government and the people of the United States their first comprehensive knowledge of the great section which has since become such an important part of our country. The expedition made one march of ninety-six miles in fifty-two consecutive hours, without finding water. Everything was dead, and even the once tall grass turned to ashes. Now a transcontinental railway crosses this former supposed desert waste and every element of progress is uniting in its development.

During the next two years Captain French was on duty at department headquarters, Washington, where he was the recipient of marked attentions with his young wife, nee Eliza Matilda Roberts, daughter of Joseph Lowrey Roberts, of Natchez, Miss., who had been president of the branch bank of the United States Bank of Pennsylvania, and at his death, March 28th, 1853, was agent of that institution. In the spring of 1854, about a year after his marriage, Captain French, at his request, was assigned to duty at Fort Smith, Arkansas, where he remained, leading an ideal life of marital happiness, for two years. In April, 1856, he again tendered his resignation from the army, and moved to his plantation in Mississippi, on Deer Creek, near Greenville. His resignation was finally regretfully accepted, having been several times previously refused, when it was learned that the offer of a prolonged furlough could not conveniently be availed of; and took effect May 31st, 1856.

The coming of a little girl, Matilda Roberts French, August 16th, 1855, was an occasion of great joy. Less than two years thereafter the clouds suddenly gathered. This sad story is beautifully told by General French in his "Autobiography" from which we quote:

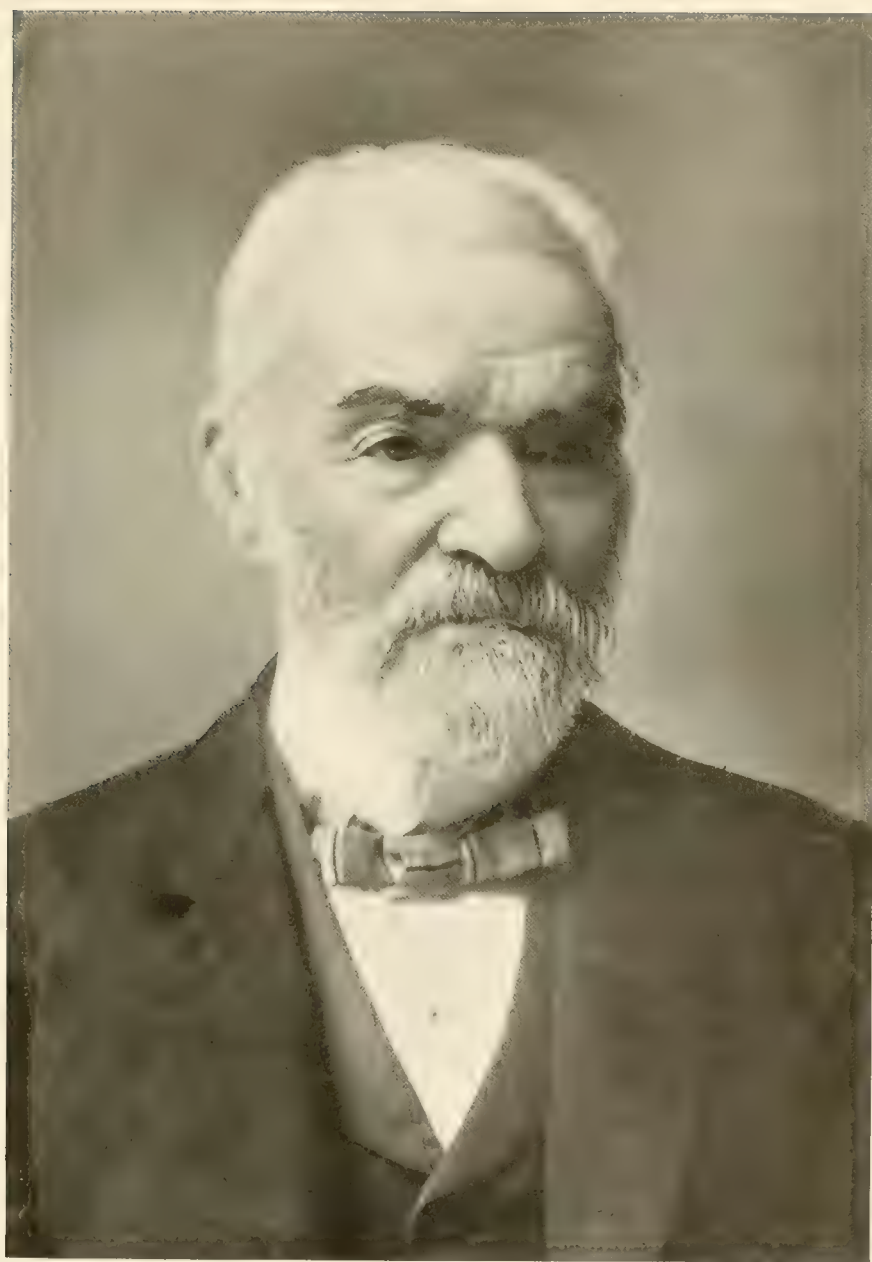

"In the spring of 1857 Mrs. French and her little girl went on a visit to her sister, Mrs. John C. French, San Antonio, Texas, and in May following I joined her there. And here a great sorrow crossed my path. On the morning of June 13, Mrs. French greeted me with joy and hope, but ere the day passed her life ended in that sleep "that knows no breaking." She went to the grave for her baby boy, and took him with her. Oh, the irony of fate! She, the peer of the noblest, crowned by every grace, the idol of the house, the gentle mother, the handmaiden of charity, the priestess of religion, a believer in its promises, bowed to His will, and left all that makes life attractive before age or disease or disappointment or grief or sorrow had chilled her heart; and left a smile on her face for weeping friends, when her pure spirit rose to meet her God. Her remains rest with her babe on her breast, beside her parents, in a vault at Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia, Pa., where the waters of the beautiful Schuylkill gently flow by the portals of her tomb."

Long-time association in the army, at Washington, and elsewhere, with influential southern people, and the establishment of a home in that section, where his friendship was highly regarded and his coöperation earnestly sought—these and the behest of the State, led Captain French to accept an appointment from the Governor of Mississippi, after that State seceded. February 12th, 1861, he was made lieutenant colonel and chief of ordnance in the army of the State. He performed the duties of this post until October, when he unexpectedly received an offer of appointment as brigadier general in the Confederate service. Consulting his family, his mother and sister, who were then living with him near Greenville, advised him to accept, and after some delay he did so, October 23rd, being assigned to the defense of the Potomac River, at Evansport, Va. From July 21st, 1862, until June, 1863, he was in command of the department of North Carolina and Southern Virginia. He built Fort Fisher, Wilmington, N. C., making it one of the strongest defenses on the coast. He also traced out and constructed the fortifications around Petersburg, Va., regarded by General Grant as a model of defensive warfare and which held the Army of the Potomac in check for nine months. Having been appointed major general in the service of the Confederate States October 22nd, 1862, he was transferred to the west in June, 1863, where he served until the close of the war, his last appearance in action being at the battle of Nashville, December 15-16, 1864.

In Mexico and during the Civil War General French participated in thirty-five engagements. Throughout the terrific campaigns in Georgia and Tennessee he seemed to bear a charmed life. At one time there was almost continuous fighting for one hundred days and all the while French's command was on or near the front line. At Kennesaw Mountain, Allatoona—which inspired the famous gospel hymn, "Hold the Fort"—Atlanta, Franklin, Nashville and other terrible conflicts, his troops suffered appalling losses. As an engineer, strategist, counsellor and fighter he had few equals on either side of the line, and often was vastly the superior of men of higher temporary rank under whom he obediently and faithfully served. An impartial history of the struggle must give General Samuel G. French a high place among great commanders.

January 12th, 1865, General French married Mary Fontaine Abercrombie, daughter of General Anderson Abercrombie, an officer of the United States Army during the War of 1812. One brother-in-law, Major Wylie Abercrombie, had served on General French's staff; another, Captain Robert S., of the Confederate Army, was mortally wounded July 14th, 1864. In April, 1865, the veteran soldier of two wars was paroled, at Columbus, Georgia, and a few weeks later he returned to his desolate plantation in Mississippi. Nothing remained but the mansion and land, the former rich fields overgrown with weeds. Without resources, the owner was compelled to rely upon generous minded friends in the north for a fresh start. His cousins, Clayton and Samuel H. French, when he came to Philadelphia, received him with great kindness. Referring to the latter in his book as "one of the best men that ever lived," he further says, "There will be no charges against him when the judgment book is opened." He also gratefully acknowledges the conduct of Mr. Louis Cooper, a relative of his mother, who voluntarily deeded to him the homestead in Woodbury, N. J., which Mr. Cooper had purchased at government sale during the Civil War, it having been confiscated. So life "on the old plantation" was energetically and successfully renewed. For several years he served as Mississippi State levee commissioner and rendered valuable service in reclaiming the submerged lands. Later he moved to Woodbury, N. J., where he resided for about a year, during which time he acted as president of a railroad in course of construction in Virginia. He then purchased a residence in Columbus, Ga., residing there for several years, but becoming interested in an orange grove in Winter Park, Florida, he finally located there in 1881. Advancing years, however, prompted him to dispose of the orange grove in 1895 and move to Pensacola, Florida, where his daughter, Mrs. Leonard Hilton-Green lived.

Pondering upon the strange and persistent historical inaccuracies put forth by certain prominent writers, both north and south, General French, while living in Pensacola, determined to utilize his leisure hours in writing his autobiography, a volume entitled "Two Wars," largely a transcript of his voluminous diary, primarily for the instruction and enjoyment of his children. The work grew under his lively pen until it became one of the most interesting and valuable chronicles of the kind ever published. It is written throughout in a modest spirit of self-effacement. The writer seemingly is never conscious of the fact that he has played the hero's part. His allusions to his old classmates at West Point and later comrades in peril are exceedingly tender, compelling the reader's sympathy and admiration as the mist gathers in his own eyes. November 22nd was a sacred day with this gallant old leader of men. Referring to it in one place he pauses reverently, as though standing with uncovered head before the Great Assize, to say:

"To-day (November 22, 1894) is my birthday, and I am now six years past the time allotted to man by the psalmist. For this I am truly grateful to Him from whom all blessings flow, and I will henceforth endeavor to walk humbly before Him." And be it remembered to his everlasting honor, that even four years later he again offered his services to his government when war with Spain was imminent. Words fail to fitly describe the honor due such a spirit. Here is what he says in his own simple yet heroic way:

"Although my lot was cast with the South, and whatever may be my opinion of the action of the North before, during, and after the war as expressed in these pages, I am as loyal to the Constitution and as ready to uphold and maintain the rights and dignity of the United States as any man within its boundary; and this was evidenced when I tendered my services, as a soldier, to the President before war was declared against Spain." In 1887, General French, as a veteran of the Mexican War, was placed on the rolls as a United States pensioner.

Standing alone, like the giant oak when all its fellows had fallen, Samuel Gibbs French, the youthful hero of Monterey and Buena Vista, the dauntless soldier of Allatoona, the inspiring patriot of '98, became a national figure of peculiar and impressive significance. The last two years of his life he spent with his son, Robert A. French, at Florala, Ala.; and there after a brief illness due to a fall he died, April 20th, 1910. This event called forth expressions of deep regret and profound respect from many places, North and South. Very few of the gallant old soldier's friends in early life remained, but his circle of personal acquaintance continued wide and interesting. His funeral on April 21st, at Pensacola, Florida, was an occasion of great impressiveness. From "The Pensacola Journal," April 22nd, we quote as follows:

"Signal but deserved honor was paid yesterday when 'taps' were sounded as the body of the late General Samuel G. French was lowered into the grave made at St. John's cemetery. A bugler from Fort Barrancas was present and sounded the refrain. Among the army officers in full dress uniform, were Col. Allen, Capt. Douglass and Lieut. Richardson.

"The body of Gen. French, accompanied by sorrowing relatives, was met by a delegation of Confederate veterans, under command of Capt. Dixon B. Reed. With bared heads the veterans received the body of their departed comrade, and the casket was placed in a waiting hearse. It was then taken over to Christ Church, where for nearly two hours it lay and was viewed by numbers of people, friends and admirers of the great man who had answered the last roll call. Flowers in profusion testified the esteem in which the aged veteran had been held; and at the hour for the funeral ceremony, the church was crowded with friends who came and heard the words spoken consigning to the grave the remains of the distinguished soldier. Upon his body was the military cloak he had habitually worn. Following the religious ceremony, the body was conveyed to St. John's Cemetery and there interred."

Thus a life of brilliant achievement was ended.

Howard H. French Esq.,

Philadelph., Pa.

Dear Howard,

In answer to your inquiry I will state that the schoolhouse in North Mallica Hill was a one storied brick building octagonal in form. I do not remember how it was heated only I know there was no fire place in it, and hence it must have been by a stove.

There is one remarkable fact connected with my attending school there. It was three measured miles from home to the school. so every day I had to walk six (6) miles and we were not permitted to miss a day.

I commenced at the age of six and continued school ten years which discloses this remarkable fact, that I walked eighteen thousand miles. ~~to~~. For example by 6 miles to 1.5 mi and 1.5 mi by 10 years is 18,000 miles for obtaining a school education and good constitution. Snow, rain, blowing cold winds to school we went - It was imperative - I think that better than foot ball. With kind regards, affectionately,

Yours ever

J. G. French

HARMONY SCHOOL, MULLICA HILL, N. J., BUILT 1805, REMOVED 1888

From a drawing from memory by Dr. James W. Walmsley, a pupil of half a century ago, who also furnishes the following sketch:

The "eight-square" school-house was a type of building which was quite popular in the first half of the last century. The windows, well up from the floor, prevented the attention of those who followed the flowery paths of knowledge from being attracted by outside events. The shape gave equal light, heat and ventilation, and placed the schoolmaster practically close by every pupil, an important consideration in those good old days when, the survivors tell the present generation, "Lackin' and larnin'" were intimately associated. "Lickins" were a part of the daily curriculum, and for the largest boys the master used a heavy, two-handed gail; for the younger boys and girls, the flat side of his ruler was used by striking the palm of the hand when extended to receive the punishment. These methods were used by the master in his efforts to impart information, and as a part of the earning of his salary.

JOHN CLARK FRENCH

John Clark French, fifth son of Samuel [357] and Rebecca (Clark) French, was born in the old homestead, near Mullica Hill, N. J., the home of his father throughout a long life and where his grandfather settled in 1770. He attended Harmony School and later Bishop Onderdonk's School at Jamaica, Long Island. On March 4th, 1844, he entered the employ of Richard Williams, wholesale dry goods merchant, located at No. 91 Market street (O. S.), Philadelphia, but after a brief service, he was compelled to relinquish his position owing to impaired eyesight, and went South. In the spring and summer of 1851, as paymaster's clerk, he accompanied his brother, Captain Samuel G. French, U. S. A. [755], at the time of his noted expedition from San Antonio, Texas, to El Paso. When the party returned, Mr. French was offered and accepted a position with the firm of Lewis & Groesbeck, San Antonio, who were engaged in mercantile business and the transportation of government supplies from the coast to the various army posts on the frontier. Mr. French soon purchased the Lewis interest; and as Groesbeck & French the firm extended their operations to include the banking business, selling exchange on New York and Philadelphia. After the death of Mr. Groesbeck, Mr. French conducted the business alone, with continued marked success. In 1858 he built, at what is now the corner of Dolorosa street and Dwyer avenue, Main Plaza, the French Building (see line cut), where, after disposing of his general business, he devoted himself exclusively to the banking business. His banking house became the center of many important financial operations; and here was established the first bank in San Antonio. A portion of the French Building was used by the government for a time as military headquarters, also as a federal building. Mr. French took an active interest in public affairs, and contributed in many ways to the prosperity of San Antonio. He was a pioneer in the introduction of gas in that city, erecting the first plant and acting as executive of the company for a number of years. It is interesting to note that gas at that time was produced by this company from cotton seed. Mr. French was likewise particularly interested in railway development, and established the Gulf, West Texas & Pacific road, which later became a part of the Southern Pacific system.

Before and after the Civil War Mr. French was an influential factor in the section wherein he had located and was the recipient of many evidences of popular esteem. During the war, however, being a stout adherent of the Union cause, he passed through many exciting and perilous adventures, the result being the sacrifice of a large part of his private fortune. He was repeatedly warned that his life was in danger, but refused to leave the city, and loyal friends, particularly a large and courageous German colony, many members of which he had materially aided in getting a start in life, valiantly stood by him in the dark hours. Much of his property was confiscated, and his home was the scene of many exciting encounters. With the return of peace, Mr. French renewed his efforts for the advancement of Texas, and through his energy considerable northern capital was secured for the promotion of Texas enterprises. Before his death in 1889 he was widely recognized as a far-sighted public benefactor. Some time after the war, while continuing his business relationship in the far South, he returned to the vicinity of his early home, residing for several years at Woodbury, N. J. He made many trips abroad, finally returning to Texas where he ended a long and busy life. A local (Texas) journal thus recorded its view of his industrious career:

"Mr. French can best be classed as a pioneer in the railway enterprises of this state, and while others may have accomplished more in this regard, no one man prior to the war had better succeeded and thereafter more earnestly and at a greater sacrifice devoted his energies in this direction; and to no one is this portion of Texas more indebted for its railroad facilities by the investment of his means and the direction of the capital of others, than to the subject of this memoir. Many other public enterprises of the city of San Antonio were the recipients of his energies and aid, and the older citizens will attest his influence and activity for the public weal, in his business and enterprise. His life was ever active, and though for very many years deprived of sight and in feeble health, his interest in public enterprises did not abate, and his mind and power could always be commanded in aid of the same. He was a thorough business man, prompt, intelligent and positive, of most genial disposition and attractive manners, just and considerate of the feelings and rights of others, firm in his friendship and steadfast in his professions. In the full fruition of a well spent life, he passed quietly away, leaving a record most worthy the commendation and imitation of all."

Mr. French, with the aid of two other interested parties, founded the city of Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas, in 1871, and had large landed interests in that vicinity. It was there he died, while on his way from Galveston to San Antonio. Some years after his death, his widow, Sarah (Roberts) French, built at Cuero, the John C. French High School, as a memorial to her husband. This substantial two-story building is fitted up with all modern appliances for educational purposes and the gift was highly appreciated by the residents of that city. Mrs. French has also aided materially in establishing many of the manufacturing and business enterprises of Cuero, notably the Cotton Compress, the Cotton Oil Mill, the Guadalupe Valley Cotton Manufacturing Co., and the First State Bank and Trust Co.; and has made numerous contributions to public charities. Since the death of her husband Mrs. French has spent a portion of each year in San Antonio and has always taken the keenest interest in everything pertaining to the advancement and bettering of that city. She gave the ground upon which to erect the Madison Square Presbyterian Church and for the Young Men's Christian Association Building, and contributed a large portion of the money required for the erection of these edifices.

ANCESTRY OF JOHN GILL WHITALL

Benjamin Clarke, a native of Scotland, but later a London stationer and bookseller, and an agent of the proprietors of East Jersey, came to America in 1683, with his only son, Benjamin, who was "born at Reading in Berkshire, Old England, the 13th of the 3d month 1670" (Chesterfield Meeting records). He located at Perth Amboy, East Jersey, and in March, 1684, his wife, Ann (Phipps) Clarke, daughter of Thomas Phipps, joined him. Having brought with him "a Library of Books to sell," he set up a store in the "Town but yet in infancie," and one of these early settlers in writing to a distant friend alludes to the "good stationer's shop of books at New Perth." The grant from the proprietors stipulated that his house "should be thirty feet by sixteen feet, eighteen feet high to the raising, with a window in each room to the front, three feet high and three feet nine inches broad and three lights, each light fifteen inches from rabbit to rabbit, uniform to the rest of the houses to be built." There is every reason to believe that it was the first house built in Perth Amboy, named for James, Earl of Perth, with Indian name "Amboy" added. He died in 1689, leaving his estate to his son Benjamin, who, 12th mo. 25th, 1689, married Ann Giles, born in Braintree, Mass., 15th of April, 1669, daughter of James and Elizabeth Giles, of Piscataway, East Jersey.

Benjamin Clarke, second, took an active part in public affairs, filling several local offices, and was a Deputy to the General Assembly in 1692. In 1696 he bought twelve hundred acres of land along Stony Brook, near where Princeton was later located. He built a homestead on this tract and continued to live there until his death in 1747. The battle of Princeton, January 3rd, 1777, was chiefly fought on this land, and when General Hugh Mercer was mortally wounded he was carried to the home of Thomas Clarke, a descendant of Benjamin, where he was attended constantly by members of the family until his death a few days later. This house remains in a good state of preservation, and containing many colonial and Revolutionary relics, is the patriotic Mecca of visitors to Princeton; and is the scene of interesting periodical reunions of the descendants of Benjamin and Ann (Giles) Clarke. This is not the original Clarke homestead, nor does it occupy the site of the original home.

Benjamin Clarke, second, was an intelligent and good business man, also a surveyor; and that he was highly esteemed in the community is evidenced by the fact that his name frequently appears in important documents of the period. He was deeply interested in Meeting affairs and far ahead of the times in his disapproval of holding slaves. In 1709 he conveyed some nine acres of land to Richard Stockton and others in trust for a Meeting house lot and burying ground and it was on this property that Stony Brook Meeting House was built and used for many years. The Chesterfield Meeting records show that Benjamin and Ann (Giles) Clarke had ten children; the following being a copy of the record:

- "Ann, born at Rariton river the 18th, 2d month, 1691.
- Elizabeth, born at Same place the 5th, 9th month, 1692.
- James, born at Same place, the 13th, 6th Month, 1694,
departed this life 10th of 8th month, 1771.
- Sarah, born at Stoney Brook the 2nd, 9th month, 1696.
- Benjamin [3rd], born at Same place, the 17th, 7th month, 1698, departed this life in 12th month 1742/3.
- John, born at Same place the 29th, 10th month, 1700.
departed this life 8th of 5th month, 1768.
- Mary, born at Same place the 22d, 9th month, 1702.
- Joseph, born at Same place the 20th, 4th month, 1705.
- Hester, born at Same place the 18th, 12th month, 1707/8.
- Mattheu, born at Same place the 12th, 5th month, 1709."

Benjamin Clarke, second, died 5th month, 1747, and was buried in Stony Brook Burying Ground. By will dated March 15th, 1742/3, proved June 5th, 1747, he bequeathed to his eldest son, James, the homestead plantation.

His wife, Ann Giles, had a most eventful childhood, witnessing many thrilling scenes of pioneer life and sharing with her parents hardships and daily perils in the New England wilderness, owing to Indian hostilities. James Giles and Elizabeth, his second wife, came to America from Kent County, England, and after a voyage of nine weeks arrived at Boston in the early part of November, 1668. In a few weeks, having refreshed themselves after their long voyage at sea, they went to Braintree, Mass., where in the spring of 1669 their daughter Ann was born. She was but a month old when her parents sailed with her from Boston eastward and established a home on the Kennebeck River, and six years and four months old when they were driven from their home by the Indians and compelled to seek shelter in a garrison formed in a neighboring house, which, however, within a few months, they were forced to forsake and go to "Rowsick house," the main garrison. And on "the ninth of August, 1676," the record states, "early in the morning, when no Englishman thought of any war, they [the Indians] came down to Rowsiek, and took it, and killed and took away about fifty people, and burnt down the house, and all other buildings about, killing and destroying all that came in their way; so as we were forced to fly for our lives in a Canoe and leave all ever we had, and glad that we could save our lives. We and the rest of Kennebec neighbors, whom God had preserved from the cruelty of the Indians got to Damoras Cove, a fishing island about two leagues from the main land." A few months later the family journeyed to Long Island, where they remained for a few years, then went to Staten Island; and when Ann was thirteen years of age, her parents finally established their home upon the Raritan River, Piscataway, N. J.

Ann Clarke, eldest daughter of Benjamin and Ann (Giles) Clarke, married 1st mo. 18th, 1712/3, John Cooper, born 9th mo. 22nd, 1683, son of William and Mary (Bradway) Cooper and grandson of William and Margaret Cooper, progenitors, who came to Burlington, N. J., in 1678, from Coleshill, Warwickshire, England, and a little later "settled at ye mouth of ye creek named after him Cooper's Creek," also known as Pyne Point, afterwards Camden. John and Ann (Clarke) Cooper settled in Deptford township near Woodbury. They had four sons and four daughters. He died 9th mo. 22nd, 1730, and his widow survived him thirty-six years, dying 12th mo. 17th, 1766. Their second daughter, Ann Cooper, born 4th mo. 23rd, 1716, died 9th mo. 22nd, 1797, married 9th mo. 23rd, 1739, James Whitall, born 7th mo. 4th, 1717, died 1808. He was the son of Job, who was the son of James Whitall, who came to America from near Litchfield, Staffordshire, England, about 1688, and settled on a hundred acre tract on Timber Creek, Gloucester Co., N. J., called Upton. In 1700 he sold this property and bought 411 acres of land on the New Jersey side of the Delaware River, about six miles below Philadelphia, known as "Red Bank," and upon his death in 1714 the Red Bank estate, containing at that time over 460 acres, descended to his son Job and from him to his son James, who with his wife, Ann (Cooper) Whitall, established a home there in 1748, and this house is still standing in excellent condition. Fort Mercer on the Delaware was located at Red Bank on the edge of the Whitall property. Coöperating with a part of the British fleet, Count Carl Emil Kurt von Donop, with twelve hundred Hessians, on October 22nd, 1777, attacked the fort. A furious battle ensued. The American force, under Colonel Christopher Greene, was much inferior in numbers and equipment to the enemy, being composed of less than five hundred inexperienced troops, but they bravely repulsed their assailants, who suffered great loss, including their commander. Dame Whitall (Ann Cooper) refused to leave her home during this perilous time. Tradition says she took her spinning wheel to the cellar and calmly went on with her work. After the battle, when her rooms were filled with wounded and dying soldiers, she tenderly ministered to their wants, at the same time consistently testifying to her horror of war. Some years ago, the federal government having purchased the Whitall farm, transferred twenty acres of this historic ground, including the house and the remnants of Fort Mercer, to the County of Gloucester, N. J., and the care of this is now permanently in the hands of the Board of Chosen Freeholders. A granite monument overlooks the grounds, and the Gloucester County Historical Society have a room in the house in which are gathered many interesting memorials of colonial and revolutionary days.

James and Ann (Cooper) Whitall had nine children. Their son Job, born 7th mo. 27th, 1743, died 9th mo. 11th, 1797, married 10th mo. 17th, 1769, Sarah Gill, born 5th mo. 28th, 1751, died 12th mo. 29th, 1824, daughter of John and Amy (Davis) Gill, of Haddonfield, N. J.; their son, Charles Whitall, born 2nd mo. 15th, 1793, died 8th mo. 24th, 1873, married 12th mo. 10th, 1819, Louisa Mickle Reeves, born 12th mo. 1st, 1798, died 10th mo. 31st, 1876, daughter of Clement and Sarah (Wood) Reeves; their son, John Gill Whitall, born 12th mo. 9th, 1830, at Red Bank, N. J., married Sarah Clark French [760], fifth in line of descent from Thomas and Jane (Atkins) French.

STONY BROOK MEETING

The records of Chesterfield Monthly Meeting show that, 10th mo. 7th, 1710, Friends at Stony Brook were granted liberty to hold a meeting for divine worship on First-days, either at the house of Benjamin Clarke or Joseph Worth. Permission for weekday meetings was granted in 1713. In 1709 Benjamin Clarke (second) had conveyed to Friends, through Richard Stockton and others, as trustees, some nine acres of land for a meeting house and burial ground at Stony Brook. In 1722, fourth month, 7th, it was decided "it may be serviceable to build a Meeting House upon a piece of land appointed for that purpose near Joseph Worth's." The meeting approved of the proposal and referred it for further consideration.

At the monthly meeting held at Chesterfield the 2nd of fifth month, 1724, the following report was made: "Whereas it was considered that it is convenient that a meeting house for the use of Friends be erected near Stony Brook, this meeting advised that our friends Joseph Worth, Benjamin Clarke, Abraham Farrington, John Tantum and Thomas Lambert meet and consider the bigness and manner of a house to be built, and what the cost might be as near as their judgment or estimate may come. Said Friends having met and considered the same, report to this meeting that a house may be built of stone, 34 feet long and 30 feet wide from out to out and to finish it so far as will render it useful as they think, for about £150, new money. This meeting refers the further consideration thereof to our next monthly meeting."

At the meeting held 6th mo. 6th, 1724, the plan was approved, and Richard French [5] and John Tantum were appointed "to receive for the meetings use the sums subscribed, as Friends are in readiness to pay same." Later in same year, Burlington Quarterly Meeting gave its approval and recommended "the matter to Burlington Monthly Meeting for their contribution in assisting Friends at Stony Brook in raising 200 pounds for that purpose." The 1st of 2nd month, 1725, Joseph Worth, Benjamin Clarke and Joseph Tantom were instructed by Chesterfield Meeting to proceed with the building of the Meeting House, which it is supposed was completed in 1726, although there is no record of any report when the house was finished. This building stood until 1759, when Friends thought it needful to rebuild it, and accordingly application was made to Burlington Quarterly Meeting for advice and assistance. "At Burlington Quarterly Meeting, held the 26th of Second mo., 1759, Chesterfield monthly meeting informs that the Friends at Stony Brook applied to that meeting for some Friends to join them to inspect what would be necessary to be done at their meeting house; and their report was that they thought it needful to rebuild it and desire the advice of the Quarterly meeting therein. William Morris, Hugh Hartshorne, Edward Cathrall, Joseph Noble, Daniel Doughty, William Lawrie and Abel Middleton were appointed to view the said meeting house and report their judgment whether it may not be sufficiently repaired without being taken quite down, and if they think necessary to take it down, to inform Stony Brook friends that it may be done forthwith."

"At Chesterfield monthly meeting held 7th of Sixth month, 1759. The Quarterly meeting recommends this meeting to appoint managers to get Stony Brook meeting house rebuilt. This meeting appoints John Clarke and Thomas Watson to that service, and when done to make a report to this meeting."

"At a Quarterly meeting held at Burlington the 23rd of Second month, 1761. An account from Friends of Stony Brook of the cost of rebuilding their meeting house was laid before this meeting, amounting to £238 5s. 11d., of which £63 15s. was raised among themselves by contribution and the remainder is yet to raise, which this meeting agrees shall be done by contribution, and for that purpose doth recommend it to the several monthly meetings to raise the said forthwith, according as the quotas shall be settled by John Hoskins, Benjamin Field, John Ridgway and Samuel Lundy who are to report to next meeting."

They reported to the next quarterly meeting that it had been done and the money paid to the managers of Stony Brook meeting house.

"At Chesterfield monthly meeting held the 4th of Sixth month, 1761, the Treasurer reported he had paid to the managers of the Stony Brook meeting house the quota of our monthly meeting, being £63. 15s."

This stone Meeting House, rebuilt upon the original foundation, still remains in a good state of preservation, showing all the quaint features of early days. Friends worshipped at Stony Brook for over one hundred and fifty years, but during the past forty years meetings have not been held there, on account of the numerical weakness of the Society in that vicinity. The battle of Princeton was fought within sight of the Meeting House.

Joseph French Page [796], fourth son of Gilbert and Atlantic (French) Page [371], spent some time in his father's store at Moorestown, N. J., then enlarged his knowledge of business through service in a mercantile house in Philadelphia. Soon after attaining his majority he entered into partnership with his brother, Charles French Page [793], as a stock broker. Two years later he became an extensive wholesale dealer in coal, having offices on Broad street near Cherry, and at Locust street wharf, on the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia. Southern credits and losses at the outbreak of the Civil War caused Mr. Page to abandon this line of business, and in 1863 he established a wholesale dry-goods house at 237 Market street. He dealt largely in government blankets and other military supplies and became very prosperous. About 1867 he retired from active business, residing during the remainder of his life at 1820 Chestnut street. Between 1880 and 1890, in connection with his sons, Edward and Joseph F. Page, Jr., he directed the development of a valuable tract of real estate which he owned in the northern part of the city. Throughout a long and active life, Mr. Page was noted for industry, integrity and geniality. He had many friends among the leading business men of his day, with whom in later life he took keen enjoyment in reviewing the mercantile and manufacturing development in Philadelphia in the days before the Civil War. He was fond of outdoor life and loved dogs and horses. Upon the occasion of a destructive fire in his Market street store a valuable hunting dog was burned to death, causing Mr. Page more grief than his financial loss.

Ellen Forde (Hansell) Page was the eighth child of William Sutton and Elinor (Forde) Hansell, daughter of Standish, Jr., and Sarah (Britton) Forde. William Sutton Hansell, born November 6th, 1787, died December 22nd, 1872, married October 15th, 1812, Elinor Forde, was the second son of Barnett and Sarah (Sutton) Hansell. Barnett Hansell, fourth son of the pioneer, Peter David Hansell, was born January 9th, 1760, died October 11th, 1809, married June 24th, 1784, Sarah Sutton, who was born in Delaware, July 17th, 1760, and died in Philadelphia, August 25th, 1793. William Sutton Hansell was one of the pioneer manufacturers of harness and saddlery ware in Philadelphia. In 1810 he established himself in business on Market street, near the Delaware River. He was a "constant and tireless worker; the cutting of six dozen riding bridles was an after supper task." The business prospered, being extended to different parts of the country, and has been continued by his sons and grandsons under the firm name of Wm. S. Hansell & Sons, the house recently celebrating its one hundredth anniversary. From the time of the Mexican War until the present the founder and his successors have furnished the United States government with many kinds of horse equipments, and during the Civil War shoes, tents and clothing. Mr. Hansell was much interested in religious and philanthropic work, and was a deacon in the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia for fifty years.

Charles Crillon Barton was a son of Dr. William P. C. Barton, of Philadelphia, a noted physician and author from 1820 until his death in 1856, and surgeon in the United States Navy for nearly forty years. Dr. Barton was a grandson of the Rev. Thomas Barton, a noted colonial minister and missionary, who married Esther Rittenhouse, sister of the famous astronomer, Dr. David Rittenhouse. Charles Crillon Barton was appointed midshipman in the Navy December 1st, 1824, when only twelve years of age; promoted to Passed Midshipman June 14th, 1834, and reached the grade of Lieutenant, February 25th, 1841. At the outbreak of the war with Mexico, in 1846, he was cruising in foreign waters off the coast of Africa. He returned in the Casket to the service of the Home Squadron the same year, and in 1847 was assigned to survey duty at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. His health failed in 1851, and in August of that year he died in Philadelphia. Under the direction of his father, Dr. Barton, the funeral was held at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church (Philadelphia), and he was buried with naval honors, the remains being accompanied to Laurel Hill Cemetery by an escort, in accordance with the following order:

"NAVAL NOTICE. Officers of the U. S. Navy and Marine Corps, attached to this station are hereby invited to attend the funeral of the late Lieut. Charles C. Barton, U. S. Navy, in uniform, with the usual badge of mourning, at 3 o'clock P. M. to-morrow, 30th inst., from No. 8 Sansom St.

GEORGE C. READ, Commandant.

Commandant's office U. S. Navy Yard, Philada., 29th August, 1851" (U. S. Gazette, August 30th, 1851).

Lieutenant Barton maintained an enviable record in the Navy. On January 8th, 1845, he married Christiana Campbell, daughter of Amos Campbell, of Woodbury, N. J. She was born in July, 1819, and died January 5th, 1903. For many years she was a United States pensioner on account of Lieutenant Barton's services in the Mexican War.

William Trost Richards, after receiving a grammar and high school education, turned his attention to the study of art, becoming a painter by profession before he had attained his majority. In 1855 he went to Europe, spending a year in study and observation in Florence, Rome and Paris. In 1856 he opened a studio in Philadelphia and rapidly won his way to a high place among artists, as a painter of landscapes and marine pictures. His work is represented in permanent collections of notable institutions in this country and abroad, among these being the Metropolitan Museum, New York, Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, Corcoran Art Gallery, Washington, and Shaube Gallery, Hamburg. He was awarded a medal at the Centennial Exhibition, Philadelphia, 1876, and at the Paris Exhibition, 1889. Upon his return from Europe, a short time before his death, he was given a public reception in Philadelphia, at which eulogistic addresses were made by prominent citizens.

From a critical review of Mr. Richards's work in "The National Cyclopedia of American Biography" (1904), we quote as follows:

"His most important landscapes represent at best his pre-Raphaelistic methods, showing a masterly treatment of detail. In later years he gave more attention to marine painting and created some remarkable and elaborate reproductions of surf, breaker, wave and sand. In 1866 he went to Europe with the object of perfecting himself in the execution of coast scenes, and spent some time in Paris, studying canvasses at the exhibition of 1867. The following year he returned home, and during the period from 1870 to 1878 devoted every summer to sketching by the sea. He then for two years had a studio in London and exhibited at the Royal Academy. For many years he has been a regular contributor to the National Academy exhibition in New York, and also to the American Water Color Society, of which he is an honorary member."

REAR ADMIRAL JOHN JOSEPH READ, U. S. N.

John Joseph Read [1592], third child and second son of Joseph S. and Mary (Black) Read, and sixth in line of descent from Thomas French, received his early education at private schools and the West Jersey Collegiate Institute. In September, 1858, he was appointed to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., from the Second Congressional District of New Jersey. At the outbreak of the Civil War, in 1861, the Federal government being greatly in need of officers for the Navy, the third class at the Academy, of which young Read was a member, was ordered into service on May 10th. He reported to the commandant of the New York Navy Yard and was at once assigned to duty as Acting Midshipman on the U. S. Frigate Potomac. This vessel soon joined the blockade squadron, in the Gulf of Mexico. The utmost vigilance was required and there were many exciting incidents. One of these was the capture in Mobile Bay of a schooner falsely flying British colors. Acting Midshipman Read was in charge of a small boat which engaged the enemy on shore in a sharp conflict. His superior officer was Winfield Scott Schley, Master (many years later Rear Admiral), who in his official report of the affair, highly praised "the firmness and coolness" of the officers and men under his command.

In January, 1862, the Potomac was ordered to Vera Cruz to protect American interests in Mexico, and Midshipman Read witnessed the landing of the allied French, Spanish and English armies, under the Spanish General Prim, which foreign occupation preceded the coming of the ill-starred Emperor Maximilian. After the capture of New Orleans, in April, 1862, he was one of the junior officers in command of the armed seamen who served as a guard for the fleet representatives who entered the city and raised the United States flag on the public buildings. The populace was very indignant and riotous scenes occurred.

Receiving his promotion as Ensign, November 22nd, 1862, young Read was assigned to duty on the U. S. Flagship Hartford with Admiral Farragut. In this capacity he served during the conflict with the Confederate batteries at Port Hudson, on the Mississippi River, in March, 1863; also in the engagements at Grand Gulf and Warrington, below Vicksburg. His personal experiences at this time were thrilling and perilous. Later he served on reconnoitering expeditions in bayous of Louisiana and between Mobile and Pensacola, in the Gulf of Mexico. Ensign Read's next service was with the South Atlantic Squadron during the siege of Charleston, 1863-64. Though one of the youngest officers his high standing was shown by an incident in the history of the great ironclad U. S. Frigate Ironsides, to which he had but recently been ordered. One dark night, October 5th, 1863, a daring and almost successful attempt was made to destroy the vessel by means of a powerful torpedo. The explosion startled the entire fleet. Read was sent in a small boat on a voyage of discovery, but the mysterious craft had gotten away in the misty night. During this period he was for a time attached to the monitor Nahant. He was promoted lieutenant February 22nd, 1864, and made executive officer of the U. S. steamer R. R. Cuyler, which served with the North Atlantic and West Gulf squadrons. He was present at both attacks on and the capture of Fort Fisher, N. C., December, 1864, and January, 1865. This was one of the most desperate conflicts of the war and all engaged in it earned the gratitude of the nation. It virtually ended blockade running and left the Confederacy without further material aid from beyond the seas. In March, 1865, the Cuyler was ordered to join the West Gulf squadron, where it participated in the siege of Mobile, in the early part of April. After the capture of that last Confederate stronghold, April 6th, the Cuyler, at that time the flagship of Rear Admiral Thatcher, proceeded to Galveston, Texas, in the vicinity of which the final remnants of the Confederate forces surrendered during the first week in June. All through this period Lieutenant Read, as executive officer of the Cuyler, rendered most efficient service.

Lieutenant Commander Read, having received promotion to that rank in July, 1866, and been assigned to the U. S. Steamer De Soto, was present the same year at the attack on and destruction of the forts at Cape Haytien, Hayti, by the British squadron under Commodore McClintock. He next served on board the U. S. Frigate Guerriere, European Squadron, 1871. During 1876-77 he commanded the U. S. Flagship Richmond, cruising in the South Atlantic and South Pacific. He was promoted Commander, December 11th, 1877, and assigned to shore duty in Washington, Bureau of Yards and Docks, and later as Lighthouse Inspector of Mississippi River, with headquarters at St. Louis. After commanding the historic U. S. Steamer Michigan on the northern lakes in 1883, he was made Lighthouse Inspector at Philadelphia, Fourth District, in 1889.

On March 31st, 1891, Commander Read, having again journeyed to the South Pacific, assumed command of the U. S. Corvette Iroquois, then at

1842 REAR-ADMIRAL JOHN J. READ, U. S. N., RETIRED

Honolulu. For more than a year he sailed this noted old ship around the Hawaiian Islands and Samoa, returning to Mare Island Navy Yard, San Francisco, in April, 1892, when the worn out vessel was put out of commission. April 27th, 1893, after thirty years' active service, this veteran officer received his commission as Captain. During 1894 he was in charge of the receiving ship Independence at Mare Island Navy Yard.

The new and model protected cruiser Olympia was now ready for service. Great things were expected of her. The ship was put in commission at Mare Island February 5th, 1895. Captain Read was placed in command, with a new crew of over four hundred men and ordered to the Asiatic station. He at once began training seamen and gunners. For several weeks the naval militia of California were exercised on this thoroughly equipped vessel during short trips along the Pacific coast. On August 25th, 1895, the Olympia took her departure for Yokohama, Japan, via Honolulu. The ship made a splendid record and upon arrival in Asiatic waters, in November following, excited the admiration of the Japanese and the officers of other foreign nations.

The long voyage in the Olympia abundantly demonstrated Captain Read's superior ability as a naval officer. His skill as a scientific navigator was shown upon many occasions. During a great storm in mid-Pacific, lasting many perilous days, his watchfulness was ceaseless, while his calm courage inspired officers and men to faithfully perform every duty. A fire in the coal bunkers at the same time necessitated heroic and energetic measures. Visiting many Asiatic ports, good behavior on the part of seamen and mariners was required to maintain the high reputation of the United States Navy. Captain Read, while a strict disciplinarian, was always in sympathetic and kindly relationship with his men. Minor offences were regarded generously, but serious or repeated infractions of the naval regulations were sternly dealt with. Captain Read was justly proud of his handsome man-of-war, and especially of her crew in marksmanship. A large part of the first crew of the Olympia had been "green" men who were transformed under Captain Read's training into the efficient sailors and gunners whose skill was of the highest service in the Spanish-American War, making a brilliant record with Captain Gridley and Admiral Dewey at the battle of Manila Bay.

The Olympia was one of the war vessels invited to witness the great celebration at Vladivostok, Siberia, in honor of the Czar, May, 1896. The harbor was so crowded with craft of all nations at the time that Russian pilots hesitated to lead in the big American ship. With chart before him, Captain Read, with his usual courageous and accurate seamanship, personally directed the entrance of his vessel into the harbor, safely reaching an advantageous place for anchorage, winning the admiration of other naval commanders, who freely offered their congratulations.

Captain Read very naturally entertained the hope that he could retain his assignment for the full three years, but the Navy Department, in pursuit of routine methods, transferred a number of officers of high rank, and so it happened that on July 28th, 1897, at Yokohama, a modest looking stranger came on board, and Captain Read assembling his officers and crew in impressive array, transferred the command of the Olympia to Captain Joseph V. Gridley. A little later the vessel became the flagship of Commodore, now Admiral, Dewey, and forever famous in consequence of its leading part in the battle in Manila Bay, Philippine Islands, May 1st, 1898, which resulted in the destruction of the Spanish fleet there assembled. When Captain Read transferred the command of the Olympia to Captain Gridley, he carried with him the highest respect and affectionate regard of his shipmates of every grade. A comrade of forty years' service, Rear Admiral Longnecker, has said of him: "His modesty was only equalled by his true worth as a man and an officer."

This final voyage to the East comprised Captain Read's last service on the sea. He returned to the United States and was assigned to duty at League Island Navy Yard, Philadelphia, where he remained two years. November 29th, 1900, he was commissioned Rear Admiral. During 1901-02-03 he was Commandant of the Navy Yard and Station at Portsmouth, N. H. He closed his active career, after forty-three years' eventful service, while chairman of the Lighthouse Board, Washington, D. C., June 17th, 1904, when he was retired on account of age.

The years of his retirement Rear Admiral Read spent enjoyably at his home in Mount Holly, N. J., with occasional sojourn abroad and at various pleasure and health resorts in this country. The legacy of a vigorous and long lived ancestry served him until almost three score and ten. The announcement of his death, after a brief illness, came as a painful surprise to a wide circle of friends in civic as in naval life. Funeral services, conducted by Rev. James Stoddard, rector of St. Andrew's P. E. Church, Mount Holly, were largely attended by notable citizens, among them Rear Admirals James W. Thomson, Edwin Longnecker and John F. Hanscom, and Acting Chief Engineer John D. Williamson, long-time friends and comrades of the deceased veteran officer. Representatives of the Union League of Philadelphia, the Loyal Legion, the Society of the Cincinnati, and the Descendants of the War of 1812 were present and acted as honorary pall-bearers. By special request of the deceased officer there was no military or naval display. Interment was made in St. Andrew's churchyard, Mount Holly, where rest his father, grandfather, great grandfather and other members of the Read family.

Rear Admiral Read was elected a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, December 2nd, 1868. He was chosen a member of the Council of the Commandery of Pennsylvania May 7th, 1890, and Senior Vice-Commander May 1st, 1901. A memorial issued by the Commandery June 20th, 1911, after reciting his honorable long-time services, says:

"Admiral Read was one of the few surviving officers who served all through the War of the Rebellion and through the War with Spain. His record, as cited, shows the various duties he was called on and which were efficiently and gallantly performed. Companion Read never married but was a devoted brother in every way to his family; was a genial Companion, pleasant and obliging. His demise is and will continue to be deeply lamented by his relatives and friends. All in all his equal will be difficult to find."

The following warm tribute to Rear Admiral Read is from his long-time friend and associate, Rear Admiral Francis H. Delano of the United States Navy:

CARVEL HALL

ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND

March 24th, 1911.

My dear Mr. French:

Yours of March 20th came a day or two ago. My acquaintance with the late Rear Admiral Read dates back to my midshipman days, when we were serving on the U. S. S. Susquehanna, flagship of Rear Admiral Palmer, commanding the U. S. North Atlantic fleet.

Read was the executive officer and although a Lieut. Commander, was young for the billet but he took an enthusiastic interest in his profession and was a most thorough and efficient officer. This interest and this efficiency he displayed throughout his naval career. He was of fine presence, made up his mind quickly, was always well groomed and as a sailor man would say, was ready for quarters or inspection at any minute.

The Susquehanna had a good many things happen that cruise. She arrived in Mexican waters just after Maximillian was shot, chased after Santa Anna, around the Spanish Main, got in a hurricane on the way to St. Thomas where the Admiral was to take possession in case the United States Senate ratified the treaty. Experienced the earthquake and the earthquake wave which landed the U. S. S. Monongahela high and dry on the island of Santa Cruz and ended with a serious outbreak of yellow fever, which proved fatal to the Admiral and many others.

Read commanded the Olympia, flagship on the Asiatic Station, during her first commission and I was with him a year or so as Executive or Second in Command and our association, officially and socially, was more than friendly. We had a bright lot of midshipmen on board and Read took a lively interest in them and their future careers—too lively the youngsters thought, for the Olympia was a very smart ship and they were kept busy. When they were sent home for final examination, Read was as anxious and solicitant for their welfare as if they had been his own boys and was delighted to hear of the fine records they made. Two were killed in service, those remaining are to-day most valuable officers.

When Read was Commandant of the Portsmouth Navy Yard I was on duty then as Ordnance Officer and in a position to see how successful was his administration.

He was a good sailor man and always handled his ships well. As a matter of course, was conscientious in the performance of duty and expected the same of others, a good disciplinarian, somewhat punctilious, loyal to his friends, considerate to subordinates but stern and unrelenting if occasion required.

Throughout the service his ability as an officer was appreciated, and for his many good qualities as a man he was highly esteemed. You have Admiral Read's record as furnished by the Navy Department, an epitome of his naval career and I fear this letter will strike you as using many words to say few things but it gives you what the record does not—the estimate of the man by the service at large.

With kindest remembrances from Mrs. Delano, I am glad to say she is well, and from me to you and yours.

Always sincerely,

(Signed) FRANCIS H. DELANO.

It may be of interest to the reader to note some excerpts from a letter received by the author from the mother of one of the young bluejackets on the Olympia, under command of Captain Read:

"As you may have guessed, it was because my son was wild and wayward that he ran away and entered the Navy. I wrote a letter to Capt. Read explaining and saying that while I thought the boy needed all the discipline he could get, in case of sickness I wanted him to have all that money could procure for him, &c., &c. The Captain wrote me a nice long personal letter, and after that as long as he remained with the ship we exchanged letters about twice a year. My son did not know this until after he returned home. He had a devotion to Captain Read that never abated. From a letter from my son I have gleaned the enclosed:

"We were seventeen days from Honolulu to Yokohama and it stormed most all of the way. It may not have been the same typhoon, but we must have run from one into another. I know in looking back we always spoke of it as a ten day typhoon. We were on duty and fighting the fire, and the ship heaving. Although the storm was terrible the Olympia was new and staunch, and Capt. Read not a man to turn until forced to. We were ready for Silver Island but did not have to go. He was very strict, and admired both by officers and men for his seamanship. I dare say there was not a cleaner record in the Navy than Capt. Read's. I think I have always given you that impression, and you know what nice letters he wrote you about me."

Joseph Read, great grandfather of Rear Admiral John Joseph Read, was the son of Samuel and Dorothy (King) Read, who were married June 19th, 1738, by the rector of Christ Church, Philadelphia. Joseph, their eldest son, was born in Philadelphia, April 16th, 1739. He located for a time in Burlington, N. J., where he studied law with Charles Read, and was admitted to the bar in 1768. He established his home in Mount Holly, and took an active interest in everything pertaining to the progress and development of his home town. He was a vestryman of St. Andrew's Church from 1772 until his death, November 19th, 1814, and was elected lay delegate, 1785-86, to attend the State Convention of the Episcopal Clergy and Laity then held at Burlington; member of the Provincial Congress, 1775. He married, February 7th, 1771, Martha Rossell, daughter of Zachariah and Margaret (Clark) Rossell. She died February 19th, 1830, in the 77th year of her age.

Samuel Joseph Read, son of Joseph and Martha (Rossell) Read, was born in Mount Holly December 14th, 1771, died October 2nd, 1836. He also became a leading member of the bar, having been admitted in 1792, and was its oldest practitioner in Mount Holly at the time of his death. He was an officer in the War of 1812, commanding a battalion of New Jersey infantry under General Elmer, with title of Major. He was commissioned September 19th, 1814, and served until December 22nd of the same year, being stationed at Billingsport, on the Delaware River, below Philadelphia; subsequently he became Colonel of the 1st Regiment, Salem Brigade, in the New Jersey militia. He was vestryman of St. Andrew's Church from 1809 to 1836, and lay delegate to the Convention of 1814-15. He married December 9th, 1799, Sarah Budd, daughter of Dr. Stacey and Sarah (Monrow) Budd. She was born March 8th, 1781, and died October 2nd, 1851.

Joseph Samuel Read, second son and child of Samuel Joseph and Sarah (Budd) Read, born June 23rd, 1802, died August 10th, 1877, engaged in mercantile business in Mount Holly for a number of years and later held a government position in Washington, D. C.

He married July 3rd, 1839, Mary Black, eldest child of Judge Samuel and Charlotte (Biddle) Black, and great, great, great granddaughter of Thomas and Jane (Atkins) French.

ST. ANDREW'S P. E. CHURCH, MOUNT HOLLY, N. J.

In 1738 Rev. Colin Campbell, a missionary of the English Church Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, took charge of St. Mary's Church, Burlington, N. J., and having the care of the surrounding country, soon became interested in establishing a mission at the growing settlement on the Rancocas, called Mount Holly, known also for a long time as Bridgetown. By lease and release dated March 31st and April 1st, 1742, two acres of ground were, by Isaac Pearson (of Burlington), Mahlon Stacy and John Burr (of Bridgetown), given in trust and confidence, "To the intent that a Church may be built thereon for the celebration of Divine Service after the manner of the Church of England, as by Law established, and for a Burial Place for the Dead of the Congregation of Protestants to assemble there forever and to no other Use, Intent or Purpose whatsoever." The ancient survey covering these two acres of land recites that they were "surveyed of and from the land of Mahlon Stacy, Isaac Pearson and John Burr at their Iron Works," which were located on the 340 acre tract that they owned on the south side of Rancocas Creek. The ground conveyed, with some additions, has been from that time continuously used for burial purposes, and is called the churchyard. Here the first church was erected, becoming known as St. Andrew's, and although a small wooden structure it was pretentious for the times, as will be noted by Mr. Campbell's report to the Society in 1742: "At a place called Mount Holly, about eight miles from Burlington, the people have built a handsome Church, and given it, by a deed of gift, to the Society and three other trustees, of whom the missionary at Burlington is to be always one." For considerably over twenty years, Mr. Campbell diligently, cheerfully and patiently journeyed from week to week from Burlington to Mount Holly in New Jersey and Bristol in Pennsylvania, "performing the duties of his several churches, not only by reading the public service and preaching, but also by publicly catechising the youth, and grounding them in the principles of the holy faith"; and in a large measure he reveals the secret of his successful labors when he reports to the Society his firm determination, "to study to be quiet, and mind his own business, and leave events to God." On June 25th, 1763, Mr. Campbell reported to the Venerable Society: "I can with truth and pleasure acquaint the Society that my several congregations live peaceably with one another as well as with those who dissent from us; and are in an encreasing state in so much that that of Burlington are about enlarging the Church . . . and that of Mount holly have finished a new Gallery for the reception of people who were so crowded in the body of the Church that before rendered it very inconvenient." He further stated in that year that his congregation at Mount Holly, which at his first coming consisted of but four families of the Church of England, had so increased by the "divine blessing on his endeavour" that they were thinking of applying to be made a separate mission. In 1764 they bound themselves to the Society to pay a missionary £30 sterling. In 1765 the parish was incorporated by Royal Charter, and Mr. Campbell's term of service continued until his death, August 9th, 1766. It is interesting to note that the present authorities of St. Andrew's Church have in their possession an ancient Prayer Book with Psalter bearing the inscription "Sent by the Society to the Rev^d Mr. Colin Campbell, for the use of Mount holly Church, April 25th, 1749."

Rev. Jonathan Odell, on July 25th, 1767, arrived in Burlington, as missionary, succeeding Mr. Campbell, and when reporting to the Society, in October of that year: "There are in Burlington about 200 Families of Inhabitants, of which we may rate about one in four to belong to the Church of England," he referred to his charge at Mount Holly as follows: "I should have mentioned before that the Parishioners at Mount Holly are at least as numerous as those at Burlington and likewise give a decent devout attention to the publick Worship." He continued to officiate at St. Andrew's, in connection with the church at Burlington, until the trying times of the Revolution, when he was compelled to take refuge in New York; and it is doubtful whether there were any further services held in the church for a number of years. A record in 1779 states: "there has been a total cessation of public worship in the provinces of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and almost every Missionary driven out." There was a reorganization in 1784; the first minutes extant of a meeting after the war being those of October 22nd, 1784, and shortly thereafter Rev. Samuel Spraggs was made minister of St. Andrew's and continued until September, 1789. During his rectorship a new church building of brick was erected within the town, on what is called Church street. It was comfortable, though primitive in style, having benches instead of pews, and the walls were unplastered. At a meeting of the minister, wardens and vestry of St. Andrew's, held May 18th, 1812, it was resolved, the minutes show, "that each member be invested with authority to solicit contributions for pewing, plaistering and finishing the Church." And at the meeting of June 10th, 1813, a motion was made "that the Vestry proceed to finishing the Church in the manner specified in the subscription paper, viz, pewing, plaistering and painting, there appearing to be a sufficient sum subscribed for that purpose." This building, altered in part, is still standing, being a portion of a foundry and manufacturing establishment. At an annual meeting of the wardens and vestrymen of St. Andrew's, on May 18th, 1807, "a motion was made and agreed to, to alter the resolution entered into last annual meeting, for the sale of the Old Church House at the Grave Yard and insted of Sale thereof to take it down and build a conveneant shed out of it on the corner of the Lott Back of the new Church next to Joseph Butterworth's Lott, the Building to be extended back into the Clover Lott and Messrs. Joseph Bennett, John Dobbins and Samuel Clark were appointed to superintend the same," and shortly thereafter the original church building was taken down. There still remains in the churchyard a beautiful oak tree near which the church had stood; and within a short distance of the tree is a gravestone bearing the inscription, "Alexander Shiras, 1790-1821, Second adult of that full name in Mount Holly. He lies at his own request where the first church stood." From 1793 to 1809 the Reverends Henry Van Dyke, Andrew Fowler, Joseph Turner and Richard Channing Moore officiated at St. Andrew's at different short intervals; and supplemented by the faithful and acceptable lay service of Dr. Peter Van Pelt a portion of the time, the church was kept open and the congregation together during that period. Rev. Daniel Higbee was in charge from 1809 to 1814, officiating also for a time at St. Mary's, Colestown, also as the general missionary in the State by appointment of the Convention. In 1815 Rev. George Youngs Morehouse was called to the rectorship, and with fourteen communicants began his forty-four years' faithful and successful incumbency. Under his ministry the present church building on High street was erected in 1844, and later a bell was placed in the tower. Each Sunday morning at 8 o'clock one may hear repeated the ancient custom of ringing the church bell to give notice to the inhabitants of Mount Holly that services will be held in the church that day. In 1853 the parish was reincorporated under the laws of New Jersey. In 1879 a parish building was added and in 1883 the present rectory was built. Rev. G. P. Schetky succeeded Mr. Morehouse as rector 1859-63; Rev. D. H. McCurdy 1864-68; Rev. C. M. Perkins, 1869-82; Rev. John D. Hills 1882-89; Rev. Charles A. Hayden 1889-91; Rev. Richard A. Rodrick served 1891-97; Rev. James Stoddard, of Connecticut, the present minister, came to the rectorship in 1898, and in 1900 the congregation of Trinity P. E. Church, established in 1859, united with St. Andrew's. In 1899 Mr. Stoddard also assumed charge of the mission at Columbus, N. J., which was established by Rev. C. M. Perkins about 1880 and known as St. Luke's mission. St. Andrew's Church records contain the names of many representative colonial families of note, and in the churchyard rest a large number of former leading citizens.

John B. Atkinson, a native of Gloucester County, New Jersey, was in early life a teacher in the Aaron School, Mount Holly, N. J., and after graduating from the Polytechnic Institute of Philadelphia was employed as civil engineer with the Erie R. R., and later during the construction of the Hoosac tunnel, an important piece of engineering work. In 1871 he settled in Hopkins County, Kentucky, as superintendent of the St. Bernard Coal Co., now the St. Bernard Mining Co., Earlington, Ky. At that time the company was a small concern, operating only one mine, but under the efficient management of Mr. Atkinson both as superintendent and president,—the latter position he had held for a number of years prior to his death—with the aid and support of officers and men trained by him, the company became the largest of its kind in the State, owning a number of mines and producing double the amount of coal of any other company in Kentucky. He was a member and officer of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Engineering Association of the South, American Geographical Society, Engineers' Club of New York City, Pendennis Club of Louisville, Ky., Sons of the Revolution; member of the Board of Trustees of the State University of Kentucky and President of Kentucky Jamestown Commission. Mr. Atkinson was a pioneer in forestry and devoted considerable time to this work. Prior to the subject becoming an important public issue, he caused to be planted hundreds of acres of the St. Bernard lands in trees of various kinds. He attended the first conference of Governors held in the White House at Washington, May, 1908, as one of the advisors of the Governor of Kentucky, and presented at that time an important paper on "Forestry as Related to Mining Interests." He was greatly interested in educational work, and the substantial and well equipped school buildings of Earlington and other towns where the St. Bernard mines are located, were the result of his efforts; he was also a liberal patron of the Atkinson College for colored people at Madisonville, Ky. His consideration, sympathy and kindness, his universal fairness and charity in dealing with all questions, won for him the utmost confidence and affectionate loyalty of all his employes; likewise the esteem and love of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Kentucky and elsewhere. In noting the death of Mr. Atkinson, the Louisville Courier-Journal referred to him as follows:

"He has been connected with the coal mining interests of Kentucky for nearly forty years. In that time, from a comparative small beginning, he had built up a corporation which for many years has been the leading coal and coke producing company in the State, operating nine mines, employing several thousand men and mining more than half the entire output of the chief coal-producing county in the State.

"Such a record of accomplishment betokens uncommon executive ability. In all the years of Mr. Atkinson's management of his company there was remarkable freedom from labor troubles. He operated his mines with non-union men, but there has been but one strike of any importance in the company's history, and several efforts by union labor leaders to organize the mines were unsuccessful. It has been said of Mr. Atkinson that he was never too busy to listen to any personal grievance or to the smallest affairs of his humble employe and to give freely of his time to counsel and to remedy. His influence was paramount with his associates and employes, and they were faithful to his interests—or to what he conceived to be the interests of his company.

"Mr. Atkinson's activities were largely responsible for extensive mineral development in Hopkins County, adding greatly to the wealth and prosperity of the region wherein he operated, incidentally, to the industrial and commercial progress of the State. A Kentuckian by adoption, he became strongly interested in the State's resources and was identified with many movements for their advertisement and exploitation. His intimate connection with the organizations for the display of Kentucky products at several of the great national and international expositions that have been held in the past twenty years should be remembered gratefully by the citizens of the State. He was a believer in conservation, and he was one of the few practical conservationists in this section of the United States. He was an authority on forestry and his experiments in that direction have attracted much attention. He planted millions of trees in Hopkins County in anticipation of the time when they would be needed to take the place of a vanishing timber supply, and in twenty years of active forestry operation he transformed and beautified vast tracts of land that had been denuded of trees and had become literally 'the waste places of the earth.' The death of a man so able, so resourceful and so public-spirited is a distinct loss to the State wherein so much of his talent and energy has been exercised to such splendid purpose."

Clayton Atkinson Black, only son of Judge George [389] and Hannah (Atkinson) Black, succeeded to the management of the homestead farm, just outside the village of Columbus, in 1861, which he successfully conducted for many years, making it his permanent home. Upon the death of his father he became vice president of the Columbus, Kinkora and Springfield Railroad. In 1872 he was chosen director of the Mercer County Mutual Fire Insurance Company and of the Mount Holly National Bank. In 1873 he was made a director of the Bordentown Turnpike Company, and although several times pressed to accept political honors, declined, until Governor McClellan tendered him the appointment of judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Burlington County, which he accepted, and went upon the bench in April, 1878. Judge Black was always deeply interested in agricultural pursuits, and did much to bring about a mutual understanding between the farmers and other tax-payers, and for the protection of game, laws for which were drawn by him and may be found upon the statute-books.

CAPTAIN JAMES STRATTON FRENCH.

James Stratton French, eldest son and second child of Charles Creighton [393] and Mercy (Gilpin) Chapman French, when a lad went with his father to Ohio, where he remained for some years, returning to Philadelphia and entering upon a sea-faring life in the commercial marine. He served chiefly on coasting vessels, being recorded as captain of various craft, until the breaking out of the Civil War, when he offered his services to the Federal government as an experienced sailing master. He was appointed Acting Master August 29th, 1861, and assigned to the U. S. brig Perry, then stationed off Alexandria, Va., and engaged in patrol and guard duty on the Potomac. It required great vigilance and energy to break up secret night traffic between the Confederate forces in Virginia and sympathizers in Maryland. Acting Master French frequently boarded contraband vessels, thus learning of the hostile preparations and movements of the enemy, and rendering efficient service under trying and often dangerous circumstances. He remained with the Perry for a year or more and on December 31st, 1862, was ordered to the U. S. ironclad frigate Roanoke. This vessel was an old time man-of-war that had narrowly escaped destruction by the Confederate ram Merrimac, which was successfully encountered by the Monitor in March, 1862. The Roanoke was attached to the North Atlantic blockading squadron during 1863, doing duty along the Carolina and Virginia coast.

On July 12th, 1864, Acting Master French was ordered to the Wilderness, and on July 15th, on the recommendation of his commanding officer, he was commissioned Acting Volunteer Lieutenant and placed in command of this vessel, a transport steamer, engaged in transport and despatch duty on the James River, during the active operations of that period. He witnessed a number of minor engagements and reported movements of the enemy. Upon the Wilderness being assigned to the Fort Fisher, N. C., expedition, as a gunboat, Lieutenant French, November 23rd, 1864, was detached and ordered to join the Mississippi squadron in the Southwest. He was assigned to the U. S. steamer St. Clair, with which he remained until the close of the war. On July 25th, 1865, he was granted four months leave, and December 22nd, 1865, was honorably discharged after serving faithfully four years and five months. Returning to Philadelphia, he was thereafter appointed to a responsible place in the Navy Yard, where he remained until his death, in 1874.

For his service in the navy his widow was granted a pension. Captain French served many of the old time merchants of Philadelphia and was highly spoken of by those who knew him during his active and useful life. He is buried in Fernwood Cemetery, Delaware Co., Pa. His son, Charles Creighton French [1641d], served in the navy during and after the war a period of three years, enlisting the first time when he was only fifteen years old.

In a letter dated July, 1910, Ella (French) Howe [1641g] thus refers to Captain French:

"I can only tell you in regard to my father that a nobler, better man never lived. He died poor in this world's goods, for he was always helping others. But any one that saw his coffin borne the length of the street on the shoulders of some of his Grand Army comrades and heard the cries of the poor of the neighborhood, 'that they had lost their best friend,' would have realized that he had treasures laid up above. His motto was 'Do unto others as you wish to be done by.'"

Rear Admiral James M. Forsyth, retired, entered the United States Navy in the spring of 1861, as Master's Mate. He rose rapidly through junior and senior grades, rendering efficient and notable service. He has interesting recollections of Captain French, as appear from the following letter, written from Nassau, Bahamas, under date of March 4th, 1911:

"I knew Capt. James S. French best in the merchant service when he was Captain of the brig Calvert of Philada. and I was a common sailor under his command. This was in 1860. We made two voyages to Sierra Leone, coast of Africa. He was a good friend to me, teaching me navigation and seamanship and encouraging in me an ambition to rise in the merchant service. He was a good man, never rough in his language or deportment, showing signs of a good education; was fond of Shakespeare and Scott, often quoting to me in the long night watches. I was a youngster of 18 or 19 and thought him one of the best of men. We drifted apart in seafaring life and I volunteered in the Navy for the Civil War and found he had done the same. We were never thrown together in the Naval service, except once in 1863, when both our ships were under repair at New York. At that time I think he was in the Roanoke and I was in the Water Witch. After the war he left the sea and was employed at Philadelphia Navy Yard, under Commandant Pendergrast. That is the last I remember of him. . . . I consider that I owe a good deal to the fine training I got from Capt. French."

ANCESTRY OF PARRY LUKENS, JR.

Jan Lucken—the family name later being changed to Lukens—was one of the thirteen pioneer colonists of Germans who settled Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., in 1683; whither they had mostly come from Crefeld, a city of the lower Rhine, near the border of Holland. He married in 1683 Mary ———, probably Kunders, daughter of Thones Kunders, who had accompanied him to America. It has also been stated that he married Mary, sister of Reynear Tyson, who was likewise one of the company arriving on the Concord. Jan Lucken possessed the confidence and esteem of Francis Pastorius, Christopher Sower and other leading spirits of the time, and took an active part in the government and affairs of the Germantown settlement. He was chosen constable in 1691, burgess in 1693, and sheriff 1694–5. He was also active in Friends' Meeting, being for a time overseer; and the members of his family and his descendants for six generations were actively identified with Meeting affairs, although prior to settling in Penn's New Province of Pennsylvania, like many other of the early Germantown families, Jan Lucken's family were Mennonites. About 1705 he bought an estate of 500 acres in what became known as Horsham township, Montgomery County, Pa., and in 1720 he gave 150 acres of this land to his son Peter. He died in 1744, and his wife in 1742. His children were: Elizabeth, Elase (Alice), William, Sarah, John, Mary, Peter, Hannah, Mathias, Abraham and Joseph.

William Lucken, eldest son of Jan and Mary Lucken, was born February 22nd, 1687–8, married, 1710, Elizabeth, daughter of Reynear Tyson. They resided in Upper Dublin township, and William was for a time overseer of Horsham Meeting. He died in 1739 and his widow in 1765, aged 74 years. Their eldest son, William, married, first, 1741, Martha Pennington, daughter of Thomas Pennington, by whom he had four children. She died in 1750 and in 1751 he married her cousin, Elizabeth Pennington, probably the daughter of Daniel Pennington. For this he was severely disciplined by Abington Monthly Meeting, but in 1757 he made due acknowledgment and was restored to membership. By the second marriage there were five sons. He died in 1803, having resided most if not all of his life in Horsham township, on the 100 acre plantation inherited from his father.

Thomas Luckens, fourth son and child of William and Elizabeth (Pennington) Luckens, was born February 20th, 1758, and married 12th mo. 6th, 1782, in Horsham Meeting, Jane Parry. Their son, Parry Lukens, born 7th mo. 9th, 1785, married, in 1806, Mary Moore, of Gwynedd Monthly Meeting. On 7th mo. 1st, 1807, Horsham Meeting took note of "Parry Lukens marrying out of unity"; and on 9th mo. 30th, 1807, he offered his acknowledgment, which the Meeting accepted. Parry and Mary (Moore) Lukens had the following children: Jane, born 8th mo. 23rd, 1807; Henry, born 3rd mo. 24th, 1809; Thomas, born 10th mo. 6th, 1810; Richard and Harriet, born 8th mo. 29th, 1812; Priscilla Ann, born 11th mo. 27th, 1814; and Parry, Jr., born 10th mo. 18th, 1816, married 5th mo. 29th, 1840, Lydia Ann French [862].

Mary Moore, born 1st mo. 7th, 1786, in Lancaster Co., Pa., died in Media, Pa., 1st mo. 20th, 1868, was the daughter of Henry Moore, born 1753, and wife, Priscilla Hill Jackson. He died 1829; she died 1821. Henry Moore was the son of Mordecai Moore, of London Town, Md., who married in 1739 Elizabeth Coleman, daughter of Dr. Joseph Coleman. Mordecai Moore died in Montgomery Co., Pa., July 31st, 1800; he was the second son of Richard Moore, who married in 1709 Margaret Preston, born 1689. Richard Moore died in Philadelphia 1734; he was the son of Dr. Mordecai Moore, who came to Maryland as the family physician of Lord Baltimore, and whose second wife, whom he married in 1704, was Deborah, born in 1682, ninth child of Thomas Lloyd. Margaret Preston was the daughter of Samuel Preston, who was born in Pautuxent, Md., 1665, died in Philadelphia, September 10th, 1743. He was a noted member of the Provincial Council, treasurer of the Provinces, and Mayor of Philadelphia, October, 1711, to October, 1712. He married in Philadelphia, July 6th, 1688, Rachel Lloyd, born in London, Eng., January 20th, 1667, daughter of Thomas and Mary (Jones) Lloyd. Thomas Lloyd, eminent in the colonial history of Pennsylvania, was descended from an ancient family in Wales, who traced their noble lineage back a thousand years. Their great estate, known as "Dolobran," was located in Montgomeryshire. Thomas, born February 17th, 1640, in Wales, died in Philadelphia, Pa., September 10th, 1694, was the third son of Charles, the thirtieth in the line. He became an early convert to Quakerism and an intimate friend of William Penn, suffering for his faith, like many others. He determined to transplant himself and family to the New World and joined the Pennsylvania colony, arriving in Philadelphia in the ship America in 1683, a fellow voyager with Francis Pastorius, the chief founder of Germantown, with whom he formed a pleasant intimacy, they conversing in Latin. Being a man of high character and superior attainments, Thomas Lloyd was selected by Penn in 1684 as the first president of the Provincial Council, the colonial legislative body, in which he served a number of years. He was also named by Penn in 1687, with four others, as Deputy Governor. In addition, he held for some time the offices of Commissioner of Property, to sign land warrants; Keeper of the Great Seal of the Colony, which was used to certify public documents and commissions; and Master of the Rolls, or registrar of laws and public proceedings. His responsibilities and duties were at times burdensome, but he faithfully sought to serve the Proprietor and the people for nine years. He took a paternal interest in the welfare of the people, looking after their spiritual as well as material affairs. He was very influential with the Quakers and many tributes were paid to his memory. He had ten children by his first wife, Mary Jones, whom he married in Shropshire Meeting, London, September 9th, 1665. Three of the daughters, namely, Rachel, Hannah, and Mary, were exceptionally bright, becoming noted in the family history of the colony. To these Francis Pastorius dedicated a little volume of poems, commemorative of their voyage together across the great sea.

Captain Thomas Hand Marston was numbered among that great army of patriotic and heroic boys who served the Union cause during the Civil War. At the age of seventeen, August 17th, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Company F, 82nd Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, being mustered out as captain, four years later. His various promotions were all marks of recognition of bravery. Twice, at Chancellorsville and Cold Harbor, Va., he seized the flag and rallied his comrades in critical situations. At Cold Harbor, though only a sergeant, young Marston was in command of his company at the close of that terrible fight. His regiment participated gallantly in a score of leading battles, notably Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Malvern, Second Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Mine Run, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Winchester and Cedar Creek. Captain Marston was wounded at Chancellorsville and for many years has suffered from illness contracted in the Appomattox campaign.

William Hall Nixon was descended from the famous Rittenhouse family of Pennsylvania colonial days. He inherited brilliant qualities of mind and character, and had his career not been terminated in early life, through physical weakness, he would have made an honored place for himself in the professional world. As a bright and ambitious lad he attracted the attention of Sharp & Alleman, long established attorneys of Philadelphia. He entered their office about 1875 and studied law, attending lectures in the Law Department of the Pennsylvania University. He graduated in June, 1880, and was admitted to the bar the same month. He remained with his appreciative preceptors for several years, until failing health impelled him to locate at Santa Barbara, Cal. Here he practiced law and also entered the newspaper arena, as editor of one of the journals of that city. He was popular and influential and his death was widely regretted.

"Mr. Thomas L. Ogden, President of the Delaware River Railroad, died at his residence, Ogden Heights, near Woodbury, July 30th, in the 46th year of his age. The cause of his death was internal hemorrhage. His funeral on Monday last was largely attended. Interment at Eglington Cemetery. Mr. Ogden was widely known as President of the Delaware River Railroad Company and the owner of large wood and stone interests. Through the ownership of a large amount of bonds of a defaulting contractor of the road he became its involuntary owner, being its largest creditor and buying it at the Receiver's sale. Upon the death of Obadiah Crew French the Temple, Oklahoma, Tribune issued the following tribute:

"The late Colonel Obadiah C. French, of this city, one of the founders of the town, has led an eventful life in several states, having been an active leader in whatever community he had located as a citizen. He was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, of Quaker parentage, and educated himself at schools under charge of that society. He engaged in farming until August, 1862, when he enlisted in the 104th Ohio Volunteer Infantry and served with that regiment for fifteen months, when he was transferred to Battery E, 1st Tennessee Light Artillery, and served two years, a portion of which time he was private secretary to Andrew Johnson, while military governor of Tennessee. He went to Natchez, Miss., in 1868, in the civil service of the government, and later engaged in contracting. For some time he was connected with the Mississippi Central Railroad—afterward made a part of the Illinois Central system. He was elected to the legislature in 1870 and again in 1872 and 1874. He was a member of the National Republican Executive Committee from 1872 to 1876, and a delegate to the convention in 1872 when General Grant received his second nomination for the presidency. He served as secretary of the State Republican Committee for two years and chairman for two years. He was appointed United States Centennial Commissioner from Mississippi, and served as chairman of the committee on tariff and transportation from the organization to the close of the same. He moved to Colorado in 1879 and engaged in farming and stock raising, when soon after he was made chief enrolling clerk of the Colorado senate. [World's Fair Commissioner from Colorado, 1893.] In 1900 Mr. French came to Oklahoma and was appointed U. S. Court Commissioner at Cherokee, which position he held for one year. He served as secretary of the Oklahoma Live Stock Commission under the administration of Governor Jenkins and a portion of the term of Governor Ferguson. In 1902 the Colonel located in this county and was one of three that opened the site upon which to-day stands one of the best little cities in the State. In the fall of the same year his friends insisted that he make the race for the State senate against T. P. Gore, the present United States senator from this State, and although defeated in this race, he made a strong fight. He has been a prominent figure in Comanche County politics since the organization of the county, and in his death our city loses one of its most enterprising and best citizens."

The 104th Ohio Regiment was mustered in August 30th, 1862, for three years. During the ensuing fifteen months it served in Kentucky and east Tennessee enduring many hardships in the mountainous country and coöperating with the Unionists of that section. The 1st Tennessee Light Artillery was one of the organizations largely officered by experienced men in the northern army. Sergeant French was thus transferred and commissioned lieutenant in Battery E in October, 1863. In the summer of 1864 he was assigned to the staff of General Alvan C. Gillem and served most acceptably. He was specially mentioned in official reports for gallant and efficient conduct in the engagements at Bull's Gap and Henderson, Tenn., in September, 1864.

} in Luho, China.

Dr. George De Vol and his wife Dr. Mary Isabella (French) De Vol, are in charge of the Friends' hospital at Luh Hoh, China, which is one of the missionary stations under the care of the Ohio Yearly Meeting. The following interesting excerpt is from a letter received by the author from Dr. Mary I. F. De Vol, dated June 7th, 1912, Luho via Nanking, China:

"Dr. Lucy A. Gaynor opened our medical work at Luho about fourteen years ago by making itinerating trips, once or more a month. In the fall and winter of 1898-99 I spent some months here studying the language and having a dispensary two or three times a week. In 1901 Dr. De Vol and myself were appointed to Luho. For some years we had a dispensary in a Chinese building and commenced our hospital work in a very crudely equipped Chinese house. In 1907 we opened a foreign hospital and at present have forty beds. Two wards for men and one for women and a small isolation ward. But our accommodations have been altogether too small of late. Luho is a walled city of some 30,000 inhabitants and patients come from a large district as there is no other foreign hospital on this side of the Yangtse river within forty miles. In the early days there were many rumors given out about us, such as that we took out hearts and eyes and stole children, but the people are friendly now and it is no longer a matter of inducing people to come but how to care for all who do come. During the month of May there were over 1100 dispensary patients and over 100 hospital patients. We regard the hospital work as the more satisfactory, both from a medical and evangelistic standpoint. We have a small chapel, seating about ninety, in the hospital building, and in this the patients congregate before the dispensary hours and an evangelist and Bible woman have a good opportunity to give them Christian instruction. A good deal of Christian literature is distributed from the dispensary. We have Christian helpers who assist in following up the work in the homes. It is a very great joy to see the change that comes to some of these who have been in such great spiritual darkness. We have been doing Red Cross work during the past months [in connection with the Revolution of 1911-12] and in December nearly 40 wounded soldiers were brought in at one time. There are still some 500 or 600 soldiers in the city. We also have many Famine Refugees."

WILLIAM FRENCH BRICK.

William French Brick, third son and child of Joseph Inskeep [699] and Rebecca (Clement) Brick, was born at the old family homestead, near Marlton, Burlington County, N. J. He was educated at Friends' private schools at Cropwell, N. J., and London Grove, Chester County, Pa. Acquiring considerable knowledge of the grocery and general store business with their father at home, William and his brother Edgar [1297] set up for themselves in the same line at New Egypt, in the upper part of Burlington County, in 1858, and the following year more extensively at Crosswicks, N. J. In 1865 William removed to Wilmington, Delaware, where he established, at 113 Market St., a large wholesale grocery and fruit trade, prospering greatly and becoming one of the leading merchants of a thriving community. Salt importation from Liverpool was a notable specialty, this branch of the business requiring the building of several large warehouses along the Christiana River. During the next twenty years Mr. Brick made an enviable reputation among the successful business men of Wilmington, who were always ready to testify to his energy, judgment and probity. The building which Mr. Brick purchased for the purpose of establishing his business in Wilmington had been a historic landmark in that locality for many years and was known as the "Indian King" hotel, Shipley street below Second and extending to Market street. This was a famous hostelry and "relay house" in the stage coach and mail post days before railroads and was a regular stopping place for the "Congressional Express," which conveyed the mail on horseback between New York and Washington. Mr. Brick's retirement from commercial life in 1883 was much regretted. In that year he became a resident of West Philadelphia, and thereafter devoted enthusiastic interest to agricultural affairs in New Jersey. Later he made his residence at 2045 Walnut street, Philadelphia; and in 1906, after a brief illness, an active manhood life of half a century closed.

Mr. Brick inherited the splendid qualities of an honorable ancestry, and was always faithful to the highest ideals and principles in personal, social, business and political life. He was a Republican of staunch views, which he vigorously maintained while a resident of a border State. He sought to impress the wisdom of strict adherence to the moral law and frequently admonished associates, and especially business juniors, that it was their bounden duty to be honest and just in all their dealings. His own motto was: "Except ye pay the uttermost farthing ye cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven." William French Brick and his wife, Anna Brick Coles, are both sixth in descent from Thomas French and wife, Jane Atkins.

CLAYTON FRENCH SHOEMAKER.

Clayton French Shoemaker, third son of Edwin and Mary I. (French) Shoemaker [731], is a native of Gloucester County, N. J., being born in the same place and same house in which his father had been born, about one and a half miles from Swedesboro, N. J. He spent his early years on a farm, attending school in winter, and doing his share of the usual farm work in summer. At thirteen years of age he was sent to Philadelphia, where for three years his education was advanced. He then entered the employ of French, Richards & Co., serving that firm acceptably for twenty years and acquiring a thorough knowledge of the wholesale drug business. At the close of the year 1884 he left their employ; and on January 1st, 1885, associating himself with James C. Roller, formed the firm of Roller & Shoemaker, wholesale druggists, succeeding to the business of Barrick, Roller & Co., 20 N. Fifth street, Philadelphia. On January 1st, 1888, Mr. Miers Busch was admitted as a general partner, without any change in the firm name, and the business was moved to a much more commodious and prominent location, No. 602 Arch street, the firm by this time having become a prominent factor in drug circles. Mr. James C. Roller retired from the firm on April 13th, 1892, and the two remaining partners continued the business under the name of Shoemaker & Busch, removing to their present location, 511-15 Arch street, January 1st, 1900.

During an active and successful career, Mr. Shoemaker has been officially connected with a number of trade and mercantile organizations. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce (formerly Trades League), Philadelphia Drug Exchange and Philadelphia Credit Men's Association, having been president of the last two organizations, and of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association. For a number of years he has been an influential member of the Presbyterian Church and a generous contributor to many charitable institutions. Just and generous and of genial personality, Mr. Shoemaker is a model employer, taking a kindly and appreciative interest in those who have faithfully contributed to his prosperity.

Mr. Shoemaker and his family in the summer of 1910 sustained a severe loss in the sudden and almost tragic death of their elder daughter, Jane Cushing Shoemaker. While bathing in a heavy surf at Beach Haven, N. J., where she had been spending a vacation with friends, Miss Shoemaker was attacked by heart failure, and every medical effort in her behalf proved futile. She was a young woman of superior talent and accomplishments; a graduate of the Philadelphia High School, from which she received a scholarship for tuition at Bryn Mawr College, where she took the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1905; and for the next two years she devoted serious attention to the furtherance of her studies in music and languages. In 1907 she began preparation for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, by taking non-resident work at Bryn Mawr, on the standing of which she was given a resident fellowship in Economics, and received the degree of Master of Arts in 1910; appointed Fellow for the year 1910-11. It was her intention to spend some time in Vienna in further pursuance of her studies in connection with preparation for the Doctor's degree, but death untimely closed her career. In appreciation of her worth, and as an expression of their sorrow at her death, and of the esteem in which she was held by the president and faculty of Bryn Mawr College, a memorial service was held at the college in her honor. Faculty and fellow-students, through the columns of the college periodicals, fully expressed in terms most eulogistic their deep regard for her as student and classmate. From these we quote:

"Everything human claimed her interest, and all knowledge was her province. She had musical ability beyond the average, a fine critical appreciation of the best in art and literature, a passionate interest in social conditions and in the welfare of her city, a ready sympathy for her friends, and what is perhaps the most difficult art of life—a leisure to cultivate them all."

"She was always the jolliest, most care-free of companions, with a quick adaptability to all sorts of people, and a ready understanding of another's point of view."

EMMOR DAVIS FRENCH.

Emmor Davis French, eldest son and child of Samuel Harrison [732] and Angelina (Dunseth) French, was educated in private schools of Philadelphia and then entered the employ of his father's firm, French, Richards & Co., Philadelphia, where he remained until about 1870, at which time he embarked in a business enterprise on his own account, and later, with his brother, William A. French [1405], established the business of paint manufacturing and builders' supplies at Third, Vine and Main Streets, Camden, N. J., under the firm name of E. D. & W. A. French. He retired from this firm about 1878 to establish a transportation line from the Camden and Philadelphia ferries to East Camden and to develop land in that section. He was interested in all plans for the development of Camden and was active in its business and public affairs, including the Delaware River tunnel project. During 1875 and 1876 he was a member of the Camden City Council, and later was urged to accept a nomination for mayor, but declined. Owing to ill health, he removed to Port Republic, N. J., where he lived for a number of years, and later in Atlantic City, returning finally to Camden where he remained until his decease. Mr. French was fond of outdoor life and was noted for his good horsemanship. In 1866 he became an active member of the First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, and entered upon its non-active list in 1874. This Troop was organized in 1774, and has taken part in every war, and prominently participated in almost all public occasions in Philadelphia during the past one hundred and thirty-eight years. December 31st, 1872, Mr. French was commissioned captain, Battery B, Artillery, New Jersey National Guard, and retired June 22nd, 1876. He was a man of generous impulses and high ideals, and considered no sacrifice too great to be made in assisting those appealing to him for aid. Many of the old residents of Camden have most kindly recollections of him.

HOWARD BARCLAY FRENCH.

Howard Barclay French, third son and child of Samuel Harrison [732] and Angelina (Dunseth) French, in 1852, when four years of age, accompanied his parents to Philadelphia from Salem, O., where his father was temporarily engaged in business. After receiving an academic education at Friends' schools, he served three years and six months apprenticeship in the retail drug store of William B. Webb, during which time he attended the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, graduating from same in 1871. A month later he entered the employ of his father's firm, French, Richards & Co., wholesale druggists and paint manufacturers, established in 1844, and in July, 1872, was transferred to their manufacturing department. While thus engaged he determined upon a professional career, and in 1879 entered Jefferson Medical College, where he pursued the regular course of study, in addition to the duties in the office of the above mentioned firm ; but the severe strain on his health and increased business responsibilities compelled him to abandon medical ambitions. It was then decided to separate the manufacturing department of the business from the drug department ; and in January, 1883, Howard B., with his brother William A., joined with their father, Samuel H. French, and John L. Longstreth, in forming the firm of Samuel H. French & Co., which succeeded the manufacturing branch of the old firm, French, Richards & Co. In 1886 the death of William A. French occurred, and in 1895 the death of Samuel H. French; and upon the retirement of John L. Longstreth in 1901, Mr. French became the sole proprietor of the business, retaining the firm name of Samuel H. French & Co.

For twenty-five years he has been chairman of the Executive Committee of the Philadelphia Paint Manufacturers' Club, and was president of the National Paint, Oil and Varnish Association. He is treasurer of the Central Committee of the Paint and Varnish Manufacturers' Associations of the United States, and treasurer and director of the Paint Trade Mutual Fire Insurance Co. At its organization in 1890 he became a director of The Equitable Trust Company of Philadelphia, and in 1902 was elected to the presidency. For many years he has served as one of the managers and trustees of the Philadelphia Southern Home for Destitute Children, the oldest institution of the kind in Pennsylvania; also as a manager of the Home Missionary Society. By appointment of the governor, he is a member of the Pennsylvania State Board of Charities and treasurer of same, devoting much time and attention to the discharge of the duties of that important trust. For forty years he has been trustee and for the past twelve years president of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, the oldest and largest institution of the kind in the world.

Mr. French has been conspicuous and active in many leading organizations of a commercial, patriotic and social character. Since its organization in 1890, he has been a director of the Trades League of Philadelphia (now Chamber of Commerce) and is first vice-president, and has served as chairman of many of its most important committees. Largely, if not entirely, through his instrumentality as chairman of one of the committees of that organization, the city of Philadelphia established a high pressure water system for fire service, and the recreation piers along Delaware Avenue. He was appointed by Governor Hastings a delegate to the Convention held in Tampa, Florida, in 1896, to devise methods for the proper defence of the Gulf and South Atlantic harbors of the United States, and also appointed by the governor a member of the Executive Committee of the Tennessee Centennial Commission of Philadelphia. He was secretary of the Union Committee on

LAKE AT "VALDERBROOK," SUMMER RESIDENCE OF HOWARD B. FRENCH, NEAR RADNOR, PA.

Transportation, Manufacturing and Commercial Interests of Philadelphia, which did valuable work for the improvement of the transportation facilities of that city. Served as a member of the Advisory Board of the Commercial Museums, now a member of its Board of Trustees; former director of the Manufacturers' Club and of the Franklin Institute. He was chairman of a joint committee of the commercial organizations of Philadelphia, and also of the sub-committee, on the selection of a new site for the United States Mint, 1893-94, and it was undoubtedly largely through the energetic action of this committee that the Mint was retained in Philadelphia. For thirty-nine years Mr. French has been a member of the Union League, being one of the board of directors for several years, and now second vice-president. He has always been active in upholding the highest political standard. Chairman of the Citizens' Committee of Ninety-five for Good City Government, also a member of the Business Men's Republican League of 1895. During the administration of Mayor Warwick, 1895-1899, Mr. French served as a member of the Civil Service Commission of the city, examining upwards of two thousand applicants, a large percentage of whom were found deficient in the requirements of the places in the public service which they sought. In the national contest of 1896 he was vice-chairman of the McKinley and Hobart Business Men's National Campaign Committee, and after the successful termination of the campaign the President-elect and chairman Mark Hanna made grateful acknowledgment, both in person and by letter, of the effective services rendered. In 1898 he was president of the National Republican League of Business Men; and in 1900, at the time of the holding of the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia, he was chairman and member of several committees of prominent citizens who superintended arrangements for the convention and extended special courtesies to the delegates and leading men present from different parts of the country. During the Founders' Week celebration, October 4th-10th, 1908, commemorating the 225th anniversary of the founding of the city of Philadelphia, Mr. French as member of different committees was active in a representative capacity in connection with the various industrial, patriotic and social features of that occasion. Member of a special committee on Transportation and Railroad Terminals (1910-11), co-operating with the Mayor in an effort to provide ample facilities for the enlargement of trade and the adjustment of various interests, and the completion of the comprehensive plans for the improvement of the city. Member of the Committee of the Organizing Commission for the Twelfth Congress of the Permanent International Association of Navigation Congresses; member of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association. He was one of the originators and president of the New Jersey Society of Pennsylvania, organized in 1907, and now a director; member of the Ohio Society of Philadelphia, and was vice-president of same; director of the Bath Portland Cement Company; member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, Merion Cricket Club, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Colonial Society, the Philadelphia Skating Club and Humane Society, and the Pen and Pencil Club of Philadelphia.

Mr. French sat in the Republican National Convention, in June, 1912, as a delegate from the Second Congressional District, Philadelphia, taking a conspicuous part in the deliberations. Later he was largely instrumental in assisting to organize the Taft & Sherman Business Men's National Campaign Committee, being chosen its chairman, with Honorable John Wanamaker, Alba B. Johnson, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works, and Isaac H. Clothier, of Strawbridge & Clothier, as vice-chairmen. By appointment of Governor Tener, he was a delegate, representing Pennsylvania, at the Fifth Annual Convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Convention, held in New London, Conn., September 4th-6th, 1912; he also represented the Commercial Museum and Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia at this meeting. As chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. French rendered efficient service in connection with the brilliant Historical Pageant, illustrating notable events in the history of Philadelphia, held in Fairmount Park, in the autumn of 1912.

Mr. French has always taken deep interest in the landed affairs and early history of New Jersey, and is a member of the Council of Proprietors which holds the right of proprietorship in unlocated lands. This right of proprietorship has succeeded from one generation to another for over two hundred and thirty years.

On April 1st, 1908, "Alderbrook," the summer home of Mr. French, located in Upper Merion township, Montgomery County, Penna., and overlooking the picturesque and historic Chester Valley, was totally destroyed by fire. Accompanying illustration shows "Alderbrook" rebuilt—colonial in design, occupying the site of the burned homestead. During the winter season, Mr. French occupies his residence at 2021 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.

COFFIN COLKET.

The ancestral roots of two noted New England colonial families extended through centuries before the Reformation. One was Colcord, pronounced and finally spelled Colket, the other Coffyn, now known as Coffin. Their descendants are numerous in England, the United States and other parts of the world. The direct ancestors of Coffin Colket, were Tristram Coffin, born in England, 1609, died in America, 1681; and Edward Colcord, born in England, 1616, died in America, 1685. The former came to New England about 1640 and settled in Nantucket, Mass.; the latter came to what is now New Hampshire, about 1630. Both were men of means, enterprise and influence, and became heads of large and prosperous families.

Coffin Colket was the son of Peter and Phoebe (Hamilton) Colket (Colcord). He was born at Epping, New Hampshire, October 15th, 1809, and died in Philadelphia, April 5th, 1883. At an early age he left his New England home and came to Pennsylvania. This was the period when the pioneer American railroad projects were first undertaken. One of these was the Baltimore & Ohio, on the first section of which he constructed a number of bridges. This was in 1829. His next work was on the New Castle (Del.) and Frenchtown Railroad in 1831-32, and following this he had large contracts on the Philadelphia and Columbia Railroad, the initial branch of the great Pennsylvania system. He built the Philadelphia, Germantown & Norristown Railroad, in 1833-34, a corporation with which he was associated during the remainder of his life, at the time of his death being its president, at which time he was also the president of the Chestnut and Walnut streets passenger railway and several other companies. For over forty years he was actively engaged in contracts and corporation management. He was interested in construction work on the Philadelphia & Trenton Railroad, the Rensselaer & Saratoga Railroad, the Troy & Champlain Canal, freight lines on Washington Avenue and Willow Street, Philadelphia, the New Jersey Central, Blossburg & Corning (N. Y.), and Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroads. He was at different times interested in the management of over thirty-eight corporations, mostly transportation companies. Until past three score and ten years he gave personal attention to his many enterprises, the active outdoor life he had led enabling him to carry on great undertakings with ease and pleasure. The completion and opening of a new line of transportation which he had built always gave him the greatest satisfaction, and he was justly proud of his remarkable record. Among local enterprises in which he took great interest and with which he was long connected, was the Merchants' Exchange, Third and Dock Streets, Philadelphia.

Mr. Colket married March 21st, 1839, Mary Pennypacker Walker, born in Chester County, Pa., September 3rd, 1819, died November 15th, 1889, in Philadelphia. She was a descendant of Lewis Walker, a colonial pioneer of Chester Valley, and was the daughter of William and Sarah (Pennypacker) Walker, who celebrated their golden wedding in 1867, surrounded by many happy descendants.

CHARLES STANLEY FRENCH.

Charles Stanley French, sixth child and fifth son of Charles Barclay [733] and Sarah Louisa (Langcake) French, spent his boyhood days with his parents on the "White Mansion" farm, located on the White Horse turnpike and Gloucester Road, now part of Collingswood, and on the "Osler" farm, near Rowandtown (now Westmont), both in Camden County, New Jersey; and after receiving a private and public school education, he entered the employ, in 1874, of the drug department of his uncle's firm, French, Richards & Co., at Tenth and Market Streets, Philadelphia. Here he received a thorough training in the many details of the drug business; and having proved himself well qualified for added responsibility, was admitted to a partnership in the firm in 1888. In 1891, following the dissolution of French, Richards & Co., he became connected—and is at this time (1912) so connected—with Samuel H. French & Co., Fourth and Callowhill Streets, Philadelphia, the members of which firm had in 1883 separated from French, Richards & Co., and became their successors in the manufacturing of paints and building materials; and he is in active management of their large and prosperous business. In 1890 he was made director of the Mercantile Building and Loan Association of Philadelphia, and since 1900 has been president of same; member of the board of directors of the Philadelphia Credit Men's Association, also member of the board of trustees of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy; treasurer of the New Jersey Society of Pennsylvania; member of the Union League and Historical Society of Pennsylvania; vestryman and treasurer of the Protestant Episcopal Memorial Church of the Advocate. Mr. French is also a life member of the Mercantile Beneficial Association of Philadelphia, a benevolent organization instituted in 1842, incorporated in 1844, for the "purpose of alleviating the condition of such of its indigent members as may be suffering from sickness or want of employment, or other causes, and for the promotion of the common welfare of the members." In the seventy years of its existence this association has thus distributed large sums of money. Its present membership numbers something over eleven hundred, including many of the most prominent business men in Philadelphia. He is a member of the executive committee of the Philadelphia Skating Club and Humane Society, organized 1850 and incorporated 1861. This unique society has had a most interesting history. It was organized for the purpose of "instruction and improvement in the art of skating, the cultivation of a friendly feeling in all who participate in the amusement, and the efficient use of proper apparatus for the rescue of persons breaking through the ice." In those days skating was chiefly confined to the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, accidents were numerous and often fatal, and the members of the club were required to carry the simple and effective device of a reel, about five inches long, made of hard wood, wound with a cord about fifty or sixty feet in length, and ending in a noose which the rescuer would fasten to his wrist, then throw the reel to the person in the water, "who having gotten hold of the cord, was then gently pulled out upon the firm ice." Many lives were saved in this way, and the club became recognized as a most worthy and useful organization. It was also required that each member, at all times when skating, wear on the left lapel of his coat a small silver skate, about an inch and a quarter long. And the carrying of the cord and reel, and the wearing of the little silver skate badge, are among the requirements of the membership at the present day. Every season conspicuous service has been rendered, and it is estimated that some nine hundred lives have been saved from drowning, the sick attended and the wounded treated. A singular fact recorded in this connection is that no instance is recalled of any of those saved from drowning ever making a contribution to the club or even returning to express appreciation of the service so humanely rendered.

Jesse Banks, born March 15th, 1801, in Redding, Conn., married January 3rd, 1822, Sally Stowe, born March 4th, 1805, in Redding, Conn. Their son, George W. Banks, after receiving an academic education, learned the jewelry business in Bridgeport, Conn., and in the fall of 1859 removed to Philadelphia, associating himself with J. E. Caldwell & Company, one of the largest and most influential jewelry houses in that city. In 1865 he was admitted to a partnership in the firm, which association was continued until the close of the year 1877. In March, 1878, Mr. Banks with Joseph T. Bailey, of Bailey & Company, and Samuel Biddle, of Robbins, Clark & Biddle, united in forming the firm of Bailey, Banks & Biddle, with Eli W. Bailey and Clayton French [735] as special partners; and this firm soon became the largest and most prosperous jewelry house in Philadelphia. This partnership was continued until March, 1894, at which time, owing to the impaired health of Mr. Banks, the firm was incorporated; and although retired from active business, he has retained his interest in the company as preferred stockholder and director. Mr. Banks has always been zealously interested in the advancement and prosperity of Philadelphia, and has taken active interest in many movements, both political and otherwise, to advance the interest of the city of his adoption. In 1892, he was very active in the work of the Russian Relief Committee, of which he was a member by appointment of Mayor Stuart; and it was largely through his efforts that such a material success was attained. He has been a member of the Union League since April 22nd, 1872, and is connected with numerous other organizations, both social and commercial.

HARRY BANKS FRENCH.

Harry Banks French [1430] sixth child and second son of Clayton and Catharine Ann (Hansell) French is a native of Philadelphia, where he received his preliminary education and at a military academy in New Haven, Conn. He entered the class of 1877 at the University of Pennsylvania, but at the close of his sophomore year, in 1879, left to enter Harvard. Two years later, receiving a certificate, he retired from college to enter the business arena, taking an important place with the house of French, Richards & Co., where he remained until the dissolution of the firm, in 1891, having been a partner for several years. The relations between the members of this firm and their employees were always of the most pleasant character, and when it was learned that the business was about to be closed, the heads of departments, salesmen and clerks united in a signed testimonial, which they presented to Harry B. French, expressive of their cordial appreciation of the courtesy always extended them and their hearty good wishes for his future business career. This testimonial read as follows:

PHILADELPHIA, December 15, 1890.

MR. H. B. FRENCH,

Dear Sir: Only a few short months since we had occasion to sympathize with you in the loss of your dear father, and when attending the funeral ceremonies we mourned the loss of an old and esteemed employer.

After his death, with all due respect, we recognized you as the leader and head of the house of French, Richards & Co., but, while it is fortunately not through death, we are now further pained to learn that our relations with you have been so soon and unexpectedly severed.

We are not unmindful, but greatly appreciate the efforts you made to continue the business, not only in your own interest, but also for the benefit of the employees.

We thank you and shall ever honor and respect you, and, with our best wishes for the future welfare and prosperity of you and yours, we are

Mr. French responded to these expressions of kindly feeling and good will on the part of the employees in appreciative and appropriate terms.

In 1891, Mr. French became a member of the newly organized firm of Smith, Kline & French Co., being elected vice-president. Mr. Smith died in 1903, Mr. Kline in 1909, and January 1st, 1910, Mr. French was elected president of the company. As wholesale druggists and drug manufacturers this company has greatly prospered, the increase in its business from year to year being more than gratifying.

For many years Mr. French has been deeply interested in public affairs, zealously uniting with those unselfishly seeking to promote needful reforms in local government. In 1899 he was elected to the Board of Managers of the Philadelphia Municipal League, and in 1901 served as its president. The object of this organization was to secure the influence and efforts of all good citizens on behalf of lasting municipal reform, clean politics and honest government. Its activities extended over a wide field and much good was accomplished in the direction desired. Mr. French was chairman of a citizen's committee, 1899-1901, which sought to secure the abolition of the Philadelphia Public Buildings Commission, which had existed for more than thirty years.

At the February election in 1901 Mr. French was the Municipal League candidate for Receiver of Taxes; he was also twice a Reform candidate for Select Council, but in each case his special purpose was to maintain the cause of good government, with no desire to hold public office. He has been identified with many movements designed to promote the public welfare and has shown practical sympathy with many charitable and religious objects. He is a member of the National Municipal League, for a time serving on its Executive Committee. He is much interested in the benevolent objects of the National Civic Federation, especially of the Welfare Department; also a member of the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. He holds membership in the Art, Racquet, Church, Radnor Hunt and Merion Cricket Clubs. For twenty-five years he has been a conspicuous and influential figure in the business, political and social world in Philadelphia, faithful in the performance of every duty assigned him, steadfastly adherent to the high standards of an honored ancestry. As employee and employer, his rule has been to deal justly with every one, while his personal relationship with many prominent men has been notable.

In 1893-4, with the grateful co-operation of the vestry of the parish, Mr. French erected the beautiful Protestant Episcopal Memorial Church of the Good Shepherd, at Rosemont, Pa., in loving memory of his deceased wife, Augusta (Graham) French. The church is a large and handsome stone structure of Norman architecture, and has near the chancel a memorial tablet bearing the inscription: "This Church was erected to the Glory of God and in Sacred Memory of Augusta Graham French. Born Sept. 4, 1857. Died Mar. 27, 1892. By her husband, Harry B. French, Anno Domini Mdcccxciii. Amor Vincit." The pews of the church are forever free, a condition required by the broad-minded donor. It was dedicated on the first Sunday after Trinity, May 27th, 1894, by the late Bishop Ozi W. Whittaker, assisted by the rector, Rev. Arthur B. Conger.

GEORGE H. EARLE, JR.

George H. Earle, Jr., is ninth in line of descent from Ralph Earle, who settled in Rhode Island, New England, in 1638; and possesses a notable American ancestry on both the paternal and maternal side. His grandfather, Thomas Earle, who settled in Philadelphia in 1817, was a lawyer, philanthropist and abolitionist. He was a member of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention of 1837, and was always an earnest advocate of popular rights and a firm believer in the principles of human brotherhood. He said: "My Democracy is that which was advocated by Thomas Jefferson; my religion that of the New Testament." He was candidate for Vice-President of the Liberty party, with James G. Birney, in 1840. Thomas Earle was born in Leicester, Mass., 4th mo. 21st, 1796, died in Philadelphia 7th mo. 14th, 1849, married in 1820 Mary, daughter of Uriah and Phebe (Folger) Hussey, Nantucket, Mass. Their first son, George Hussey Earle, born 12th mo. 8th, 1823, in Philadelphia, died June 18th, 1907, in Philadelphia, married April 5th, 1849, Ellen Frances Van Leer, daughter of Isaac W. and Phebe A. (Speekman) Van Leer, of Downingtown, Pa. In 1849 George H. Earle began the practice of law in his father's office, and succeeded him the same year. In 1862 he took into partnership his brother-in-law, Richard P. White, forming the firm of Earle & White.

George H. Earle, Jr., fourth child and only son of George Hussey and Ellen Frances (Van Leer) Earle, after receiving an academic education, was specially tutored for Harvard College, which he entered in 1875. Pursuing his studies with diligence and devotion he lost his health and was compelled to retire from the institution within two years. After the restoration of his health he commenced a course of legal studies, being admitted to the bar in 1878, and at once entered upon practice with his father's firm, Earle & White. On April 16th, 1886, he was appointed solicitor of the Pennsylvania Warehousing & Safe Deposit Company, his service proving of such value that on May 14th, 1889, he was made vice-president, and May 1st, 1890, was elected president. In 1890 he became a director of the Guarantee Trust & Safe Deposit Company, and on April 21st of the same year was elected vice-president, from which position he resigned at the close of 1892, taking charge of the Finance Company of Pennsylvania, as president, December 14th. Through his instrumentality the company effected a very profitable arrangement with the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company as its commercial coal sales agent, which existed for twelve years. He maintained active connection with the law firm of Earle & White until about this period, when increasing financial responsibilities required all his time. January 10th, 1896, he became director and president of the Tradesmen's National Bank, and in like capacity took charge of the Market Street National Bank, January 20th, 1899, renewed prosperity in both cases marking his service. In January, 1910, he resigned from the presidency of these institutions, becoming first vice-president in each case.

In December, 1897, the Chestnut Street National Bank and its allied concern, the Chestnut Street Trust & Saving Fund Company, collapsed, the joint failure involving the control of the Philadelphia Record, a prominent newspaper. At the special solicitation of leading interests affected, Mr. Earle was appointed receiver of the bank, and as one of the assignees of the Trust Company. The work of settlement involved great labor covering a period of several years and special direction of the management of the Philadelphia Record, the most valuable asset. The trust was discharged with such ability and fidelity that all depositors of the Chestnut Street National Bank were paid in full with interest, and the depositors of the Chestnut Street Trust & Saving Fund Company received payments up to July, 1911, of 90¾ per cent. of their claims, with the probability of a further distribution.

INTERIOR, MEMORIAL CHURCH OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, ROSEMONT, PA.

Other activities of Mr. Earle have been in connection with the reorganization, as chairman of the committee, of the Choctaw Coal and Railway Company, now the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf Railway Company, part of the Rock Island system; director and president, 1900, of the South Chester Tube Company; member of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company Voting Trust, 1905; member of the Reform "Committee of One Hundred"; member of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange; Pennsylvania Commissioner to the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904; member of the Mayflower Society and Sons of the Revolution; director of the United Railways Investment Company of San Francisco. He was for some months a city director in the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, and served for a time on the board of The Equitable Trust Company of Philadelphia. Upon the failure of the Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia, August 28th, 1906, Mr. Earle, upon petition of large stockholders and of the directors, was made receiver. All was confusion and uncertainty. Only prompt and vigorous measures upon the part of the great financial interests of the city prevented serious general consequences. Stockholders and creditors, large and small, expressed readiness to co-operate to the extent of their ability and as the days went by and cheerful bulletins were given out as to the progress of reorganization plans, the community was fully prepared for the gratifying result. The official statement submitted received practically unanimous approval, and at the end of about sixty days from the date of suspension the Real Estate Trust Company reopened its doors, with Mr. Earle as president..

An incident in Mr. Earle's career of peculiar and suggestive interest was the action of his Harvard classmates of '79 in selecting him for the degree of A.M. which was bestowed, at their request, in 1904. It is the custom for each class thus to honor a member upon the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary.

At the primary election in Philadelphia, September 30th, 1911, Mr. Earle was nominated as the Republican candidate for mayor; and at the election, November 7th, he was defeated by the Independent candidate, Rudolph Blankenburg, who received a majority of something less than five thousand votes.

While driving with his son in Germantown, on Christmas Day, 1865, the horse took fright and ran away, throwing Mr. Saunders out, fracturing his skull and causing instant death. Samuel J. Bloomfield Haines Moore, second son and child of Samuel French [740] and Rachel (Haines) Moore, in early life was engaged in a confidential capacity with Jacob Ridgway, who was a leading and wealthy merchant of Philadelphia, and for a time "a resident merchant and Consul of the United States for the city of Antwerp and the Netherlands," later returning to Philadelphia and residing on Chestnut Street opposite Independence Hall until his death in 1843. Mr. Ridgway bequeathed to his energetic young friend the sum of $10,000, which became the foundation of Mr. Moore's fortune, and when Augustus E. Jessup established the paper manufacturing business in 1843, near Wilmington, Del., he had associated with him his son-in-law, Bloomfield H. Moore, the title of the firm being Jessup & Moore. Later Mr. Jessup's son, Alfred Dupont Jessup, became a member of the firm. The elder Jessup died in 1859, and upon the retirement of Alfred D. Jessup, about 1870, Mr. Moore conducted the business alone until his death, under the old firm name. Meanwhile, he had become very prominent and influential in the business, social and scientific world. He was identified with leading financial institutions, a long time member of the Union League and vice-president of the Franklin Institute. He gave much attention to scientific and economic questions, was a liberal contributor towards philanthropic purposes, and took an active part in sustaining the work of the United States Sanitary Commission during the Civil War. His will, made December 12th, 1871, proved July 8th, 1878, was a characteristic document. It bequeathed his entire estate to his wife, Clara Jessup Moore, for life, directing its later division among his children and their heirs. He expressed absolute trust in his wife's judgment and fidelity, but cautioned her against favoritism, and forbade her "to make or endorse notes or become security for any child who might contract indebtedness." He besought his children to treat each other with kindly consideration and in conclusion said: "Be truthful, just and honest and never do an act of which any honorable person could be ashamed." His estate was appraised by his executors, his wife and son Clarence, to approximate in value $5,500,000. He was the owner of the Rockland, the Augustine and the Chester Paper Mills, and at the time of his death was conducting two large business establishments, one in New York and one in Philadelphia, under the firm name of Jessup & Moore, for the sale of paper.

Clara (Jessup) Moore, wife of Bloomfield H. Moore, was a descendant on both her maternal and paternal side of distinguished English families. She was known throughout wide social and literary circles at home and abroad, being recognized as a social leader. She was possessed of considerable literary ability and produced a number of essays and stories, chiefly dealing with social ethics and questions of the day, which most affect women and their position in public as well as private life. She also wrote a number of poems that were highly spoken of. Throughout her life she took an active interest in charitable and educational work, was a liberal patron of the University of Pennsylvania and the Franklin Institute; and during the Civil War, the Women's Branch of the Sanitary Commission, in Philadelphia, was organized at her suggestion. She supplemented her husband's intelligent and generous interest in art work, presenting in 1882 to the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, Philadelphia, a valuable collection of specimens of industrial art workmanship, including ceramics of various countries, oil paintings, ivory carvings, Roman and Florentine jewelry, Oriental porcelains, etc. The gift was designed as a memorial to her husband, and is known as the Bloomfield H. Moore collection. Some few years ago an investigation by art experts revealed the interesting fact that among the rare objects contained in this collection is a bottle-shaped vase, sixteen inches in height, of the wonderful "Peach Blow" hue. It dates back to about 1600, or the end of the Ming dynasty, and is of considerable value, attracting the admiring attention of art connoisseurs of both worlds, this variety of "Peach Blow" glaze being virtually a "lost art" at this time. A notable incident in Mrs. Moore's career was her liberal patronage of the late John W. Keely, of Philadelphia, known as the mysterious "motor" man. She spent a large sum of money on this curious experiment and her generosity was the occasion of other unprofitable experiences. Her later years were spent entirely in London, where she had established a home which became the center of interest to a large circle of notable and influential people.

Mrs. Moore's father, Augustus Edward Jessup, born about 1797 in New England, died December 17th, 1859, near Wilmington, Delaware, in addition to being a successful pioneer paper manufacturer, always manifested a keen and sympathetic interest in scientific matters. He was a member of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences for over forty years, and left a fund for the express purpose of assisting young, earnest and struggling scientists.

JOHN POTTER—HENRY CARDWELL POTTER.

John Potter was the son of John and Sarah (Todd) Potter, of Coventry, England, who were married in St. Martin's-in-the-Field, London, April 21st, 1781. He was born in 1784 and died December 10th, 1833, in Philadelphia. He was a wealthy and prominent merchant of that city, owning vessels and trading extensively with foreign countries. On March 16th, 1817, he was married in Christ Church, Philadelphia, to Harriet Cardwell, fifth daughter and eighth child of Henry and Jane (Shorrock) Cardwell, of "Old Hall," Mottram-in-Longdendale, Cheshire, England. Henry Cardwell, son of Robert Cardwell, of Hyde, Cheshire, married March 12th, 1774, Jane Shorrock, of Salford, Manchester. Their daughter Harriet was born in Mottram-in-Longdendale, September 13th, 1786, and died in Philadelphia, September 26th, 1863.

Desiring to possess a fitting home for his aristocratic English bride, Mr. Potter purchased of Chandler Price the colonial residence at 260 South Ninth Street, known as the Philadelphia home of Joseph Bonaparte, the exiled brother of Napoleon Bonaparte. This house, a substantial three-story brick structure of quaint French design, was built in the early part of the nineteenth century by Captain John Meany, a retired East Indian trader of ample means, cultivated taste and charitable ways. He imported all the material for his new residence from England. Beautiful mahogany doors, brick, and finer materials of building came hither in ships in such great quantities that after the house was finished there was a large surplus which the Captain generously gave to the poor. He lived sumptuously in this home for some time, but unfortunately his later years were clouded by adversity, and the property passed into the possession of Chandler Price, during which time the house was occupied by "Comte de Survilliers," as Joseph Bonaparte was formally known when he came for refuge to this country, about 1815, following the downfall of the first Emperor of France. Renovations were made, and elaborate decorations of unique French design were added to the artistic beauty of the place, and these have remained to this day, greatly admired by succeeding generations. In the large dining room, some thirty by twenty-five feet, an admirably executed set of colossal mural pictures in black and white from the works of David the celebrated artist of the Napoleonic dynasty, tell the romantic story of Cupid and Psyche. The main rooms of the house are spacious apartments and contain many Bonaparte relics, likewise many rare and costly heirlooms of the Potter and Cardwell families. The severe gray walls of the exterior are relieved by heavy green shutters and a little side portico, the position of which indicates that Captain Meany when building his home intended the entrance to be from gardens extending to Spruce Street. Instead, however, other houses were erected close to it, to complete the square, and this left the main windows and entrance of the house on the side, thus largely hiding from view much of its architectural quaintness. John Potter was also possessed of a country seat on "Green Hill," as the section of Philadelphia, now the vicinity of Girard College, was then known.

John and Harriet (Cardwell) Potter had four children, namely: John Potter, Jr., born December 11th, 1817, died January 11th, 1862, unmarried; Jane Harriet Potter, born November 3rd, 1819, died May 9th, 1886, unmarried; Henry Cardwell Potter, born February 28th, 1822, died March 6th, 1902, married, November 9th, 1853, Amanda Inskeep Moore; Ann Eliza

Potter, born May 28th, 1825, died December 18th, 1853, unmarried. It was at the "Green Hill" home that Henry Cardwell Potter, third child and second son of John and Harriet (Cardwell) Potter, was born. He inherited the historic city residence of his father, living in it practically his entire life. He was exceedingly fond of the old home and always averse to making any changes in its appearance, within or without. For many years he was largely interested in the importation of coffee from Nicaragua, and was for twenty-five years Nicaraguan Consul at Philadelphia, which position he held at the time of his death; also the Vice-Consulship of Costa Rica. Through his influence a considerable number of Nicaraguan boys came to Philadelphia to study at the University of Pennsylvania and he befriended these boys in many ways. It is interesting to note that his grandson, Lorenzo Henry Cardwell Guerrero [3201], is at the present time (1912) Consul General in Philadelphia for the Republic of Nicaragua. Upon the death of Henry Cardwell Potter, in 1902, the historic home, 260 S. Ninth Street, Philadelphia, descended to his daughter, Mrs. Henrietta (Potter) Guerrero James [2479], the present owner and occupant, and she has most faithfully preserved the traditions and relics of the old house.

He was made first sergeant and repeatedly distinguished himself. For his courageous conduct at Drury's Bluff, on the James River, Va., May 15, 1862, he received a Congressional medal of honor. This was a notable engagement between several Federal gunboats and the Confederate shore batteries, which defended Richmond. The ironclad Galena, on which MacKie served, lost thirteen men killed and eleven wounded. The vessel was set on fire and greatly damaged by heavy shot and shell. After the war Sergeant MacKie became much interested in veteran associations. He was chosen Commander of Naval Post No. 400, Grand Army of the Republic, and frequently made public addresses on Memorial Day. His funeral was largely attended by surviving comrades of the army and navy. He was a past commander of Farragut Association No. 1, Naval Veterans.

CHARLES STRICKLAND FRENCH.

Charles Strickland French was the fourth child and third son of William Hazelton [746] and Elizabeth Borton (Atkinson) French. His early education was obtained at private and public schools of Philadelphia, graduating from the high school in 1847. When about eighteen years of age he entered mercantile life with Hacker, Lea & Co., dry goods commission merchants, 32 and 34 Chestnut Street (now 128 and 130), where he spent several years; and later was with Joseph S. Lovering & Co., sugar refiners, 27 Church Alley (now 225); obtaining in these two positions a practical knowledge of business methods. In 1864, with his brother Richard [1477], he engaged in the grocery business; and some three years later, the brothers dissolving partnership, Charles purchased the long established grocery business of C. Thomas at No. 4 Market Street, where for twenty-five years he did a large wholesale and retail business; supplying steamships and vessels with groceries and receiving the patronage of the increasing number of Philadelphia business men who made their homes in New Jersey. This well-known store became one of the landmarks of that wonderful period of river-front prosperity following the Civil War. In 1892, Mr. French moved his business to No. 4 North Water Street, where he continued until the adjoining properties were absorbed by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company in the construction of its subway line, in 1906, when he retired from business.

Charles S. French belonged to the class of old school merchants to whom Philadelphia is indebted for the maintenance of the highest standard of commercial rules of conduct. Throughout a long and busy life he consistently practiced the principles of the Society of Friends, of which he was always a useful member. He was a birthright member of Green Street Monthly Meeting; but in 1835 when his father moved to Seventeenth and Locust Streets, the family became members of Spruce Street Monthly Meeting by transfer of certificate. In 1861, when he took up his residence on Nineteenth Street above Spring Garden, his certificate of membership was transferred to Race Street Monthly Meeting; and in 1867, when establishing his home at 3204 Hamilton Street, he became connected with the West Philadelphia Meeting, Thirty-fifth Street and Lancaster Avenue, a branch of Race Street Monthly Meeting. For over forty years he was a regular attendant of First-day morning meetings, rarely being absent unless away by appointment to attend other Meetings, or visiting relatives out of the city. He served the Monthly Meeting in various capacities, as elder for about twenty-five years, overseer for a number of years, member of various important committees, and an active worker in the First-day school. He took a keen sympathetic interest in many educational and charitable movements, and served for a number of years as director of the Philadelphia City Institute at Eighteenth and Chestnut Streets, established in 1854, largely through the instrumentality of his father, William H. French, who was for many years president. He became deeply interested in local and family history, and rendered valuable and untiring aid in the long and laborious work needful in the compiling of the genealogical records here presented; and it is a source of deep regret to the author that his cousin, friend and co-laborer could not have been permitted to live to see the completion of the work. He enjoyed the esteem and love of a wide circle of relatives and friends to whom his genial personality always appealed. He was ever a devoted and loving husband, father and grandfather, exercising an affectionate interest in the homes and lives of the different members of his family. The tranquil closing of this gentle, earnest, well-spent life, 4th mo. 10th, 1909, so in accord with his oft-expressed wish, seemed as a benediction sought and freely given.

Honorable John Samuel Jessup, second son and third child of Joseph and Mary (Clark) Jessup [763], was born in Harrison township, Gloucester County, N. J. He was educated at the West Jersey Academy, Bridgeton, and Princeton University, graduating from the latter institution in June, 1865. He studied law at the Harvard College Law School and with Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, in Newark, N. J., afterwards United States senator, and was admitted to the bar in 1868, and soon thereafter located in Woodbury, N. J. He practiced his profession in the courts of New Jersey for many years. In 1897 he was appointed by Governor John W. Griggs judge of the courts of Gloucester County, for five years, and reappointed by Governor Franklin Murphy in 1902, serving two terms. This office he filled with great acceptability, showing such keen, discriminating judgment that he became known as a jurist whose decisions were never reversed by a higher court. He retired to private practice in 1902, representing a number of estates, and was solicitor for several townships in the county. He always took an active part in Republican politics, and served nine years as a member of Woodbury City Council, being president of that body for some years; also solicitor of the Board of Freeholders. Judge Jessup was deeply interested in religious affairs, and was for many years an elder and trustee of the Woodbury Presbyterian Church. He was a commissioner from West Jersey Presbytery to the General Assembly at Minneapolis in 1886, and also at Atlantic City in 1910.

Theodore William Richards, fifth child and third son of William Trost and Anna (Matlack) Richards [819], was carefully educated along the lines of his inclination, the study of chemistry. He graduated from Haverford College, Pa., in 1885, and from Harvard University in 1888, being distinguished throughout for proficiency in chemistry, and receiving from the latter institution the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. He continued his studies in Germany, Switzerland, France and England, visiting many of the most eminent chemists and important laboratories in Europe. In 1891 he became instructor at Harvard, the following year he was promoted to membership in the faculty of arts and sciences, and in 1894 he was appointed assistant professor, which position he held for seven years, during which time he made a number of trips abroad in the interest of his work, and was made a member of the International Committee on Atomic Weights. In 1901 he was called to a research professorship in the University of Göttingen, but the prompt offer of a similar position at Harvard caused him to decide to remain in America. And declining many positions that have been tendered him at home and abroad, Professor Richards has remained with Harvard, steadily advancing in the posts of responsibility assigned him, and devoting untiring efforts to the furtherance of scientific research. In 1903 he became chairman of the Division of Chemistry at Harvard, and in 1907 was selected as Visiting Professor to the University of Berlin. In 1905 he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Yale University, in 1908 the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Haverford College, and in 1909 that of Chemical Doctor from Clark University. He is a member of many foreign and American scientific societies.

Edwin John Dewey is of the tenth generation of descendants of Thomas Dewey, pioneer ancestor, who came to Dorchester, Mass., from Kent County, England, about 1630. His father, Andrew Spencer Dewey, was a private in the 55th Regiment, Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and was one of five brothers who served in the Union Army. Andrew was killed at the battle of Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., April 6th, 1862; his four brothers served to the end of the war. His line of descent from Thomas Dewey is as follows: Andrew S. Dewey, son of Alonzo B. Dewey, who was the son of Israel, son of William, who was the son of Simeon, son of William, the son of Josiah, who was the son of Josiah, second son of Thomas Dewey. The mother of Edwin J. Dewey married, second, Major John W. Swinker, and in 1868 the family located in Haddonfield, N. J., where young Dewey received his education in private and public schools. In 1876, Edwin J. Dewey entered the employ of one of the leading printing houses of Philadelphia and subsequently he was connected with other prominent houses in the same line of business in that city. In 1885, with Elmer E. Eakins, he founded the printing house of Dewey & Eakins, 1004 Arch Street, Philadelphia. A distinguished member of the Dewey family is Admiral George Dewey of the U. S. Navy, whose ships destroyed the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay, May, 1898. Admiral Dewey's line of descent from the pioneer Thomas Dewey is as follows: He is the son of Dr. Julius Y. Dewey, who was the son of Simeon, the son of William, who was the son of Simeon, the son of William, who was the son of Josiah, son of Josiah, the second son of Thomas.

Upon the death of Captain John Bruce Crozier Andersen, in 1896, the Philadelphia Public Ledger contained the following appreciative notice: "Capt. Andersen was born in Philadelphia in 1842. He began going to sea when he was a lad and later took a course in the Philadelphia Nautical School. Upon the organization of the American Steamship Line, in 1872, he entered the company's service, where his ability soon won the esteem of Capt. Morrison, of the Ohio, by whom he was made chief officer. Later he was offered a captaincy on the International Company's Line, where he remained a number of years until he returned to the American Line.

"When the famous transatlantic yacht race was projected, in 1888, Capt. Andersen was chosen to command the American yacht Coronet, having as his competitor Capt. Samuel, in charge of the British yacht Dauntless. The race was exciting and dangerous, on account of rough weather; the little American vessel covered the course in fourteen days, beating the Dauntless by about ten hours.

"Captain Andersen was a man of marked individuality, whose courage and self confidence carried him through many dangers. He crossed the ocean in steamer service 164 times. He received many marks of appreciation, upon one occasion being presented with a piece of plate by the British Humane Society 'in recognition of his humanity and heroism' in the rescue of a crew of shipwrecked sailors. He was highly esteemed for his scientific acquirements as well as his skill as a navigator."

After this company disbanded he was drummer in the Third Ohio Militia and was out with his regiment at the time John Morgan, the notorious Confederate guerrilla, made his raid through Indiana and Ohio; after this he enlisted as a private in Company D, 184th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served until the close of the war, being mustered out of the service on the 27th day of September, 1865, at Nashville, Tenn., and was honorably discharged a few days later at Camp Chase, Columbus, O.

Langdon, then a lad of seventeen, left his home at Springboro, Ohio, and walked to Lockland, Ohio, a distance of about forty miles, where he stayed with the family of William B. French [861] (son of Charles C. and Mercy G. French) for a few days, helping on the farm. Mr. French then took young Langdon to Camp Ludlow, near Cincinnati, where on July 25th he enlisted in Company D, 39th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The regiment was mustered into service August 3rd at Camp Dennison, for three years. In December, 1863, Langdon was appointed corporal; in July, 1864, sergeant; and in April, 1865, first sergeant, he having re-enlisted with others in 1864. The regiment was mustered out at Louisville, Ky., in July, 1865, having participated in many engagements, including Corinth, Miss., Atlanta, Resaca, Kennesaw Mountain and Peach Tree Creek, Ga., and Sherman's great march from Atlanta to the sea.

Joseph Buzby Sheppard [1668], oldest son and child of Mark and Patience (Buzby) Sheppard [865], came to Philadelphia when a boy and secured employment with his uncle, William Norcross Buzby, a merchant, whose place of business was 329 High (afterwards Market) Street. Later he entered the employ of Cowell & Evans, dry goods merchants, Seventh and Chestnut Streets. In February, 1850, he established himself in the housekeeping drygoods business at 1008 Chestnut Street, continuing therein successfully for thirty-five years, and being succeeded by his sons, in 1885. The firm, in the beginning, was Sheppard & Van Harlingen, later Sheppard & Arrison and, in 1885, became J. B. Sheppard & Sons. Mr. Sheppard was active in the Union cause during the war, becoming a member of the Union League, in 1863. He was interested in religious work and was for some years an elder in the First Independent (Presbyterian) Church, of which Rev. John Chambers was pastor for half a century.

Thomas Taylor Buzby, youngest son and child of Richard [894] and Mary Ann (Taylor) Buzby, in 1889 purchased from his father a farm of about 100 acres, which comprises part of the original Thomas French homestead near Rancocas, N. J. This is a well equipped, highly cultivated and prosperous farm. The large, old-fashioned house (see p. 48, vol. 1, of this Genealogy) was the home of Governor William Franklin at the time of the Declaration of Independence, and from which he was taken prisoner to Connecticut. Thomas T. Buzby and his family, like their ancestors for several generations, are members of Rancocas Monthly Meeting; and the two sons and daughter have attended the Friends' school at Rancocas.

RANCOCAS MEETING.

Under authority of Burlington Monthly Meeting, a Meeting for worship at Rancocas was set up in 1681, Friends assembling at the house of Thomas Harding, a near neighbor of Thomas French, progenitor. The first Meeting House was built about 1700, near the bank of the Rancocas creek, where the ancient graveyard remains. This meeting is referred to in early records as the "Meeting at Northampton." In 1772 the present brick Meeting House was built, the figures showing conspicuously on the east end. In 1820 an enlargement added twenty-five feet to the west end; the gallery was extended, and a sliding partition provided, dividing the whole into two apartments. This house has since been in continuous use and is in excellent condition at this time. Minutes of the Preparative Meeting present a curious bit of history of a notable period. Under date of 10th mo., 1828, we quote the following:

"A number of Friends formerly members of this Preparative meeting having separated therefrom and hold meetings which they call Ancocas Preparative meeting. It is thought out of these and other circumstances difficulties may occur with respect to future accommodations in the meeting house. Benjamin E. Ridgway, Israel Stokes, William Hilyard, Charles Stokes, and Amos Buzby are therefore appointed a Committee to have the care of the house generally with Rachel Stokes, the present caretaker, and to be at all times ready to make any arrangement with those who have separated as above according to just and correct principles."

The matter here referred to evidently received long and careful consideration. It was not until a meeting held 5th mo. 29th, 1834, that the following report was received, read and approved, the committee being continued, with instruction to give further attention to the object of their appointment, as might seem to be necessary. We quote:

"The Committee appointed in the 10th month, 1828, to the care of the meeting house and to be at all times ready to make arrangements with the party called orthodox relative to accommodations in the meeting house report; 'That said party for several years past have met separately for worship near the middle of the week—meeting on the fourth instead of the fifth day—at which time the house has by our direction been opened for them. But on the first day of the week they have continued to meet with us up to the present time. Understanding however that it was their desire to separate and meet on the first day of the week also by themselves and at the tenth instead of the eleventh hour, several individuals of our number communicated with several of theirs upon the subject and informed them that if they so wished and would name some of their number, to meet with some of ours, it was probable an arrangement could be made that would be satisfactory. Accordingly two of their number, Samuel Atkinson and George Haines, were deputed by their preparative meeting, who met with Benjamin E. Ridgway and Charles Stokes, at the meeting house at Ancocas on the 7th of the present month, when an arrangement was agreed upon as follows: "That hereafter the slides or partition dividing the two ends of the meeting house should be closed on first days. That they occupy the east end and we the west end of the house. And on all other days and times both they and we to occupy a part or the whole of the house as heretofore as may be necessary. That no change take place as regards the benches, etc., in the separate ends of the house and that the house be opened as heretofore under the care of Rachel Stokes, if she should wish it. And if their future convenience should make it necessary for them to have a lock on the east door that it be of such a construction that one key will unlock both doors, or that the key of said new lock be placed so that our care-taker may conveniently get it, and the same facilities be furnished them on our part relative to the west door. And as they propose to meet at the tenth hour it was agreed by them that care should be exercised that they did not occupy an undue proportion of the horse-sheds, and it was also mutually agreed that in all things having a tendency to disturb the quiet of their or our meeting by the members of either side that a care should be exercised. And that if anything of the kind should occur by our meeting being the means of giving unnecessary disturbance to theirs that some of our members shall in a friendly way be spoken to on the subject by some of theirs. And also if our meetings should in like manner be unnecessarily disturbed by them that they be spoken to, and that both they and we should endeavor to have the cause of uneasiness removed."

Committee."

The friendly arrangement thus agreed upon has been faithfully carried out for more than three quarters of a century, the two branches of the society occupying the ancient Meeting House in true Christian spirit. At an early date in the history of the Meeting at Rancocas a school house was built and one of the most noted teachers was the late John Gummere, afterwards famous as a mathematician and school book author. By will, dated May 2nd, 1796, proved August 6th, 1811, Joseph Buzby [155] directed that 100 pounds be paid to the Treasurer of Friends' School at Ancocas, upon the death of his wife, Hannah (Warrington) Buzby; and by will dated September 3rd, 1818, proved May 24th, 1819, Hannah (Warrington) Buzby bequeathed 25 pounds to the School. Joseph Buzby and Hannah Warrington were married in 1754 under care of Haddonfield Monthly Meeting.

Thomas Buzby [50], father of Joseph Buzby, was a long-time member of the Rancocas Meeting, and from the "Friend" we quote the following remarks concerning his "exemplary and useful life":

"Thomas, the son of Nicholas and Mary Buzby, was born in Pennsylvania about the year 1698. When quite young his parents removed to New Jersey, within the limits of Rancocas Meeting. When he attained to riper years, and came to have the care of a family, his steady conduct and circumspect walking, occasioned him to be esteemed by most who knew him. He was made overseer and elder in meeting and was useful in both stations. He appears to have been diligent in filling up his measure of duty, in religious and civil society, so that he passed along through life, useful amongst all with whom he was brought into connection, loving and beloved by those with whom he was intimately known. He died 10 mo. 23, 1773, about 75 years of age."

William Collins Hinchman, Jr., owns and successfully operates about seventy acres of cranberry meadows in the neighborhood of Taunton, Burlington County, N. J. These different meadows or bogs are named respectively "Spirit Vale," "Lake Toronto," and "Mary Collins." The latter meadow has been bearing fruit for fifty years without being reset; and it contains one of the finest sulphur springs in New Jersey. A well-built house, having some sixty-odd rooms, and spacious storing capacity, affords accommodations for the large number of pickers required to handle and store the hundreds of bushels of fruit which are the usual annual yield from these different cranberry bogs. Within easy access of Philadelphia, surrounded by picturesque woods and having a pond which affords pleasant swimming and bathing, Taunton has become an attractive and interesting picnic resort.

WALTER MONTGOMERY JAMES, M.D.

Dr. Walter Montgomery James graduated from Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1869, and has been prominently identified with the profession since that time. In 1880 he founded The Homœopathic Physician, a monthly publication which he edited and published until the close of 1899. Dr. James, son of George Sousman James, is fifth in line of descent from Thomas Chalkley, the "Ancient Worthy Friend" who "became concerned for the general good of mankind, and received a gift of the ministry of the gospel of Christ before he had attained the age of twenty-one years." George Sousman James was the son of Thomas Chalkley and Hannah (Thomas) James. Thomas Chalkley James was the son of Chalkley and Sarah (Huston) James. Chalkley James was the son of Abel James, merchant of Philadelphia, and his wife, Rebecca Chalkley, daughter of Thomas Chalkley, who was born in Southwark, England, 3rd mo. 3rd, 1675, "and descended of honest and religious parents." In 1698, Thomas Chalkley, finding himself "engaged in the love of the gospel to visit Friends in America," made his first visit to this country, and landed at the mouth of the Patuxent River, Maryland, where a meeting was held, "and a blessed one it was." He journeyed through Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England attending meetings, and early in 1699 returned to England, where he married the same year, 7th mo. 28th, Martha Betterton, "a religious young woman, whom [he] entirely loved for that piety, virtue, and modesty which [he] beheld in her," and "who truly loved and feared God, and had an excellent gift of the ministry given unto her, and was serviceable therein." Some months later he removed again to America, taking up his residence in Philadelphia. He was a member of the Philadelphia Monthly Meeting for forty years, and was widely known as minister, mariner and merchant. "He persevered in his concern and labour for the edification of the churches, and gathering people to faith and dependence on the inward teachings of Christ," and for that purpose he made many journeys to foreign parts, going frequently to the West Indies, where he died 7th mo. 4th, 1741. His first wife bore him four sons and one daughter, all of whom died under three years of age, and she died 1st mo. 30th, 1712. On 2nd mo. 15th, 1714, he married Martha, widow of Joseph Brown, of Philadelphia.

Sarah (Huston) James, great-grandmother of Dr. Walter M. James, was the daughter of Alexander and Elizabeth (Hasell) Huston. Elizabeth Hasell was the daughter of Samuel Hasell, who was born in the Barbadoes, 1691, died June 13th, 1751, in Philadelphia. He engaged in mercantile business in Philadelphia about 1715, becoming a common councilman in 1728, alderman 1729, was treasurer of the city corporation for many years, member of the Provincial Council 1728 and 1731, three times mayor of Philadelphia, 1731, 1732 and 1740, one of the county justices, qualified as a Master in Chancery of the Governor's High Court, founded in 1720; was warden and vestryman of Christ Church for many years.

ERRATA, Vol. I

Since publishing Volume 1 of this work, documents and records previously inaccessible have come into the possession of the author; and some of these records indicate, that despite every precaution that was taken when compiling the data for the first volume, errors unavoidably occurred. Kindly note the following corrections:

- Page 116—Second marriage of Thomas French, Jr. [6]: Marriage certificate of Jonas Cattell and Mary Pearce contains a notation that she died 7th of 8th mo. 1724. Haddonfield Meeting records show that Jonas Cattell and Mary Engle, widow, were married in 1727. Jonas Cattell died in 1731, and in 1732 Thomas French, Jr. [6], and Mary Cattell were married under the care of Haddonfield Meeting. This Mary Cattell doubtless was Mary (Engle) Cattell, second wife of Jonas Cattell and not Mary (Pearce) Cattell as noted on page 116 of Vol. 1.
- Page 234—The year of marriage of Esther (Matlack) French to Vespasian Kemble should read 1774 instead of 1744 (typographical error).
- Page 439—Caption DESCENDANTS of THOMAS BUZBY, 3RD, should read DESCENDANTS of THOMAS BUZBY, JR. Hannah Buzby, who married, June 6th, 1799, Miles Foster, was the daughter of Thomas, Jr. [153], and Tabitha (Hugg) Buzby. Thomas Buzby, Jr. [153], married, second, 11th mo. 16th, 1788, Hannah (Stokes) Haines, widow of Ephraim Haines, and daughter of Samuel and Hannah (Hinchman) Stokes. Thomas Buzby, Jr. [153], died 9th mo. 23rd, 1816, and his wife, Hannah Haines Buzby, in 1815. The marriage and death dates given under Thomas Buzby, 3rd [401], page 438, are misplaced and apply to Thomas Buzby, Jr. [153].
- Page 447—The death date given for Hannah (Stokes) Haines [169] is incorrect, same being the date of death of her mother Hannah (Stockdell) Stokes [72], page 288. Hannah (Stokes) Haines died in 1823, will proved September 22nd.
- Page 449—Richard Stockton, mentioned as a grantee of Richard Ridgway in land transfer, in the vicinity of Piscataway, Middlesex Co., N. J., was the eldest son of the original Richard Stockton, who located in Springfield township, Burlington Co., in 1690, where he remained until his death; and was the brother of Abigail Stockton, who was the second wife of Richard Ridgway.
